7. CONCLUSION .................................................................................................................. 27
1. BACKGROUND

While tensions have simmered in certain areas of the Middle East, confrontational rhetoric is once again stirring in the Persian Gulf. Two major oil facilities have been attacked in Saudi Arabia, causing regional players to exchange accusations. As a result, chances for diplomatic talks or negotiations have reached an all-time low, gravely impacting the overall stability of the region. Even hopes for mediation have dwindled as nations that once sought to bridge differing nations to each other, have now taken a more forward and one-sided stance.

Away from all of this brawl, the MECC has continued to work at an incremental yet impactful level to diminish the effects which arise from the regional tensions. The MECC has participated in international conferences, whose theme resonate around peace-building and inter-religious dialogue. Moreover, the Diakonia, the humanitarian arm of MECC, have concluded several events that aim to improve the conditions of forced migrants in Lebanon and Syria.

• 37,000 Palestinian refugee children began the 2019-2020 scholastic year in the 65 schools run by UNRWA in Lebanon.62

Syria

Humanitarian facts and figures:

Women and children on the frontline in north-west Syria:

• Out of 3 million civilians in north-west Syria, an estimated 76 per cent are women and children (51 per cent children and 25 per cent women).
• The UN has documented over 550 civilian deaths since the violence began, including 450 women and children confirmed by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), unconfirmed sources suggest the figure could be significantly more.
• More than 630,000 individual displacement movements have been recorded in north-west Syria since the beginning of May.63
• Seven health centers in Syria’s north-west have been reportedly attacked in recent days and two of them have been destroyed according to the World Health Organization (WHO).
• According to WHO, some 13.7 million people need health assistance in Syria, including an estimated 4 million in the north-west.64

Humanitarian situation in south fragile as tensions rise:

The humanitarian situation remains complex and fluid in southern Syria where tensions continue to mount following an increase in armed attacks, assassinations and killings in recent months. Overall, some 970,275 people are in need of humanitarian assistance across as Sweida, Dar’a and Quneitra governorates.

- Out of the almost 1 million people in need in the south, more than half or 537,000 people are in areas of high severity.
- In Dar’a Governorate, between January and April 2019, some 50,935 people have returned. Needs in Dar’a are particularly acute with five out of six health facilities are partially damaged. Needs in the region remain critical largely due to a lack of services, shops, bakeries, medical services and schools, as well as missing civil documentation, shortages in drinking water, and limited livelihood support.
- Due to depleted socio-economic resources, combined with high prices, the average cost of the food basket in Dar’a is the second highest in Syria; approximately 1,000 SYP (US$4.65) higher than the national average. This in turn forces residents to resort to negative coping mechanisms, including the selling off of household possessions and livestock or borrowing money.
- As of April 2019, southern Syria hosts 149,000 IDPs. High density of displacement and return overburdens communities and local services in poor condition. Southern Syria continues to experience population movement, receiving almost 123,000 spontaneous IDP returns since the beginning of 2018 – 11 per cent of the overall total – placing additional strain on what are already limited and partially functioning basic services.\(^{65}\)

Humanitarian situation in the most underserved areas of Aleppo rural:

- Aleppo is among those governorates that is expected to receive the highest number of returnees in 2019. However, large parts of the Governorate remain poorly prepared for accommodating that influx. Because most of public infrastructure is fragmented, including schools and medical facilities. There is a general lack of livelihood opportunities and services across southern rural Aleppo, which has a potential of triggering a second displacement for returnees
- Aleppo hosts some 2.5 million people in need, of which 1 million are in acute need. Before the crisis, the population of southern rural Aleppo was 255,000 people, compared to today’s population of 88,000. Large areas have been under Government-control since early 2018.
- Today’s low return rate is attributed to the lack of services and infrastructure. Although humanitarian actors reach the area with humanitarian assistance from inside Syria, needs remain staggering.\(^{66}\)

July 2019 Updates

In July 2019, the humanitarian community recorded 147,215 internally displaced people across Syria. The great majority of this population, 110,796 individuals, were displaced to locations in Idlib governorate with 103,906 being displaced within Idlib governorate and 6,678 individuals being displaced from Hama governorate. The second largest population movement was recorded in Aleppo governorate with a total of 16,124 individuals, including 14,219 arriving from Idlib governorate and 1,366 within Aleppo governorate. Overall, this large population movement is due to the ongoing violence in southern Idlib, northern Hama and western Aleppo governorates where people from communities affected by airstrikes, shelling and ground fighting are fleeing to find safety. The third largest movement is recorded in Lattakia governorate where a total of 3,358 people from Hama governorate were tracked.
July 2019 Updates
In July 2019, the humanitarian community recorded 26,238 spontaneous IDP returnees in several areas across Syria. The largest of these returns were recorded in Aleppo governorate with 5,267 returnees, about 3,600 of which returned from within the governorate and about 1,000 returnees from Ar-Raqqa governorate.

68 Relief web, September 9, 2019, https://reliefweb.int/sites/reliefweb.int/files/resources/idpmovements_201907jul_final_en_0.pdf
Deir-ez-zor governorate received the second largest number of IDP returnees with 5,150 spontaneous returns majority of which returned from Al Hasakeh governorate, while 4,375 returns were recorded in rural Damascus and 4,269 were recorded in Homs governorate, followed by Dar’a Governorate with 1,810 recorded spontaneous returns.

5. MECC HEADQUARTERS ACTIVITIES

MECC at CEC Peace Conference 2019 (September 10-12)

Represented by Mr. Ziad El Sayegh, Policies and Communication Advisor of MECC, the council participated at the 2019 CEC Peace Conference held in Paris on September 10-12. Focusing on the 1919 Paris Peace Conference, attendees reflected on the contemporary world and identified a theological way of living and acting that can enable CEC and its member Churches to apply it faithfully and practically in transformation, healing and reconciliation. Moreover, the conference identified the current threats to peace in Europe and articulated the challenges presented by the global experiences of the 21st century.

He concluded that it is necessary to build an interreligious peace alliance, as expressed by the leading Swiss theologian Hans Küng. His argument was summarized in the now well-known mantra: “No peace among the nations without peace among the religions”.

MECC at the "Peace with No Borders” Conference (September 19, 2019)

The MECC, represented by Secretary General Associate Michael Spiro, participated in the 33rd international meeting entitled "Peace with No Borders", convening in Madrid- Spain, from September 15 to 17, 2019.

The meeting, which was organized by the Community of Sant’Egidio and the Archdiocese of Madrid, gathered more than 400 religious personalities from 60 countries of five continents and thousands of pilgrims.

The organizers sought to promote an open dialogue between representatives of the world’s major religions, intellectual leaders and representatives of civil society, with the conviction that today more than ever, religions are called to work together for peace, conflict prevention and dialogue to rebuild human fraternity, in a divided world, with the increasing exclusionary nationalisms, xenophobic and violent rhetoric.
MECC SG at the Warsaw Dialogue for Democracy (Oct 3, 2019)

The MECC, represented by its Secretary General Dr. Souraya Bechealany, participated in the Warsaw Dialogue for Democracy which was held in Bologna on October 3, 2019, under the motto 'Freedom of Religion or Belief as a Pillar of Democracy’.

7. CONCLUSION

MECC’s successes lie in the joint effort of our local staff and partners that have massively contributed to the cause of the organization. It is because of this cooperation and of past successes, the MECC continues to become stronger; a fact which enables it to yield more results. As such, the faith based organization will continue to thrive and cultivate its strengths to expand its sphere of influence, hoping to mend what was broken in the Middle East and to alleviate the burdens of the stagnation of political dialogue.
