WELCOME TO GENERATIONS!

The original idea for the AAPI Generations Conference came from one of Theater Mu’s virtual, weekly Mu-tini Hours held during the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. During a conversation about Asian American theater’s history that included playwright Philip Kan Gotanda and Theatre Communications Group’s artistic and international programs director Emilya Cachapero, Mu artistic director Lily Tung Crystal surprised them by bringing on a dozen Asian American theater elders from across the country. Then ka pow! The idea for an in-person Asian American theater reunion was born.

Our hope is that the AAPI Generations Conference is a weekend that brings people together, honors those who laid the foundations of Asian American theater, and explores how our stories and social justice are intertwined.

The conference opens with some of the artists on that Mu-tini Hour: Philip, actor and playwright Amy Hill, playwright David Henry Hwang, and Rick Shiomi, Mu’s co-founder as well as a director and playwright. They will all be talking with Dr. Josephine Lee about how Asian American theater has changed over the years. The next day kicks off with TaikoArts Midwest before heading into breakout sessions on arts and activism. Sunday’s closing plenary with More Than a Single Story features Asian American women artistic leaders Lily and Anh Thu T. Pham (Theater Mu), Ananya Chatterjea (Ananya Dance Theatre), and Lana Salah Barkawi (Mizna) in conversation with actor and singer Meghan Kreidler about their experiences.

In between the events are three play readings—our New Eyes Festival, Mu’s longest tradition. This year, we broaden the scope of the new work we’re championing, as we feature artists who do theater at the intersection of the AAPI diaspora and other marginalized communities. The Saturday reading is a special presentation of excerpts by Philip, Amy (who is also performing), David, Rick, Velina Hasu Houston, and Diana Son. On Sunday is Holy Shitake: A Wok Star Is Born, a truly Asian Minnesotan story written and performed by Katie Chin as a tribute to her mother, the late restaurateur Leaann Chin. You’ll also see a reading of Madhuri Shekar’s new version of House of Joy, a dystopian tale of epic grandeur and bad ass women.

Whether you can come to one part of Generations or stay the whole weekend, thank you for supporting Asian American stories, theater, and social justice. As Lily says, “When those around us do not see us on stage, film, or television, they often perceive us as other. We at Mu know that the more we uplift our stories, the more we are part of the narrative of America.”

With Love,
The Mu Staff

THE HISTORY OF THE ASIAN AMERICAN THEATER MOVEMENT

ft. PHILIP KAN GOTANDA, AMY HILL, DAVID HENRY HWANG, & RICK SHIOMI
moderated by DR. JOSEPHINE LEE

MAY 19 AT 7:30 P.M., FOLLOWED BY A RECEPTION

To begin the AAPI Generations Conference, we’ll be reflecting on how the Asian American theater movement began with some of its leaders: playwright Philip Kan Gotanda, playwright and actor Amy Hill, playwright David Henry Hwang, and playwright and director Rick Shiomi, who also co-founded Theater Mu in 1992. Asian American historian Dr. Josephine Lee will chat with these four about what societal and cultural factors led to this moment in history, how representation and recognition has changed over the years, and maybe even how David, Rick, and Philip used to be in a band together.

PHILIP KAN GOTANDA (he/him) has been instrumental in bringing stories of Asians in the United States to mainstream American theater as well as to Europe and Asia. Plays include Under the Rainbow: Natalie Wood Is Dead, White Manifest or Got Rice?, and Yankee Dawg You Die. His many accolades include receiving awards from the Guggenheim, National Arts Club, Pew Charitable Trust, and Rockefeller, as well as being a member of the 2006 Japanese American Leadership Delegation. Beyond theater, Philip has also worked in mediums including film, jazz, spoken word, and dance. Before focusing on playwriting, he helped chronicle the emergent Asian American identity through song in the late ‘60s and ‘70s, and was an active part of the developing ‘70s, ‘80s, and ‘90s cultural wave.

