Workshops

Workshops are 90 minutes or 3 hour sessions that provide an opportunity for participants to engage with the latest tools and methods of systemic design. Organizers submit proposals for leading hands-on activities sharing their tools, methods, and strategies for large-scale transformation and re-inventing systems of governance. Workshops allow facilitators to test and prototype ideas and co-create new knowledge collaboratively with participants. Workshop proposals should include no fewer than 3 registered facilitators. Proposals should be in the region of but no more than 1,000 words and provide an overall description of the theme, details of the proposed activities and format of the session, workshop goals and expected outcomes, as well as detailing any technical or space requirements.

Duration:
Short Workshops: 90 minutes
Long Workshops: 3 hours + 30 minutes break (or as agreed, there will be a scheduled conference break)

Session Guidelines:
Presenters are fully responsible for planning and leading a workshop session. They will also be Moderators and are responsible for setup and tear-down. They should lead a hands-on engagement with activities sharing their tools, methods, and strategies oriented to the themes of the conference - large-scale transformation and re-inventing systems of governance.

Presenter/Author Guidelines:
Prepare in advance for leading a 90 minute or 3 hour learning session for an undetermined size audience. Workshops may attract 8-10 people or 30 people (let us know if there is a limit). Facilitators are responsible for bringing their own materials and tools for their activity. All are encouraged to check the room in preparation to the activity and/or contact Vivian Garcia at staff@rsd8.org for learning more details about their room.

For workshops, publication of a working paper for the proceedings is optional, but a revised abstract and description of the workshop and key outcomes would be requested. Photographs and workshop models are highly encouraged as well, for proceedings publication and sharing.