THIRTY-SEVENTH INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON ECONOMIC CRIME

SUNDAY 1st SEPTEMBER - SUNDAY 8th SEPTEMBER 2019

JESUS COLLEGE, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

Fighting economic crime - a shared responsibility!
The 37th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

Fighting economic crime - a shared responsibility!

The thirty-seventh international symposium on economic crime brings together, from across the globe, a unique level and depth of expertise to address one of the biggest threats facing the stability and development of all our economies. The overarching theme for the symposium is how we can better and more effectively work together in preventing, managing and combating the threat posed by economically motivated crime and abuse. The programme underlines that this is not just the responsibility of the authorities, but us all. These important and timely issues are considered in a practical, applied and relevant manner, by those who have real experience whether in law enforcement, regulation, compliance or simply protecting their own or another’s business.

The symposium, albeit held in one of the world’s leading universities, is not a talking shop for those with vested interests or for that matter an academic gathering. We strive to offer a rich and deep analysis of the real issues and in particular threats to our institutions and economies presented by economic crime and abuse. Well over 700 experts from around the world will share their experience and knowledge with other participants drawn from policy makers, law enforcement, compliance, regulation, business and the professions. The programme is drawn up with the support of a number of agencies and organisations across the globe and the Organising Institutions and principal sponsors greatly value this international commitment. In recent years the symposium has attracted well over 1,800 participants from over 100 countries.

In considering how to better discourage and control economic crime we examine the real threats facing our economies and, in particular, those who look after other people’s wealth not just from criminals and terrorists, but also indirectly as a result of law enforcement and regulatory intervention. We also context these risks and the responses not only in terms of the law, but also regulation and especially compliance practice. Therefore in every specialist panel or workshop there is an array of relevant practical experience and expertise.

As in previous symposia we do not focus on a single, no matter how important, issue. Just spend a few minutes to look through the 37th Symposium programme; I am confident that you will be impressed by its depth, breadth, topicality and relevance. The symposium is not an ordinary conference. It was conceived to fulfil a very practical purpose, to promote understanding of the real issues in controlling economically motivated crime and facilitate co-operation and effective action, ideally preventive. Consequently, we make every effort to foster networking and promoting meaningful co-operation.

The Cambridge Symposium is not and has never been just a conference. It is organised on a non-profit making basis by some of the world’s most respected academic and research institutions with the active involvement and support of numerous governmental and inter-governmental bodies. Those who are concerned to protect and promote the integrity and wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise – or who are concerned to better understand the risks facing business today, cannot afford to miss this very special event.

The convenors for each workshop are indicated in the programme, but discussion will be open to all those participating.

Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

The Master and Fellows of Jesus College, within the University of Cambridge, have supported the symposium since its inception and Jesus College has been the venue for all programmes. The College was founded by Bishop Alcock of Ely in 1496, but the history of many of the College's buildings is much older. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least 250 years before the foundation of the College. The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209. The University, consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools, is rated as the world’s foremost research university. A number of the University’s centres and scholars are involved in the symposium programme.

The Centre for International Documentation on Organised and Economic Crime (CIDOEC)

CIDOEC is a non-profit making network of scholars, researchers and practitioners concerned to foster understanding as to how better to prevent and interdict economically motivated crime.
National Economic Crime Centre (NECC)

Working together to protect the public, prosperity and the UK’s reputation.

The NECC coordinates and tasks the UK’s response to economic crime harnessing intelligence and capabilities from across the public and private sectors including the Joint Money Laundering Intelligence Tasksforce (JMLIT)

HM Treasury UK Government

HM Treasury jointly responsible for overall coordination of UK AML and CTF Policy. This includes responsibility for the UK’s Money Laundering Regulations, conducting the UK’s National Risk Assessments for money laundering and terrorist financing, and appointing AML/CTF supervisors. Through its Office of Financial Sanctions implementation, HMT implements and enforces international and domestic financial sanctions.

HMT leads the UK delegation to the Financial Action Task Force. HMT also delivers a programme of AML/TF technical assistance to developing countries, supporting over 50 countries to date in their efforts to tackle MF/TH and the FATF standard

National Crime Agency

The National Crime Agency leads, supports and co-ordinates the UK’s response to organised, serious and international crime.

The Metropolitan Police Service

The Metropolitan Police Service (the Met) polices the 620 square miles of London and is the largest police force in the UK having a staff in excess of 43,000.
The Serious Fraud Office of England, Wales and Northern Ireland

The Serious Fraud Office is an independent government department, responsible for the investigation and prosecution of the top level of serious or complex fraud, bribery and corruption.

The Crown Prosecution Service

The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) is the national prosecution service for England and Wales. It has a Specialist Fraud Division and three Area Fraud Centres which pursues the majority of economically relevant crimes in England and Wales. The CPS is headed by the Director of Public Prosecutions.

City of London Police

The City of London Police is the National Lead Force in the UK for fraud and fraud related crime.

University of Cambridge Centre of Development Studies

The Centre of Development Studies has an international reputation for research and teaching across a spectrum of subjects relevant to development and stability. The Centre is part of the Department of Political and International Studies (POLIS) within the University of Cambridge.

The Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the Society for Advanced Legal Studies

IALS supports and promotes legal research, both nationally and internationally, provides services to the law schools of the University of London, and brings together the academic and practising legal professions for the benefit of the legal system as a whole. IALS is a member institute of the School of Advanced Study of the University of London, which unites nine prestigious institutes to form the UK’s national centre for the support of researchers and the promotion of research.
