ABOUT

The Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission (WSCC) was formed by Congress to commemorate the 100th anniversary of women's right to vote and the 19th Amendment.

Throughout 2020, the United States is celebrating the centennial of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which secured women's constitutional right to vote. Today, more than 68 million American women vote in elections because of the courageous suffragists who never gave up the fight for equality. This centennial is an unparalleled opportunity to elevate women's history and to commemorate a milestone of American democracy.

Use this toolkit as your guide to commemorating the centennial in your state and community.

THE WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Suffragists began their organized fight for women's equality in 1848 when they demanded the right to vote during the first women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, New York. For the next 72 years, women leaders lobbied, marched, picketed, and protested for the right to the ballot. The U.S. House of Representatives finally approved the "Susan B. Anthony Amendment," which guaranteed women the right to vote, on May 21, 1919. The U.S. Senate followed two weeks later and voted to approve the 19th Amendment on June 4, 1919. The 19th Amendment then went to the states, where it had to be ratified by three-fourths of the then 48 states to be added to the Constitution. Tennessee became the 36th and final state needed to ratify the 19th Amendment on August 18, 1920. On August 26, 1920, the U.S. Secretary of State issued a proclamation declaring the 19th Amendment ratified and officially part of the U.S. Constitution. Today, August 26th is celebrated annually as Women's Equality Day.

NEW YORK AND THE 19TH AMENDMENT

RATIFICATION DATE: JUNE 16, 1919

Women first organized and collectively fought for suffrage at the national level in July of 1848. Suffragists such as Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened a meeting of over 300 people in Seneca Falls, New York. In the following decades, women marched, protested, lobbied, and even went to jail. By the 1870s, women pressured Congress to vote on an amendment that would recognize their suffrage rights. This amendment was sometimes known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment and became the 19th Amendment.

The amendment reads:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

New York women were on the front lines in the fight for suffrage. Although she was not in attendance at the Seneca Falls Convention, Susan B. Anthony became one of the best-known campaigners for women's rights, especially the right to vote. When other methods for winning the vote were unsuccessful, Anthony began lobbying for an amendment to the Constitution enfranchising women; it was known as the Susan B. Anthony amendment. Alva Vanderbilt Belmont used her extensive wealth and position in Gilded Age society to advocate with the influential people in her social circle for women's rights. Inspired by the more confrontational tactics of the British suffragettes led by Emmeline Pankhurst and her daughters, Belmont became the primary benefactor of the work of Alice Paul, had participated in demonstrations in England and been imprisoned there. Belmont served as president of the National Woman's Party, founded by Paul.

When Carrie Chapman Catt assumed leadership of the National American Woman Suffrage Association (NAWSA) in 1915, she adopted her "Winning Plan" which involved winning the vote in many more states first to build public support for the constitutional amendment. Securing the vote in New York was a pillar of this strategy. After repeated defeats, New York women won the vote in November 1917.

After decades of arguments for and against women's suffrage, Congress finally approved the 19th Amendment in 1919. After Congress passed the amendment, at least 36 states needed to vote in favor of it for it to become law. This process is called ratification.

On June 16, 1919, New York voted to ratify the Nineteenth Amendment. By August of 1920, 36 states (including New York) ratified the amendment and it became part of the U.S. Constitution. Across the country, the right to vote could not be denied or abridged based on sex.

New York Places of Women's Suffrage: Carnegie Hall

In the years leading up to the passage of the 19th Amendment, Carnegie Hall hosted over two dozen events relating to women's suffrage. Emmeline Pankhurst and Jeannette Rankin both held speeches here promoting women's suffrage. In 1918, the National Woman's Party held a meeting at the hall. The building is a National Historic Landmark and is open for public tours.

Carnegie Hall is an important place in the story of ratification. It is designated as a National Historic Landmark.
