MARY ELLEN KANIA (1931-2018) – SIX SIGNIFICANT CHANGES SHE MADE TO THE SOCIETY

The Cheshire Historical Society was commonly referred to as “Mary Ellen’s House” for at least a decade. Many visitors recall Mary Ellen asking them to be very careful in the Society house museum. Every tour with youngsters included Mary Ellen’s famous words delivered with both of her arms across her chest and hands on opposite shoulders:

“I have to tell you a very important thing. VERY IMPORTANT thing. Everything in this house is old and valuable and fragile. It is very, very important that you not touch anything unless your guide says you can. I know it’s hard. It’s hard for me, too! But you need to do this for me. You need to “touch” with your eyes and with your heart. Look at everything and ask as many questions as you wish but keep your hands folded or in your pockets.

-Mary Ellen Kania speaking to the Doolittle School 3rd Grade School Tour in 2013

It was common to see the children walking on their tours with their arms firmly across their chests as Mary Ellen had instructed them to do.

Mary Ellen was the Society Curator from 2006 to 2015. She brought the “museum” into our Hitchcock-Phillips House Museum. She was passionate about best practices, insisting that collection care be a priority. Clearly a strong believer in life-long learning, Mary Ellen attended numerous seminars to learn more about the best care of our artifacts and documents. Among her many accomplishments at the Society:

• Began to digitize our collection as soon as scanners became available, helping the original “Diggers” (a group organized by Ron Gagliardi to scan our collection).
• Wrote our first Disaster Plan.
• Organized our filing system numerous times.
• Cataloged all of the research books in the Meeting Room.
• Produced a DVD of the house museum that visitors watched prior to their tour.
• Created a Docent Training Program and authored a Docent Information Handbook.

As we were admitted to the StEPs best practices coursework through the American Association for State and Local History (AASLH), Connecticut Humanities (CTH), and the Connecticut League of History Organizations (CLHO), so many of the topics addressed had at least been started at the Society by Mary Ellen.

Mary Ellen devoted hours and hours of volunteer time to the Society. She was strict about keeping the building clean and tidy. She had a certain vision of the building and the many display rooms and she made sure that all volunteers understood this vision and that the museum exhibits needed to be ready for viewing at all times. She would frequently wear a Colonial costume, a flattering cranberry colored dress -- we always wondered if she chose the color because she and her husband, Ed, lived on Cranberry Lane.

She really shined during the tours for children and young adults. Mary Ellen captivated these young audiences who would listen to her with rapt attention.

Mary Ellen Kania was an inspiration to us all. If we are very quiet, we can still hear her greeting the school tours at the front door, in front of the red doors with the green bull’s eye glass windows. You can hear her saying:

Welcome to the Cheshire Historical Society. Look at the number over the door. What number is it? This is not a street number. This is the year this house was built. Everyone say this with me: 1785. The name of the house is the Hitchcock-Phillips House and I’ll tell you about that name when we get inside. I’m going to ask you to come inside but please come in SINGLE FILE, one at a time. You’ll walk all the way down to the back of the house where we have our Meeting Room. There will be chairs for the teachers and adults. The children can sit on the floor and we’ll have a little introduction to the house.

THE TROLLEY BELL WILL ALWAYS RING FOR DR. BOB

At the back entrance of the Meeting Room at the Society there is a brass trolley bell donated by Dr. Robert Chesanow (1935-2018) for our history trolley tours. While these history tours are once a year at best, the trolley bell gets a lot of use from our younger visitors, particularly on our third grade school tours, where the children ring the bell as they exit the building at the end of their tours.

We will miss Dr. Bob, who passed away this past September following a car accident. He was a delightful gentleman, always impeccably dressed, and always ready to dazzle any listener with his conversational acumen. He was a good friend to the Society and he will be missed. Feel free to ring Dr. Bob’s bell anytime you visit the Society.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Society Members,

We were all saddened to hear of the passing of so many good friends, including Mary Ellen Kania. Several of us attended the service for Mary Ellen on January 19 at the Episcopal Church. We heard so many stories celebrating Mary Ellen. We will miss her very much.