AMY HILL (she/her) is a character actress and comedian known for playing grandmother or motherly roles in both live action and animation. Her first major role was as Yung-Hee “Grandma” Kim on All-American Girl, where she became the breakout character of the short-lived but groundbreaking television series. Hill has had mainstream roles on other shows, including Magnum P.I., That’s So Raven, Jackie Chan Adventures, Lilo & Stitch: The Series, The Life and Times of juniper Lee, Enlightened, and American Dad. In film, she is best known for portraying Mrs. Kwan in The Cat in the Hat, Sue in 50 First Dates, and Mrs. Ho-Kim in Next Friday, and some of her most renowned theater performances have been the one-woman shows she wrote and performed herself, including the trilogy of Tokyobound, Reunion, and Beside Myself.

DAVID HENRY HWANG (he/him) is a playwright, screenwriter, television writer, and librettist whose stage works include the plays M. Butterfly, Chinglish, Yellow Face, Kung Fu, Golden Child, The Dance and the Railroad, and FOB, as well as the musicals Soft Power, Aida (co-author), Flower Drum Song (2002 revival), and Disney’s Tarzan. Hwang is a Tony Award winner and three-time nominee, a three-time Obie Award winner, a Grammy winner and two-time nominee, and a three-time finalist for the Pulitzer Prize in drama. Opera News called him America’s most-produced living opera librettist. From 2015-2019, he was a writer/producer for the Golden Globe-winning television series The Affair. He is currently creating the TV series Billion Dollar Whale, slated to begin production this year.

RICK SHIOMI (he/him) is a playwright, director, and artistic director who has been a leader in the Asian American theater community for four decades. He has written over 20 plays, including the award-winning Yellow Fever, Mask Dance, and Fire in the New World. His plays have been produced across North America and in Japan. He was a co-founder of Theater Mu in 1992 and the artistic director there for 20 years, directing many plays including Into The Woods, Yellow Face, and The New Mikado. He has also directed at MN Opera, InterAct Theatre in Philadelphia, and the Asian American Theater Company in San Francisco. He received the 2015 McKnight Distinguished Artist Award, the 2012 Ivey Award for lifetime achievement, and the 2007 Sally Ordway Irvine Award for vision. He is a co-founder and co-artistic director of Full Circle Theater in the Twin Cities.

JOSEPHINE LEE (she/her) is a professor of English and Asian American studies at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities, as well as the editor in chief of the Oxford Encyclopedia of Asian American Literature and Culture. Her books include Performing Asian America: Race and Ethnicity on the Contemporary Stage, and she has co-edited Asian American Plays for a New Generation, as well as edited Milestones in Asian American Theatre.

Enjoy a taiko performance and a discussion on the influence, origins, relationship, and conscious uncoupling of taiko ensemble Mu Daiko (now Ensō Daiko) from what was then Mu Performing Arts. After 20 years of being under one umbrella, in 2017 the taiko group hosted Minnesota’s First Taiko Festival and became the foundation for TaikoArts Midwest.

TAIKOARTS MIDWEST (PRODUCER) seeks to produce, promote, and support artistic excellence in taiko arts, and uses taiko as a tool to build and strengthen community. Our resident professional taiko group, Ensō Daiko, offers loud, energetic performances that combine music, dance, culture, and pure athleticism. The group regularly premieres new work, adding its unique voice to the expanding canon and innovation of North American taiko. Through performances, studio classes and school residencies, Ensō Daiko has taught thousands of students of all ages and abilities.

WATTANAK DANCE TROUPE’S DANCERS AND THE DIVINE

When you look at a Khmer (or Cambodian) classical dancer, you will find a strong aesthetic of curves: the back, the knees, the toes, the arm, the fingers. Each gesture creates a limitless vocabulary that harkens back to the Khmer people’s mytho-historical origins and channels the four main character types in Cambodian classical dance known as Neang (female), Neakong (male), Yeak (demon), and Sva (monkey). Join Wattanak Dance Troupe as it demonstrates a few of these examples, performs excerpts of its classical repertoire, and unveils some of the rich storytelling and symbolism in classical Khmer dancing.

