The 19th Amendment

ABOUT

The Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission (WSCC) was formed by Congress to commemorate the 100th anniversary of women's right to vote and the 19th Amendment.

Throughout 2020, the United States is celebrating the centennial of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which secured women's constitutional right to vote. Today, more than 68 million American women vote in elections because of the courageous suffragists who never gave up the fight for equality. This centennial is an unparalleled opportunity to elevate women's history and to commemorate a milestone of American democracy.

Use this toolkit as your guide to commemorating the centennial in your state and community.

LEARN THE HISTORY

THE WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Suffragists began their organized fight for women's equality in 1848 when they demanded the right to vote during the first women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, New York. For the next 72 years, women leaders lobbied, marched, picketed, and protested for the right to the ballot. The U.S. House of Representatives finally approved the "Susan B. Anthony Amendment," which guaranteed women the right to vote, on May 21, 1919. The U.S. Senate followed two weeks later and voted to approve the 19th Amendment on June 4, 1919. The 19th Amendment then went to the states, where it had to be ratified by three-fourths of the then 48 states to be added to the Constitution. Tennessee became the 36th and final state needed to ratify the 19th Amendment on August 18, 1920. On August 26, 1920, the U.S. Secretary of State issued a proclamation declaring the 19th Amendment ratified and officially part of the U.S. Constitution. Today, August 26th is celebrated annually as Women's Equality Day.

OHIO AND THE 19TH AMENDMENT

RATIFICATION DATE: JUNE 16, 1919

Women first organized and collectively fought for suffrage at the national level in July of 1848. Suffragists such as Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened a meeting of over 300 people in Seneca Falls, New York. In the following decades, women marched, protested, lobbied, and even went to jail. By the 1870s, women pressured Congress to vote on an amendment that would recognize their suffrage rights. This amendment was sometimes known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment and became the 19th Amendment.

The amendment reads:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The Seneca Falls Women's Rights meeting inspired other women's rights conventions throughout the country. Two of the earliest were held in Ohio. The Ohio Women's Convention held in April 1850 was the first women's rights convention held outside of New York State and the first statewide women's rights convention; it was attended by about 500 people, many of them anti-slavery activists. The next year, at the Ohio Women's Rights Convention in Akron, Ohio, Sojourner Truth powerfully spoke to the audience about Black women and equality.

Ohio women formed suffrage and equal rights organizations shortly after the Civil War. They won the vote in board of education elections in 1894, but faced many defeats over the years in their efforts to expand suffrage for women. Harriet Taylor Upton, mentored by Susan B. Anthony, became a leading advocate in Ohio for women's suffrage. She worked in statewide campaigns for the vote as well as national efforts to support an amendment to the Constitution enfranchising women. She served as the treasurer for the National American Woman Suffrage Association (NAWSA).

After decades of arguments for and against women's suffrage, Congress finally passed the 19th Amendment in 1919. After Congress approved the 19th Amendment, at least 36 states needed to vote in favor of it for it to become law. This process is called ratification.

On June 16, 1919, Ohio voted to ratify the Nineteenth Amendment. In addition, the legislature also passed a bill ensuring Ohio women's right to vote in the upcoming presidential election in November 1920, in case the amendment was not in effect nationally by then. As it turned out, by August of 1920, 36 states (including Ohio) ratified the amendment and it became part of the U.S. Constitution, ensuring that the right to vote could not be denied based on sex.

Ohio Places of Women's Suffrage: Harriet Taylor Upton House

The states played an essential role in the ratification of the 19th Amendment. One Ohio woman who helped in the fight for suffrage was Harriet Taylor Upton. She was a suffragist from Ohio. The National American Woman Suffrage Association temporarily had its headquarters in her house from 1903 to 1905. The house is a National Historic Landmark and is open for public tours.