I am feeling buoyed up by the success of the Spirits Alive Encore held on February 2nd. I expected we’d have to deal with bad (or typical) February weather. The weather cooperated. The event was extraordinary. I continue to receive feedback from guests who describe this as an amazing event. Many commented on how incredible the inside of the Hitchcock-Phillips House looked, as it had been staged for the event with eight rooms being set up as small theater areas. I can’t thank our volunteer actors and event volunteers enough. They all made magic happen that night! As always, the Society owes a debt of gratitude to the Mulholland and Holtzman families. We would not be the organization we are without your support and the hours and hours of time all you all devote to our Society.

You can contact me directly at cheshirehistory@che.necoxmail.com for more details.

SPIRITS ALIVE ENCORE EVENT ASTONISHES GUESTS

On Saturday night, February 2, the Society had an event like nothing else previously done in our house museum. Joyce Mulholland and Dawn Marchand organized an astonishing event where nine volunteer actors portrayed Cheshire residents who told their story about their lives and the times they lived in. We have had this special Spirits Alive fundraiser for five years, our major fundraiser, in the historic Hillside Cemetery over two nights during the full moon in October. We had sold out our 2018 event by the end of Labor Day Weekend last year and many people complained that they did not have a chance to see the new Spirits perform their tales.

Joyce and Dawn offered to make an encore event, selecting Ground Hog Day as a perfect date (based on the movie of the same name with Bill Murray, where the day repeats). The all-volunteer actors said they would do it.

Laying out the flow of performances was a new challenge. Guests registered in the Shed behind the main building. They entered the backdoor of the Meeting Room and began their tour through eight rooms. Each room had chairs arranged and also needed space for the actors to move around. Joyce and Steve Mulholland brought and borrowed accent lighting as using the overhead fluorescents in the various rooms was not optimal for the Spirit’s performances. Clare Leake donated dozens of black curtains to separate rooms and hallways. Dave Calabro and his brother Mark Calabro set up pop-up tents between the Shed and the backdoor to keep guests protected from the chilly night as we anticipated inclement February weather. Bad weather missed us as the sub-zero Polar Vortex from two days previous was dissipating and our evening’s twenty-three degree weather seemed almost balmy. However, Steve Mulholland might well disagree as he spent almost the entire day and evening outside doing general set up as well as creating the candlelit pathways and directing people from their cars to the entrance being used for the event. One guest asked why he wasn’t wearing a hat and gloves and another guest piped up that Steve never does.

Suddenly it was four o’clock on Saturday afternoon and guests began to arrive. Ready or not, we had an event to hold. The tours were small, only eight people to a tour. The actors said it was an intimate atmosphere. Most actors had to think about keeping their voices lower than they would for an outdoor performance to thirty people. “It’s so much easier not having to project my voice,” Mary Datilvio said. One guest said it was all she could do not to reach out and console the grieving Mother Hitchcock. Several guests had done the outdoor tour in October and came back to hear the Spirits again. People left saying many, many nice things about the tour.

Will we do it again? The actors were very happy with the evening. We expect to see this happen again in the future. There were a few lessons learned at this event but they were minor and many were resolved by the second or third tour group. Being accustomed to managing groups of thirty every fifteen minutes, it was a very different evening to manage groups of eight every twenty minutes. It seemed very calm and quiet in the Shed where Pat Vita did the registration, Cara Luciani did the raffle basket, and Colleen Fitzgerald greeted people and organized the refreshments. Inside the building, we had the Widow Kye return. Angela Jannetty portrayed the 1770 purported witch. Eric Nelson, John and Muluken Marchand, Mitzi and Scott Romano, Phoebe Hall, Ted and Joyce Holtzman, and Judith Mercugliano were inside, performing many tasks such as guiding guests to their next Spirit, managing coats, and promoting the Society.

CHESHIRE: 325 YEARS OLD!

This year celebrates the 325th anniversary of the Town of Cheshire. Events are being planned with the many groups in town. Keep an eye out for these special activities!

FACILITIES UPDATE

I am writing this on what I hope is the coldest day we’ll experience this winter. Today is January 21st, MLK Day. It was below zero when I woke up, with a wind-chill making it feel much lower. Predictably, a pipe burst in the back apartment and Cheshire’s Public Works responded in minutes when we called about the damage. Thankfully the water damage was limited to an area with no museum artifacts. Our old refrigerator got wet but it held up fine.

In spite of the cold, we are doing something extraordinary in the house museum. This is a first. We’re setting up each room for a vignette for the Spirits Alive Encore and this has meant moving a lot of things to accommodate traffic flow and chairs. It gives us an opportunity to try a large fundraiser in February.