WATTANAK DANCE TROUPE (PRODUCER) was established in 2000 by Sodanny Eir and Yousey Peov and is currently under the instruction of disciples Saroeun Nob and Garrett Sour. WDT is a nonprofit organization that focuses on the preservation of classical and folk dance styles of the Cambodian repertoire. WDT seeks to bridge generations of Cambodian Americans to their cultural heritage through the art of dance and storytelling while also showcasing the rich and ancient culture of Cambodia to communities throughout the US. WDT is devoted to preserving and passing down the knowledge of Cambodian performing arts to the next generation.

AAPI THEATER DESIGNERS: LOOKING BACK, LOOKING FORWARD

Scenic designer Mina Kinukawa is bringing together four other early- to mid-career Asian American theater designers to reflect on their work in relation to Asian American theater and social justice. In addition to sharing some of their projects, the panel will explore questions like, "What role do AAPI designers play in the telling of AAPI stories?" and "How has the role of design and/or designers changed in the wake of contemporary social justice activism?"

MINA KINUKAWA (PRODUCER) Mina (she/her) is a freelance scenic designer in Minnesota. Design for MN theaters include: Penumbra Theatre, Jungle Theater, Full Circle Theater, Theater Mu, New Native Theatre, and Pillsbury House and Theatre. She has also worked in film & TV productions in LA and designed scenery for regional theaters such as East West Players, Echo Theater Company, Lodestone Theatre Company, Company of Angels, Milagro Theater, Profile Theatre, and Northwest Children’s Theatre Company. Most recently, she designed scenery for The Song Poet (MN Opera), bull-jean stories (Pillsbury House Theatre), and Sugar in Our Wounds (Penumbra Theatre). She is an assistant professor of theater and dance at Macalester College in Saint Paul.

MINNESOTA’S ASIAN AMERICAN RENAISSANCE

For about a decade starting in 1992, the Asian American Renaissance (AAR) was a community-based organization for both arts and activism in Minnesota. Its potluck dinners united creatives across literature, the performing arts, and more, and it organized activities such as the "Don’t Buy Miss Saigon" protests in the mid-1990s. But what actually was the organization? Join Jennifer Weir as she talks with four other members about how the Asian American Renaissance shaped the landscape of the Asian American arts community in the state.

JENNIFER WEIR (PRODUCER)
Jennifer (she/her) has been passionately studying, performing, teaching, and composing taiko for over 25 years. Jennifer is the founding executive director of TaikoArts Midwest, artistic director of Ensō Daiko (formerly Mu Daiko), and the executive producer and featured subject in the documentary feature film Finding Her Beat. She is also a theater director and dramaturg with Theater Mu, and a past recipient of grants from Live Music for Dance MN, MN State Arts Board, MN Regional Arts Board, Arts International, American Composers Forum, and a Jerome MN travel grant.

YIN, YANG, AND DISMANTLING THE GENDER BINARY

Through this introductory session, multidisciplinary artist Kaela Mei-Shing Garvin aims to open the door to community-building for those who might be in the extended-gender family, as well as facilitate learning for those who are more comfortable living and working within the gender binary. Workshop participants will work together through three parts: gaining knowledge informed by Taoist ideologies, sharing resources and experiences, and creating theatrical work around the experience of Asian American nonbinary artists.

KAELA MEI-SHING GARVIN (PRODUCER)
Kaela (they/she) is a writer, educator, and new work advocate. Plays include Call Out Culture (2022 O’Neill NPC finalist, 2021 NADIA Festival, 2019 Ars Nova’s ANT Fest), High School Coven (2023 Strand Theatre production), Harpers Ferry 2019 (2022 Know Theatre of Cincinnati production, 2021 Kendeda finalist), and Tiger Beat (2021 Bay Area Playwrights Festival, 2021 Seven Devils finalist). Kaela has received six Kennedy Center awards and developed work with the Alliance Theater, the Coop’s Clusterf*ck, and Pipeline Theater Company’s Playlab. Commissions include work with EST/Sloan, Montana Repertory Theater, and College of the Holy Cross. They currently work at the Tank, teach playwriting at Cornish College of the Arts, and work as literary manager for Luna Stage.

