WHO WE ARE
Saga Education is part of the AmeriCorps network of programs. We fight educational inequity through the power of supportive relationships. We believe the potential to achieve is universal. Some students just need extra academic and emotional support. So we partner with public schools, offering trained, college graduates to serve as Tutoring Fellows for students who are falling behind.

THE CHALLENGE
Today, 29.8 million of America’s children are in households at or below the poverty level. Improving the academic outcomes of these historically underserved students is one of our nation’s most urgent challenges. A service-year with Saga is your chance to make a real difference.

WHAT SAGA FELLOWS DO
When you become a Saga Fellow, you don’t just learn how to tutor high school students math. You learn how to show up. For complex formulas. For complex lives. For hard days and hard-earned high fives. Everyday, you’ll work with the same small number of students, offering personalized instruction and support for whatever is standing in their way. You’ll never be alone, because we give you the training, collaborative space, and team you need to be the mentor your students need. And in the process, you’ll forge life-changing relationships; with your students and your team of Fellows.

Inside each of us lives a story waiting to unfold.
See a new one. For our future, and for yours.

Apply online at SagaEducation.org
Saga Education supports students in Chicago, New York City, and Washington DC.

Got questions? Connect directly with a Saga team member or alumni recruitment@sagaeducation.org

Add more to your story by connecting to someone else’s.
I have learned that… I could build an entire, really meaningful career in teaching. I suspected that, but my year with SAGA confirmed it.”

- Maria Decker, University of Chicago

The results that Saga is generating are remarkable and among the finest interventions ever rigorously studied at the high school level.”

- The University of Chicago Urban Education Lab

Saga gives you the training and team you need to be the mentor your students need. As a result, you’ll forge life-changing relationships and be prepared for wherever life takes you next.

- Maria Decker, University of Chicago

It is really important for students—particularly young (African-American) men—to see someone like them helping them and teaching them. It can make a huge difference in their lives.”

- Garrett Black, Xavier University

In a classroom, you can see kids struggling, but you can never devote enough time to a single student. Being able to devote one-on-one time to one or two students, and really see the learning process work, is great.”

- Nancy Nwakanma, Florida A&M University