The 19th Amendment

ABOUT

The Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission (WSCC) was formed by Congress to commemorate the 100th anniversary of women's right to vote and the 19th Amendment.

Throughout 2020, the United States is celebrating the centennial of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which secured women's constitutional right to vote. Today, more than 68 million American women vote in elections because of the courageous suffragists who never gave up the fight for equality. This centennial is an unparalleled opportunity to elevate women's history and to commemorate a milestone of American democracy.

Use this toolkit as your guide to commemorating the centennial in your state and community.

LEARN THE HISTORY

THE WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Suffragists began their organized fight for women's equality in 1848 when they demanded the right to vote during the first women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, New York. For the next 72 years, women leaders lobbied, marched, picketed, and protested for the right to the ballot. The U.S. House of Representatives finally approved the "Susan B. Anthony Amendment," which guaranteed women the right to vote, on May 21, 1919. The U.S. Senate followed two weeks later and voted to approve the 19th Amendment on June 4, 1919. The 19th Amendment then went to the states, where it had to be ratified by three-fourths of the then 48 states to be added to the Constitution. Tennessee became the 36th and final state needed to ratify the 19th Amendment on August 18, 1920. On August 26, 1920, the U.S. Secretary of State issued a proclamation declaring the 19th Amendment ratified and officially part of the U.S. Constitution. Today, August 26th is celebrated annually as Women's Equality Day.

KANSAS AND THE 19TH AMENDMENT

RATIFICATION DATE: JUNE 16, 1919

Women first organized and collectively fought for suffrage at the national level in July of 1848. Suffragists such as Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened a meeting of over 300 people in Seneca Falls, New York. In the following decades, women marched, protested, lobbied, and even went to jail. By the 1870s, women pressured Congress to vote on an amendment that would recognize their suffrage rights. This amendment was sometimes known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment and became the 19th Amendment.

The amendment reads:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Although progress on the federal amendment stalled, women also campaigned for changes to state suffrage requirements to win the vote. Kansas was the first state to hold a referendum on women's suffrage in 1867. A referendum is when citizens directly vote on an issue. While the referendum was defeated (leaving Kansas women without the vote), it inspired other western states to hold similar referendums. Kansas eventually recognized a woman's right to vote in local elections in 1887.

Kansas women could still not participate in national elections, yet they were able to vote for town officials. That April, the town of Argonia, Kansas elected the first woman mayor in the United States, Susanna Salter. She did not realize her name was on the ballot until the morning of the election!

In the following decades, Kansas suffragists like Mamie Dillard and Carrie Langston (mother of poet Langston Hughes) worked across white and black communities to promote women's suffrage. Dillard and Langston encouraged other African American women to get involved in promoting suffrage rights. They served as examples of how citizens needed to be inclusive in order to secure the rights of all women.

In 1912, eight years before the 19th Amendment was ratified, Kansas recognized the right of women to vote. Kansas women could now vote in national elections, but not all American women could. In support of the suffrage rights of all American women, Kansas voted to ratify the 19th Amendment on June 16, 1919. By August of 1920, 36 states (including Kansas) ratified the amendment, recognizing women's suffrage rights.

Kansas Places of Women's Suffrage: Salter House

The states played an essential role in the ratification of the 19th Amendment. One Kansas woman who paved the way for female leadership in civic life was Susanna Salter. Born in 1860 in Ohio, Susanna moved with her parents to a farm in Kansas. While attending college, she married Lewis Salter and started a family. Passionate about civic life, Salter joined a chapter of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and became an advocate for women's rights. In 1887, the town of Argonia, Kansas elected Salter the first woman mayor in the United States. Her home is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and is open to the public by appointment.
