This Annual Summary of your Homeowner’s Coverages is to assist you by serving as an overview of the coverages and exclusions under your policy; it is not part of your policy; does not create a private right of action; and is not a substitute for your policy. This Summary is being provided for your general information only. You should read your policy for complete information on coverages and exclusions as all rights, duties and obligations are controlled by the policy and contract of insurance, not this Summary. This Summary outlines the usual coverages and exclusions contained in the policy form and does not include any optional coverages you may have purchased. If there is a conflict between this Summary and your policy, the language of your policy will control.

Please note: The Standard Homeowner’s Insurance Policy does NOT cover losses from flood. Flood insurance may be purchased through the National Flood Insurance Program or other sources.

Summary of Coverages:

The two general types of coverage provided by your policy are 1) property coverage, also referred to as Section I coverage, and 2) liability coverage, also referred to as Section II coverage.

The Property Coverage portion of your policy covers losses resulting from damage to your residence and structures attached to your residence (Coverage A), it covers losses resulting from damage to other structures on your residence premises set apart from your residence (Coverage B), it covers losses to personal property owned by you or used by you subject to specific coverage limits based on the location and type of personal property (Coverage C), and it covers certain additional living expenses and the fair rental value of the part of your residence in which you live if a covered loss makes your residence not fit to live in (Coverage D).

The Liability Coverage portion of your policy protects you against claims and legal actions resulting from property damage or bodily injury to others as a result of an accident and for which you are legally liable (Coverage E), and medical expenses for bodily injury to others (Coverage F).

In addition to the basic property and liability coverage, your policy contains some additional coverages that are summarized below. Each property, liability and additional coverage is subject to the specific terms, conditions, exclusions, limits and deductibles set forth in your policy and the Declaration Page, which is the front page of your policy that provides a listing of all the coverages and limits of those coverages that you have purchased.

This Annual Summary of Homeowner’s Coverages is just a summary of the coverages and exclusions under your policy. It is not an exhaustive list. Some claims may or may not be covered depending on the facts and circumstances surrounding the loss. You should read your policy for complete information regarding your coverage. The Declarations Page, the front page of your policy, will provide a listing of all the coverages and limits of those coverages that you have purchased. Should you have any questions regarding this summary, your policy, its coverages or the limits of coverage, you should contact your insurance producer or agent or your insurance company directly to discuss your policy with them.