We’re waiting out the cold winter weather and looking forward to spring!

WHY WE’RE SPENDING THE WINTER WRITING A STRATEGIC PLAN

There is a lot of competition in our town and in our area for an all-volunteer house museum open for two hours on Sundays. There are a lot of museums, and visitors have limited amounts of free time and interest to visit these many sites.

Part of the Best Practices that were shared during our StEPs program was the need to create a Strategic Plan. We struggle without a systematic process that would help us set an ambition for our Society’s future and determine how to best achieve these goals. A Strategic Plan would help us connect three key areas: our mission, Keeping Cheshire’s History Alive which defines our purpose, our vision, which describes what we want to achieve, and, finally, an action plan, that sets out how we will get there and what tools and resources we’ll need to make this happen.

Similar to having your house appraised by a building inspector, we have been reviewing the many operations, activities, collections, and display areas in our museum. This has been many weeks of volunteer hours as we have moved room-to-room to make these assessments.

Why should we do this?
We are a treasure. Don’t take our word for it.

“Cheshire Historical Society was off-the-charts great.”

Top 10 Treasures from Small Museums by William Hosley, Connecticut Explored, Summer 2016, pg. 15

With a Strategic Plan in place, we can continue to complete the StEPs program as many of the segments include the requirement for such a plan. Additionally, as we apply for grants we are asked if we have a strategic plan. We’re hoping that in a few more months we will have our plan.

There are roughly 11,000 Starbucks locations in the United States, and about 14,000 McDonald’s restaurants. But combined, the two chains don’t come close to the number of museums in the U.S., which stands at a whopping 35,000. This statistic is taken from the Museum Universe Data File (MUDF), compiled by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS). That file of “known museums in the United States” encompasses some 35,144 institutions, making this statistic literally true … albeit for a much more expansive definition of “museum” than most laypeople would employ.

www.snopes.com/fact-check/a-museum-on-every-corner/
When visitors enter the Parlor, our guides tell the story of the two granddaughters of Rufus Hitchcock, Maria Scoville Clark Phillips (Mrs. Andrew Wheeler Phillips) born in 1823, and her younger sister, Lucretia Hitchcock Clark born in 1826. These were women of a “certain age,” in 1890. They would have been in their twenties during the Civil War and that might have been the most influential and impactful period of their lives, especially as they would have seen the troops parading on the Church Green in front of their home.

These women would have watched all of Cheshire from their Parlor windows throughout their lives. What did they see? What did the Green look like in their century? What’s going on in Cheshire? In 1890, they are only in Cheshire during the summer months as their childhood home is now a summer residence. The rest of the year they are in New Haven. What was life in the city like for these country girls? The Munson Hotel next door is likely full with summer visitors avoiding the heat of the New Haven city.

We are working on our Strategic Plan and our volunteers have sat in each room and critiqued what they have seen as if we were all first-time visitors. Overall, we’d give the Society an “A” for our artifacts and exhibits.

We have five interpreted rooms to date: The Parlor (1890), Dining Room (1860), Keeping Room (1810), the Craig Bedroom (1865), and the Cheshire Academy Dormitory Room (1956). These rooms should be spaces designed for visitors to react and reflect on what they see – putting our guests in a moment in time and providing a sense of place captured in the room they have entered.

Tours start with our red front double doors with early “arrow” hinges and latch and original bull’s eye glass panes that show pontil marks (the rough circular scar on old blown glass which is caused when the glass is broken from the pontil). The old-fashioned latch is something visitors find easy enough to enter but a bit tricky to operate when they want to leave. The front vestibule, a cheerful space with finely carved details on the stairs to the second floor, allows access to visitors to go to the left to the Parlor, to the right to the Dining Room, or they can go directly up the stairs. All visitors go to the left. There is some strange instinct or design (or perhaps it’s just the way the front door opens) that directs everyone to the Parlor.

What do our current visitors see as they enter the sisters’ parlor? There is a stunning portrait of Amasa Hitchcock over the fireplace. He was one of Cheshire's two Civil War Naval heroes. (The other was Admiral Andrew Hull Foote). He was the grandson of Rufus Hitchcock's cousin and business partner. Two beautiful Staffordshire pieces are on either side of George and Martha Washington (Circa 1880). Typical of fireplace walls in houses of this period, ours is quite fine with upright pilasters and dentils along the top.

