The 19th Amendment

ABOUT

The Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission (WSCC) was formed by Congress to commemorate the 100th anniversary of women's right to vote and the 19th Amendment.

Throughout 2020, the United States is celebrating the centennial of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which secured women's constitutional right to vote. Today, more than 68 million American women vote in elections because of the courageous suffragists who never gave up the fight for equality. This centennial is an unparalleled opportunity to elevate women's history and to commemorate a milestone of American democracy.

Use this toolkit as your guide to commemorating the centennial in your state and community.

LEARN THE HISTORY

THE WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Suffragists began their organized fight for women's equality in 1848 when they demanded the right to vote during the first women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, New York. For the next 72 years, women leaders lobbied, marched, picketed, and protested for the right to the ballot. The U.S. House of Representatives finally approved the "Susan B. Anthony Amendment," which guaranteed women the right to vote, on May 21, 1919. The U.S. Senate followed two weeks later and voted to approve the 19th Amendment on June 4, 1919. The 19th Amendment then went to the states, where it had to be ratified by three-fourths of the then 48 states to be added to the Constitution. Tennessee became the 36th and final state needed to ratify the 19th Amendment on August 18, 1920. On August 26, 1920, the U.S. Secretary of State issued a proclamation declaring the 19th Amendment ratified and officially part of the U.S. Constitution. Today, August 26th is celebrated annually as Women's Equality Day.

UTAH AND THE 19TH AMENDMENT

RATIFICATION DATE: OCTOBER 2, 1919

Women first organized and collectively fought for suffrage at the national level in July of 1848. Suffragists such as Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened a meeting of over 300 people in Seneca Falls, New York. In the following decades, women marched, protested, lobbied, and even went to jail. By the 1870s, women pressured Congress to vote on an amendment that would recognize their suffrage rights. This amendment was sometimes known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment and became the 19th Amendment.

The amendment reads:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Religion played a big role in the fight for women's suffrage in Utah. The territory was home to Mormon communities that practiced polygamy. This means that Mormon men often had several wives. Anti-Mormon politicians believed that recognizing women's suffrage rights would empower women to end the practice of polygamy. For this reason, these politicians supported women's voting rights.

In contrast, many Mormon men believed that if Mormon women had the vote, it would show the country that they were not oppressed by the practice of polygamy. As a result, many Mormon men supported women's suffrage. In 1870, the Utah territory passed legislation officially recognizing women's voting rights.

But in 1887, Utah women lost the right to vote. The Edmunds-Tucker Anti-Polygamy Act, passed by the United States Congress, put restrictions on the practice of polygamy. It also took away women's voting rights in the Utah Territory. Both Mormon and non-Mormon women were upset and formed a number of suffrage organizations.

When the Territory applied for statehood in 1895, women convinced politicians to make women's suffrage part of the new state Constitution. When Utah achieved statehood in January of 1896, women were legally able to vote.

After decades of arguments for and against women's suffrage, Congress finally passed the 19th Amendment in June 1919. After Congress approved the 19th Amendment, at least 36 states needed to vote in favor of it for it to become law. This process is called ratification.

Utah had a long history of supporting women's voting rights and Utahans supported women's suffrage for all. On September 30, 1919 the Utah legislature voted to ratify the 19th Amendment. By August 1920, the required 36 states ratified the 19th Amendment, ensuring that across the country, the right to vote could not be denied based on sex.

Utah Places of Women's Suffrage: Temple Square

In 1870, the Utah territory passed legislation officially recognizing women's suffrage rights. In 1871, Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, leaders of the early suffrage movement, visited the Utah Territory. They wanted to witness women in Utah exercising their right to vote. Anthony and Stanton spoke to Mormon women at the Old Salt Lake Tabernacle in Temple Square. While the building was demolished in the 1870s, the square still exists and is a National Register Historic Landmark District.
