Re: Lack of State Guidelines for Corporate Meetings, Events and Conventions is Preventing California from Competing with Other States for Business in 2022 and Beyond. We Need Guidelines Today.

Dear Governor Newsom:

As you know, business meetings, trade shows and conventions are a major driver of California’s broader tourism industry accounting for $66.1 billion in direct spending and 457,000 jobs in 2019, according to two October 2020 studies by Oxford Economics. The same studies also found California is losing $4.1 billion each month we continue to delay safely reopening for meetings and events.

This sector of the economy has been devastated by the pandemic. We write to you today, however, not about present economic impacts, but to sound an alarm about our ability to win this business back in the coming years.

1 Oxford Economics, October 2020, “Economic Impact of Conventions and Trade Shows in California.” (page 5)

“Direct spending” represents spending by convention/trade show visitors and business-related spending by convention/trade show organizers and exhibitors.

2 Oxford Economics, October 2020, “Economic Impacts of Meetings in California.” (page 6)

“Direct spending” represents spending by exhibition visitors and business-related spending by exhibition organizers and exhibitors.
That is because your “Blueprint for a Safer Economy” has no mention of this sector of the tourism industry and no guidelines for safe future re-opening have been issued or even discussed by your administration. This silence sends a misleading signal that California is closed indefinitely. We can’t imagine this is your intent.

Other states are exploiting this perception to poach corporate meeting and events that would otherwise take place in California in 2022 and well into the future.

This exploitation is happening because planning and booking for this sector of the economy requires several months and sometimes years of lead time. Our convention centers, hotels and other meeting venues can’t compete for future events - including the jobs and desperately needed local revenue that come with them - when it appears California is closed indefinitely.

Even if guidelines came out tomorrow, our communities and California stand to lose billions more revenue and thousands of hard-working Californians will remain out of work.

Every other state released protocols and has been safely holding meetings during the pandemic, but California has prohibited meetings of any size since the state’s stay at home order went into effect on March 19, 2020.

This is why it is critical your administration immediately release guidelines for the safe, future re-opening of business meetings, events, and conventions.

You may recall, we wrote to you in June 2020 to share the attached proposed safety guidelines prepared by a diverse coalition of organizations that manage convention and meeting venues and represent labor organizations and workers who depend on this business for their livelihoods.

These protocols adhere to safety standards established by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and your own California Department of Public Health (CDPH). They include best practice recommendations for sanitation, staff training, physical distancing, and communication.

Approving or releasing these, or similar guidelines, is desperately needed to signal California is ready to compete for and win back future business, jobs, and revenue we are currently losing to other states.

If we don’t act soon, many of these events and jobs will be lost forever.

Thank you for your consideration,