Visitors are intrigued by the Aaron Willard banjo clock (Boston, early 1800s). The Willard Brothers’ clocks were famous. Brother Simon Willard invented the first banjo clock in 1802. We also display an advertisement for these clocks.

We have many reverse paintings in our collection. Reverse painting on glass is an art form consisting of applying paint to a piece of glass and then viewing the image by turning the glass over and looking through the glass at the image. The Parlor boasts a reverse painting of "Constitution-Guerriere battle," the first naval battle in the War of 1812. The British frigate "Guerriere" surrendered and soon sank, a major American victory. The Constitution was commanded by Captain Isaac Hull, who was born in Derby, CT in 1773.

One intriguing portrait, known only as “Grandma,” displays a dour older woman in a lace cap. Her identity is unknown in this American folk art piece (circa 1800), however she seems to view everything around her with a soured eye.

Another notable portrait is of the twenty-five year old Lt. Edward A. Doolittle of Cheshire, who died while serving with the 20th Conn. Volunteers in Stevenson, AL, in 1863. This was painted from an earlier photograph taken at J. G. Steiger, Chapel Street, New Haven and was extensively restored in 2007.

Two photos display Benaja Beadle (1815-1890) and his son, William Beadle (1837-1863). Benaja was the late Curator Emeritus Edgar Johnson's great grandfather. Benaja operated a wagon and blacksmith shop at comer of Main Street and Highland Avenue. He married Julia Ann Hitchcock, a cousin of the Hitchcocks who lived in this house.

Benaja and Julia Ann’s son, William, served in Company A, 20th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, along with other Cheshire men. He died of wounds received in battle. His name is inscribed on the Civil War Monument on the green.

The most prominent piece of furniture is the high boy, a Queen Anne style in cherry wood; bonnet top, fine wide dovetailing in the graduated drawers. This was made by craftsmen in the Connecticut River Valley, probably in Wethersfield, during the Revolutionary period and was a gift of Miss Mary Hotchkiss.
Tucked in the corner is a Beethoven Golden-Toned Parlor Organ made by the Beethoven Organ Co. (est. 1880) and was donated by Robert and Dorothy Sansonetti of Cheshire. It is a reed organ, also called a parlor organ, pump organ, cabinet organ, or cottage organ. It generates sound by using free metal reeds. These organs were cheaper and more portable than pipe organs and were widely used in smaller churches and in private homes in the late 19th century. In the early 1890s, Howard “Pop” Durand, who would live across the street from the Hitchcock-Phillips House a few years later, was selling organs such as this in New Haven.

Each of our interpreted rooms is as rich in history and detail as the Parlor. As we work on the interpretive stories for these rooms, we need to create a factual, historical narrative to share in future docent trainings. Our Strategic Plan meetings have come up with a number of ideas to improve the visitor experience. Our docents and tour guides generally have only a few minutes to convey as much of the information you’ve read above to our guests and visitors. What should they choose to share? What is the most notable or would make the best impression of the Parlor Room display? What should a visitor take away from this room? What interaction can a guide have with a visitor to make the experience more meaningful? How can we incorporate technology, such as using cell phones or flat screens, to showcase or highlight our displays?

We would be grateful for any members who might want to stop by on a Sunday afternoon and pull up a chair in any of these interpreted spaces. Let your imagination run a little bit and share your thoughts.

Note: The historical facts in this article are from Mary Ellen Kania’s The Cheshire Historical Society Hitchcock-Phillips House Information for Guides (2012)

Another Interpreted Room on the First Floor?
Ted Holtzman has attended almost every Strategic Plan meeting and has done a fine job. Ted has been giving tours at the Society for several years, including the third grade school tours. He shared that he tells the story of the Hitchcock Family, of how people would have lived their lives in 1785 and beyond. He finds the first floor interpreted rooms (the Parlor, Dining Room, and Keeping Room) are more robust for visitor experience as he can describe family life in a way that relates to our guests. “I go from an interpreted space to an interpreted space to an interpreted space…and then I am here.” Ted gestured to the Exhibit Room. “I would like to see this room become the Domestic Industry Room, meaning a room that would complement the Keeping Room and show how the business of the home was conducted.” We could uncover the fireplace behind the paneled wall – something the Board talks about frequently. We could have hands-on activities for guests as this could be a room of replicas that can be handled and used. Ted, thank you for sharing your suggestions! These are the kinds of ideas we are seeking as we develop our Strategic Plan.

