The 39th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

Selling status – insider crime and abuse of trust

The Thirty-Ninth Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime brings together, from across the globe a unique level and depth of expertise to address one of the biggest threats to sustainable development and the stability and security of our economies. The undermining of all our institutions by a failure to promote and sustain integrity is of real concern to us all and not merely those who look after other people's wealth. While much discussion has taken place as to the dangers of corruption there are wider issues relating to the abuse of position and in particular the buying and selling of status and influence. Such conduct saps the integrity, credibility, competence and independence of our institutions, whether in the public or private sectors. In extremis it alienates society from government and our leaders - nationally and internationally.

The measures, particularly those involving law, adopted to reinforce and protect integrity are sadly often ill-conceived and result in collateral damage. The tendency to focus, justified by so many arguments, on wealth whether tainted by criminality or politics has resulted in arguably disproportionate compliance and other burdens on those, who, in the ordinary course of their business, look after our money. Failure to ensure appropriate, viable and cost effective responses can result in even a greater crisis of confidence in the efficacy of legal and regulatory systems than, on occasion, the wrongs we are seeking to address. The Thirty-Ninth symposium, drawing on well over 600 experts from around the world, will address these concerns, together with a host of specialist issues ranging from the utility of sanctions to the use of AI.

The annual Cambridge symposium is certainly not just another conference. Just take a few minutes to review the programme. It is organised by a number of leading organisations, with the support of governments and the academy, on a non-profit making basis, to address real threats to our economies. By bringing together real experts with practical knowledge and experience, together with legislators, judges, regulators, those involved in law enforcement, compliance experts, academics and those who run our financial institutions and their advisers from around the world, a unique forum is provided not just for deliberation and discussion, but networking and promoting viable approaches and facilitating co-operation. In recent year's we have attracted almost 2,000 participants annually from over 100 countries.

In addition to the plenary sessions and workshops, every effort is made to facilitate participative discussion and networking in a host of smaller workshops, think tanks and through the college's extensive hospitality. We recognise that many of the issues relevant to the control and interdiction of economically motivated crime and misconduct cannot be effectively addressed through a single discipline, therefore we are proud to bring together, in one of the oldest colleges within the University of Cambridge, a broad spectrum of relevant expertise, which provide a unique facility.

Those who are concerned to protect and promote integrity and the wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise - or who are simply concerned to better understand and appreciate the risks facing business today, cannot afford to miss this very special event.

Professor Barry A.K. Rider
Founder, Executive Director and Co-Chairman

*The above programme is confirmed subject to where the contrary is indicated by an asterisk. Inevitably given the number of speakers and panellists there will be changes. The organiser apologises for any disappointment on this occasion.

Please note, unless indicated by the relevant chairman to the contrary all proceedings are under Chatham House Rules.

Workshops

Participation in the non-plenary workshops will be restricted so as to facilitate informal discussion on the basis of Chatham House Rules. Registration for workshops will be on a first come basis. The convenors for each workshop are indicated in the programme, but discussion will be open to all those participating.

Attendance at the 2022 Cryptocurrency and Blockchain AML Summit is by invitation. However, those registering for the Thirty-Ninth Symposium are invited and others need to contact Mrs Angela Futter at info@crimesymposium.org

Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

The Master and Fellows of Jesus College, within the University of Cambridge, have supported the symposium since its inception and Jesus College has been the venue for all programmes. The College was founded by Bishop Alcock of Ely in 1496, but the history of many of the College's buildings is much older. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least 250 years before the foundation of the College. The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209. The University, consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools, is rated as the world's foremost research university. A number of the University's centres and scholars participate in the symposium programme

The Centre for International Documentation on Organised and Economic Crime (CIDOEC)

CIDOEC is a non-profit making international network of scholars, researchers and practitioners concerned to foster understanding as to how better to prevent and interdict economically motivated crime.

National Economic Crime Centre (NECC)

The NECC coordinates and tasks the UK's response to economic crime, harnessing intelligence and capabilities from across the public and private sectors including the Joint Money Laundering Intelligence Taskforce (JMLIT)

HM Treasury UK Government

HM Treasury is responsible, in the context of economic crime, for the coordination of the UK's AML and CTF policy. Therefore it is responsible for the UK's Money Laundering Regulations, the UK's National Risk Assessment, appointing AML and CTC supervisors, leading the UK's delegation to FATF and providing technical assistance to over 50 countries. Its Office of Financial Sanctions implements and enforces both international and domestic sanctions.

HM Revenue & Customs

The HMRC is responsible for the administration and enforcement of tax law in the UK. In ensuring a level playing field it targets the UK's most harmful and powerful tax criminals and supports business in protecting themselves from money laundering in its role as an anti-money laundering supervisor.

National Crime Agency

The National Crime Agency leads, supports and coordinates the UK's response to organised, serious and international crime.

The Metropolitan Police Service

The Metropolitan Police Service with a staff of over 43,000 policing the 620 square miles that London covers is the UK's largest police force. Its headquarters are Scotland Yard

The Serious Fraud Office of England, Wales and Northern Ireland

The Serious Fraud Office is an independent government department, responsible for the investigation and prosecution of the top level of serious or complex fraud, bribery and corruption.

The Crown Prosecution Service

The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) is the national prosecution service for England and Wales. It has a Specialist Fraud Division and three Area Fraud Centres which pursue the majority of economically relevant crimes in England and Wales. The CPS is headed by the Director of Public Prosecutions.

City of London Police

The City of London Police is the National Lead Force in the UK for fraud and fraud related crime.