BETWEEN THE WATER & THE CLOUD

While COVID-19 brought a new wave of anti-Asian hate—and a new mainstream awareness to the problem—knowing how to combat it can still be difficult. Asian Media Access director of media technology Steve Lu and a panel of Asian American activists will discuss how to fight anti-Asian hate by looking at historical perspectives, highlighting local efforts, and reflecting on how Asian philosophies can guide the next steps toward an equitable world.

ASIAN MEDIA ACCESS, INC. (PRODUCER) is a multimedia arts agency incorporated in 1992 that is dedicated to "connecting the disconnected" by using multimedia arts and technology as tools for social betterment. AMA recognizes that multimedia and technology are essential for advocacy, communication, and education. By effectively utilizing these different mediums, AMA both creates and presents programs that educate, enrich the communities, and empower all of us with critical thinking and promote good citizenship. Its thought-provoking multimedia education, productions, exhibitions, stage performances, resourceful educational products, and youth afterschool programs encourage deep reflection, challenge previous assumptions, provide solace, and allow participants to develop their own way of connecting in timeless works of creation, communication, and community building.

WRITING, DIRECTING, & CASTING INSIDE AND OUTSIDE THE AAPI DIASPORA

Our backgrounds and identities as AAPI artists are nuanced, complicated, and intersectional: from immigrant, to first generation American, to Asian adoptee. With such a large diaspora, how do we write, direct, and perform each other’s stories with truth, respect, and accuracy? Dramaturg and theater artist Cody Kour will be moderating a multi-generational discussion around these and other questions with local playwrights, directors, and casting directors.

CODY KOUR (PRODUCER)
Cody (he/him) found his way to theater by way of poetry, writing, acting, and improv. He has always been drawn to theater and the performing arts and is grateful for having had the opportunity to work on shows like Cambodian Rock Band, Vietgone, and Antigonick with Twin Cities theaters over the past couple years. While he certainly has a passion and desire to perform, his current skillset serves the more dramaturgical or script side of production. Looking toward the future, he hopes to continue collaborating with other theater artists, as he enjoys being able to work with so many talented artists that constantly teach and inspire him.

ASIAN AMERICAN WOMEN ARTISTIC LEADERS

in collaboration with MORE THAN A SINGLE STORY ft. LANA SALAH BARKAWI, ANANYA CHATTERJEA, LILY TUNG CRYSTAL, & ANH THU T. PHAM moderated by MEGHAN KREIDLER

MAY 21 AT 4:15 P.M.

Theater Mu and More Than A Single Story have teamed up to unite four of Minnesota’s prominent arts leaders for a discussion about how their identity as Asian American women has affected their leadership approach, their mission, and their experiences. Join Meghan Kreidler, Mu artist and singer of rock band Kiss the Tiger, as she chats with Lana Salah Barkawi of Mizna, Ananya Chatterjea of Ananya Dance Theatre, and Lily Tung Crystal and Anh Thu T. Pham of Theater Mu as they reflect on their paths and talk about how—and why—they have integrated social justice into their art.

MORE THAN A SINGLE STORY (CO-PRODUCER) is a series of panel discussions/public conversations where writers of color discuss issues of importance to them in their own voices and in their own words. The series is loosely based on Nigerian novelist Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie’s powerful TED talk, “The Danger Of a Single Story,” where she warns against fostering stereotypes by treating one story of a people as their only story. The project began in 2015 as the community project for a Minnesota State Arts Board Artist Initiative grant. | morethanasinglestory.com

LANA SALAH BARKAWI (she/her), PhD, is a Palestinian cultural producer, publisher, editor, and leader based in Minneapolis, Minnesota. She serves as the executive and artistic director at Mizna where she publishes Mizna: SWANA Literature and Art and produces the Twin Cities Arab Film Festival. She is interested in creating space for SWANA, Arab, and Muslim artists and presenting cultural work that fosters critical thought. She serves on the board of OaknNa, an organization devoted to serving the disabled community in Sudan, and she has served on the boards of dynamic organizations and programs including Pangea World Theater and Saint Paul’s Cultural STAR Program. Under Lana’s leadership, Mizna has grown to be an award-winning organization recognized nationally and internationally for daring and engaging work.