WWII REENACTMENT AT THE SOCIETY ON JUNE 28 & 29

We are planning on having a WWII Reenactment on the Society grounds on Friday afternoon, June 28, through Saturday afternoon, June 29th. Commander Lewis Merritt of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion visited the Society and offered to have his group do an overnight encampment. The Society did something similar in 2015 when we had a Civil War Reenactment and it was very popular. Commander Merritt explained that the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion was an airborne infantry battalion of the Canadian Army formed in July 1942 during the Second World War. It served in North West Europe, landing in Normandy during Operation Tonga, in conjunction with the D-Day landings of 6 June 1944 and in the airborne assault crossing of the River Rhine, Operation Varsity, in March 1945. After the end of hostilities in Europe, the battalion was returned to Canada where it was disbanded on 30 September 1945. Commander Merritt would plan to bring a Quad Four Military Vehicle that will be on display in the back of the property. The group would offer military talks through the day on Saturday. There are a number of details to attend to before we can confirm this event, but we are excited to be able to consider this worthy event.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR GENEROSITY

Thank you for thinking of the Cheshire Historical Society. So many of you included a little extra donation with your annual membership renewal. We are grateful to you for that extra contribution. We are also grateful to those of you who were able to include corporate matching for donations and recognition of volunteer service. We received two significant donations to date in memory of Mary Ellen Kania who gave countless hours of volunteer time and changed the face of the Cheshire Historical Society for the better. We received $400 in Door Donations since September. We very much appreciate this from our visitors and researchers. Note that we are very happy to have those jars, boxes and other containers of pennies and other loose change you have at home. We’ll happily sort them and roll them up and add to our donation jar. As Member Eigil Wiium said, these are Pennies from Heaven. (Contributions made from September 13, 2018 to February 5, 2019.)

Altogether, we received $4,085 in donations from our members between September 12, 2018 and February 5, 2019. Our VERY SPECIAL THANKS to:

- Ed and Ann Kania Foundation - In Memory of Mary Ellen Kania ($2,500)
- Voya Financial Advisors Volunteer Service Award for Mitzi Romano ($750)
- The Quinn Family - In Memory of Mary Ellen Kania ($250)

MEMBERSHIP RENEWAL – YES, IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

Dear Cheshire Historical Society Members,

I hope you are still enjoying the afterglow of our Christmas Holiday Open House at the Hitchcock-Phillips House in December. I enjoyed myself immensely, and I hope you did too. I still can’t thank Joyce Mulholland and Joyce Holtzman enough for all of their creative hard work in orchestrating the day. They made our Meeting Room look amazing. Thanks also to the Suburban Garden Club. They made the entire first floor and entrance look even more amazing. The impressive flower display in the center of the Meeting Room was done by Ginny Donovan. We had a beautiful choral presentation by Lori Fine’s Cheshire Voice. And thanks always to my husband, Dave Calabro, for helping to put together the Gingerbread House Village of the Church Green in the Dining Room. It was our best Christmas Party ever and we had record attendance.

Now 2018 is in the books. We have a lot of plans for 2019 with improvements to our collections displays, implementing more youth programs, the completion of our first Strategic Plan, and an even better (can that be possible?) Spirits Alive Tour on October 11 & 12, just to name a few goals and activities coming up this year.

Enclosed is your membership dues billing for FY 2019. As we ask every year, please be generous in supporting the Cheshire Historical Society. We are a 501(c)3 and we so need your financial support every year to pay the cost of our operating expenses (not sexy, but did you know that the natural gas to heat the building is over $800 a month in the winter months and the electricity to keep the heat and humidity down for our collections is over $350 a month in the hot summer months…which is why I particularly like the spring and fall months). We have our twice-a-year newsletter, our many educational outreach events, and a schedule of improvements and betterments for the museum. It is well worth keeping Cheshire’s history alive and we do our very best in this regard – always with a view towards keeping expenses as low as possible. Please renew your membership on line at www.cheshirehistory.org or send your check, at your earliest convenience. Thanks so much for your on-going financial support. We promise to make good use of your contributions.

Best wishes,

Diane Calabro, Society President
