Dear AYA Community,

We hope you are staying safe & well! We are also hopeful that the vaccinations targeting COVID-19 will finally help end this nightmare we have all been enduring.

Despite the many challenges, AYA remains dedicated to supporting students and their families with the much-needed services, including: academic assistance, emotional support, college and career planning, and mentoring. We are grateful to the generous volunteers, partners and sponsors featured below, who have joined our efforts to provide the resources and enriching experiences that help keep students hopeful, looking and planning ahead. These times remind us that loving care of one another and perseverance prevail.

We invite you to become a donor, sponsor, and/or volunteer to help sustain our efforts. To learn more, visit our website www.adelanteya.org or contact us at adelante@adelanteya.org.

SPOTLIGHT

To help students and parents manage the challenges of COVID-19, AYA partners with Pasadena’s Department of Public Health, through which Teresa Montes-Montalvo, a bilingual Licensed Marriage & Family Therapist, facilitates online group sessions that address a range of issues including anger, anxiety, stress, depression, and broader mental health challenges.

“Teaching the skills to parents and children helps them develop the ability to increase their awareness of their own emotions and self-esteem, and the ability to make decisions and solve problems.”

Stay tuned for a live interview with Tere about the need for and benefits of these Life Skills workshops!

We congratulate Luis Dominguez, Avionics Systems Engineer with NASA’s JPL, for his contributions to the successful landing on Mars of Perseverance Rover. As a son of immigrants growing up in South Los Angeles, Luis was not aware of JPL, and certainly had not imagined himself as an engineer who would make history. As our AYM 2016 Keynote Speaker, Luis inspired 1,800 young men to “live your life with courage, curiosity and tenacity and a healthy dose of altruism.”

Adelante Luis!!