ANANYA CHATTERJEA (she/her) brings together contemporary dance, social justice choreography, and a commitment to healing justice. She is the creator of Yorchhā, Ananya Dance Theatre’s signature movement vocabulary, and she is the primary architect of Shawngrām, the company’s justice- and community-oriented choreographic methodology. Her dance works have toured nationally and internationally, and she has received awards and fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation (2011), McKnight Foundation (2012, 2021), the UBW Choreographic Center (2018), and Dance/USA (2019). She is also a recipient of the Joyce Foundation (2016) and the A.P. Andersen (2021) awards. Ananya is a professor of dance at the University of Minnesota. Her publications include Heat and Alterity in Contemporary Dance: South–South Choreographies and Dancing Transnational Feminisms: Ananya Dance Theatre and the Art of Social Justice, which she co-edited with Hui Wilcox and Alessandra Williams.

LILY TUNG CRYSTAL (she/her) is an actor, director, and the artistic director of Theater Mu. After co-founding and leading Ferocious Lotus in San Francisco, she arrived at Mu in 2019, where she directed Jiehae Park’s peerless, Mu’s groundbreaking live film-theater production of Susan Soon He Stanton’s Today Is My Birthday, and Lauren Yee’s Cambodian Rock Band. Coming up, you can catch her directing Mu’s production of Saymoukdak Duangphouxay Vongsay’s The Kung Fu Zombies Saga and acting in the Jungle Theater’s production of Arian Moayed’s The Courtroom. Lily also directed The Humans at Park Square (Twin Cities Theater Bloggers’ Best Play 2022), and she was named a Theatre Bay Area Award finalist for outstanding direction of David Henry Hwang’s Chinglish and Flower Drum Song and Leah Nanako Winkler’s Two Mile Hollow.

ANH THU T. PHAM (she/her) joined Theater Mu as its first Asian American managing director in July 2020. Prior to Mu, she worked at the University of Minnesota for 23 years in finance. She has served on the board of directors at Pangea World Theater, Ananya Dance Theatre, and the New Arab American Theater Works, and she currently serves on the boards of Northern Lights MN and the University of Minnesota’s Institute for Advanced Study. Anh Thu is a 1.5 generation refugee from Viet Nam. She has worked as a cultural consultant on the Guthrie Theater’s Vietgone (2022) and Stages Theatre Company’s A Different Pond (2022 in collaboration with Theater Mu), and as a dialect coach for Ten Thousand Things’ Mima’s Tale (2023). A community activist and organizer at heart, Anh Thu has been a longtime Theater Mu “superfan.”

MEGHAN KREIDLER (she/her) is a Twin Cities-based actor and musician. Favorite theater credits include Rosalind in As You Like It at the Guthrie Theater, Emi in Hot Asian Doctor Husband with Theater Mu, and Martirio in Bernarda Alba with Theater Latté Da. She is the recipient of the 2017 Ivey Award for emerging artist, the 2017 City Pages artist of the year, and is a 2022/23 McKnight theater artist fellow. Meghan also fronts local rock band Kiss the Tiger, who was recently included as a featured artist on the National Independent Venue Association and the Black List’s inaugural “The Live List.”

with works by PHILIP KAN GOTANDA, AMY HILL, VELINA HASU HOUSTON, DIANA SON, RICK SHIOMI, & DAVID HENRY HWANG

directed by RICH REMEDIOS & JENNIFER WEIR

MAY 20 AT 7:30 P.M.

For this special New Eyes Festival reading, Theater Mu reached out to six playwrights who helped begin the Asian American theater canon and asked them to choose the play that was the turning point in their journeys. Out of their whole portfolio, which story left an irrevocable mark on their career? Tonight, find out why these plays stuck with them and enjoy excerpts from these milestone works: Yankee Dawg You Die (Philip Kan Gotanda), Tokyobound (Amy Hill), Tea (Velina Hasu Houston), Yellow Face (David Henry Hwang), Yellow Fever (Rick Shiomi), and Stop Kiss (Diana Son).

DIRECTORS: RICH REMEDIOS (Yankee Dawg You Die, Yellow Face, Yellow Fever) & JENNIFER WEIR (Tea, Stop Kiss)

CAST: LILY TUNG CRYSTAL*, ARIEL ESTRADA*, ALEX GALICK*, AMY HILL*, SU-YOON KO, MEGHAN KREIDLER*, JEANNIE LANDER, CLAY MAN SOO*, NONOKO SATO, LIPICA SHAH*, ADAM WHISNER

RICK SHIOMI (he/him) is a playwright, director, and artistic director who has been a leader in the Asian American theater community for four decades. He has written over 20 plays, including the award-winning Yellow Fever, Mask Dance, and Fire in the New World. His plays have been produced across North America and in Japan. He was a co-founder of Theater Mu in 1992 and the artistic director there for 20 years, directing many plays including Into The Woods, Yellow Face, and The New Mikado. He has also directed at MN Opera, InterAct Theatre in Philadelphia, and the Asian American theater company in San Francisco. He received the 2015 McKnight Distinguished Artist Award, the 2012 Ivey Award for lifetime achievement, and the 2007 Sally Ordway Irvine Award for Vision. He is a co-founder and co-artistic director of Full Circle Theater in the Twin Cities.

DIANA SON (she/her) is a playwright and Emmy-nominated writer/producer for television. She’s the author of the plays Stop Kiss, Satellites, BOY, Fishes, and R.A.W. (“Cause I’m a Woman). Stop Kiss and Satellites premiered at the Public Theater in NYC. Stop Kiss won the GLAAD Media Award for best New York production, and Diana won the John Gassner Playwriting Prize and the Berilla Kerr Award for playwriting. Diana has been a writer/producer for a number of TV series and has developed pilots for HBO, HBO Max, Apple, Amazon, ABC, CBS, and NBC.
Yellow Face (2007) is a comedy that delivers poignancy with a punch. Following the playwright’s alter-ego, DHH, the play takes the audience from the pinnacle of David Henry Hwang’s Tony Award with M. Butterfly through the Miss Saigon controversy and a landscape of missteps, broken relationships, and political investigations.

"Yellow Face is the show that brought me back to playwriting after a 10-year hiatus. I decided to focus on a story that was very personal, rooted in the AAPI community. I figured this would be a small play that could run at East West Players but wouldn't have much appeal to a wider audience. I turned out to be very wrong: Yellow Face has ended up emerging as my most-read and -performed play of this century. It reminds me again why the specific is universal, and that stories from our community do indeed speak to this country, and the world." — DAVID HENRY HWANG

My play, Tea, has resonated with me throughout the years because it investigates matters of the conscience that generates humanistic reflection. Its themes are organic to my cultural and ethnic identity, and audiences and critics continue to embrace it with grace. Long before issues concerning Japanese female culture, nonbinary ethnic identities, and immigration became topical in the media beyond the white gaze, Tea explored those matters through a female Japanese and Japanese poly-ethnic gaze that is vital to me." — VELINA HASU HOUSTON

Tea (1987) follows five Japanese international brides in Kansas in the late 1960s, four living and one dead. This moving story preceded Velina Hasu Houston’s Tea, with Music, which she wrote with Nathan Wang. It also preceded and helped inspire Amy Tan’s The Joy Luck Club.

"Tea has resonated with me throughout the years because it investigates matters of the conscience that generates humanistic reflection. Its themes are organic to my cultural and ethnic identity, and audiences and critics continue to embrace it with grace. Long before issues concerning Japanese female culture, nonbinary ethnic identities, and immigration became topical in the media beyond the white gaze, Tea explored those matters through a female Japanese and Japanese poly-ethnic gaze that is vital to me." — VELINA HASU HOUSTON

"Tea was a turning point in my career. Not only was I creating my own content, I was also dictating how it would be presented. It was terrifying on so many levels, but as an artist, it broke through so many of my fears and established that I could tell my story and people would listen openly and relate." — AMY HILL

TokyoBound (1991), Amy Hill offers a humorous and satirical take on her experiences living in Tokyo after a childhood of living in America with her Japanese mother and Finnish American father. This one-woman show is the first of a trilogy.

"TokyoBound was a turning point in my career. Not only was I creating my own content, I was also dictating how it would be presented. It was terrifying on so many levels, but as an artist, it broke through so many of my fears and established that I could tell my story and people would listen openly and relate." — AMY HILL

Yankee Dawg You Die (1988) looks at two Asian Americans with the same Hollywood dream—one, young and highly political, and the other, an older star who cut his teeth on the chop suey circuit. Together, they explore what it means to be an actor while facing racism and misrepresentation on stage, film, and TV.

"Yankee Dawg You Die has stuck with me as it’s a piece that has stuck with us, still produced, still studied, even as our industry visibility, acknowledgements, and institutional participation have grown. I believe it’s because the play’s underlying themes of anti-Asian racism still run deep in this country, despite our achievements and growing representation. Why else the current rise of anti-Asian hatred and violence? Yes, it is a complex issue but it does point to the imperative of writers as Hill, Houston, Hwang, Son, and myself, and theaters as Mu, to stay committed to telling our stories." — PHILIP KAN GOTA NDA

Filled with pathos and humor, this one-person show chronicles chef Katie Chin’s true journey as a fish-out-of-water Chinese American girl growing up in Minneapolis, where she was raised by her mother, seamstress-turned-restaurateur Leeann Chin. After Leeann’s death, Katie is forced to make a choice that drastically changes her life. Now, in this emotional love letter to her mother, Katie finally learns to love herself and embrace her heritage by honoring her mother’s culinary legacy.

“Every work on the Powell Street Festival in Vancouver, Canada (1976), transformed my understanding of what it meant to be Japanese Canadian, and [my first play] Yellow Fever became the artistic expression of that understanding and the framing concept for my playwriting. So from the very beginning of my theater career, I have always had this element on social justice mixed in with my own sense of ironic humor and inadvertent romanticism. ... It made me realize I could be a playwright.” — RICK SHIOMI

In Yellow Fever (1982), Japanese Canadian detective Sam Shikaze rushes to solve the mystery of the missing Cherry Blossom Queen amid a sometimes hostile post-World War II environment. The first of a trilogy, this comic noir was an Off-Broadway hit and a New York Times critic’s choice.

“Everything about [Stop Kiss] was a positive experience. I wrote it faster than I’ve written any other play, and its path to production was unusually smooth. Developing it with Jo Bonney, Jessica Hecht, and Sandra Oh over many months was an inspiring and rewarding experience, and once it was up on its feet it really connected with audiences. ... Stop Kiss officially launched my career as a professional writer—while I was actively working as a freelance copywriter up through opening night, I’ve been able to make a living as a writer ever since.” — DIANA SON

KATIE CHIN (she/her) is an award-winning cookbook author, caterer, blogger, celebrity chef, and culinary ambassador to the National Pediatric Cancer Foundation. After growing up in the kitchens of her late mother Leeann Chin’s award-winning Minneapolis-area restaurants, Katie pursued a career in film and television marketing but eventually left her executive position to return to her culinary roots. Katie has been featured in many publications including USA Today, O Magazine, Cooking Light, and Bon Appetit. National television appearances include The Kelly Clarkson Show, Live with Kelly and Ryan, The Real, the Cooking Channel, and as a guest judge on Iron Chef America. Her fifth cookbook, Katie Chin’s Global Family Cookbook, was released in 2021. Katie is co-chair of the AAPI LA task force, serves on the board of #teachaapi, and is the SW regional ambassador for Women’s Entrepreneurship Day.

STOP KISS BY DIANA SON

Diana Son’s Stop Kiss (1998) galvanized the LGBTQ+ community when it made its world premiere with Jessica Hecht and Sandra Oh at the Public Theater. The play centers around Callie and Sara, whose first kiss changes their lives even more when it leads to a violent hate crime.

“Everything about [Stop Kiss] was a positive experience. I wrote it faster than I’ve written any other play, and its path to production was unusually smooth.
