Dear Members and Friends of the Fellowship,

Once again our annual newsletter arrives, brimming with news of the Artists’ Fellowship and its members.

It is amazing that in 1859 an ad hoc group of artists and businessmen volunteered to provide proper burials for dead-broke artists. Even more amazing is its growth into a 159-year-old non-profit charitable foundation, with its endowment at an all time high that has helped 54 artists this past year with over $250,000. In a year rife with hurricanes, storms and catastrophic wild fires, artists from the Virgin Islands, Florida and California were helped by the Fellowship.

Last year’s awards dinner at the National Arts Club and its silent auction were unqualified financial successes. This evening is known for its warmth and bonhomie when the membership and its family of friends reconnect, and this tradition continued with the general consensus being that a good time was had by all.

It didn’t hurt the special nature of the evening that our very special honorees were artist Sigmund Abeles and the New York Foundation for the Arts. Ex-officio Fellowship President Wende Caporale-Greene introduced Mr. Abeles. His acceptance speech for the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal was a moving description of an artist’s life lived to the fullest. Artist and NYFA Chairman of the Board Dr. Judith Brodsky was introduced by artist Golnar Adili and Executive Director Michael Royce. Ms. Adili spoke of the important support she had received from NYFAs mentoring program, and Mr. Royce spoke of NYFAs expanding aid and educational programs to artists of all endeavors. Dr. Brodsky accepted our Gari Melchers Memorial Medal Award and spoke of the rare missions our foundations have in common: the giving to individual artists and the real necessity of continuing and expanding this work.

Last year’s income was almost $300,000. For the first time in memory, our endowment was untouched by our administrative expenses, which were covered by earned income and donations. This was the result of the hard work, expertise and generosity of our treasurer Pam Singleton, along with the continued grants, bequests and donations from our members and friends. I thank those members who, when paying their dues, add that much appreciated extra donation year after year. My sincere thanks to the Board of Trustees for the work they do at the monthly meetings and for their dedication and steadfast determination. When the letters become grim, it is their compassion and generosity that truly stands out.

Please Save This Date: Monday October 22, for our Annual Awards Dinner at the National Arts Club. Invitations will follow soon. Come and celebrate this year’s honorees Babette Bloch, Marc Mellon, Brookgreen Gardens and its VP and Curator, Robin Salmon, as we celebrate our 159th year.

In true Fellowship,

Charles Yoder, President
Artists’ Fellowship, Inc.
The Artists’ Fellowship is delighted that this year’s Gari Melchers Memorial Medal will be accepted by Brookgreen Gardens and its VP and Curator, Robin Salmon. Opened in 1932, it is the country’s first and largest outdoor collection of figurative sculpture by American artists in the world. Located in Murrells Inlet, SC, its breathtaking 9,100 acres include their renowned sculpture collection, formal botanical gardens, sculpture studios, multiple indoor galleries, a research center, the Lowcountry Center and Trail, and a zoo and boat ride highlighting the local flora, fauna and history.

Purchased by philanthropist Archer Milton Huntington and his wife, sculptor Anna Hyatt Huntington, it was originally planned as a showcase for her sculpture, but its scope quickly broadened to include over 1400 sculptures displayed in the Archer and Anne Hyatt Huntington Sculpture Garden. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, Brookgreen Gardens is also designated as a National Historic Landmark.

Accepting the Melchers Award for Brookgreen Gardens will be its President and CEO Page Kiniry. Ms. Kiniry has previously served very successful tenures as Executive Director at the Virginia Living Museum, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science and the VIMS Foundation in Gloucester Point, VA. She has served as a Peer Reviewer for the Institute of Museum and Library Services, on the Board of Directors of the Chesapeake Conservancy and as a trustee of Walsingham Academy.

Also accepting the Melchers Award, in recognition of her 43 years of service to Brookgreen Gardens and the figurative sculpture community across America, will be Robin Salmon, a guiding force in implementing the Gardens’ mission. As its VP of Collections and Curator of Sculpture, she oversees acquisitions, exhibition and conservation while directing the activities of the Carroll A. Campbell, Jr. Center for American Sculpture. Each year, nationally known artists are brought in to create, teach and lecture. Ms. Salmon has stated that “One of the best aspects of my job has been the opportunity to develop long-term relationships, professionally and personally, with sculptors and painters.”

As an elected member of the National Sculpture Society, she serves on its board of directors and the editorial board of its magazine Sculpture Review. In 2007, she received their House Award for outstanding service to American figurative sculpture. In 2005 she received the inaugural Brookgreen Gardens Culture Award. Nationally known for her knowledge of American art and outdoor sculpture conservancy, she is the author of five books on Brookgreen Gardens, has co-authored seven more and written innumerable published essays and articles. She is currently working on a biography and catalogue raisonné of sculptor Anna Hyatt Huntington.

The Gari Melchers Memorial Medal is “awarded to a person or organization that has materially furthered the interest of the profession of the fine arts.” Brookgreen Gardens and Robin Salmon perfectly fit these criteria.
It is with great pleasure that the Artists’ Fellowship announces that Babette Bloch and Marc Mellon will accept the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal at the 2018 Annual Awards Dinner.

It is not unique that some honorees of this medal have been members of the Fellowship, nor that a husband and wife have been honored at the same time. What is unique about this year’s recipients is the length and breadth of their service to the Fellowship. For a combined sixty-eight years they have been Fellowship members and for a combined twenty years served as Presidents of the Fellowship. While pursuing their very active art careers, they continue to volunteer countless hours to the Board of Trustees and its mission as ex officio Presidents and use their constant travels to act as good will ambassadors for the Fellowship.

Babette Bloch’s stainless steel sculptures have made use of the pioneering technologies of laser and water jet-cutting. Drawing on several traditions in American art, her works touch on Modernist abstraction, the cut outs and collage found in Pop art, and the long-standing practice of story telling in art. Bloch’s public monuments and limited edition sculptures are in numerous private and public collections in America and Europe, including her four 9’ high sculptures for the Lowcountry Trail at Brookgreen Gardens; Orlando Museum of Art, Orlando, FL; Fort Wayne Museum of Art, Fort Wayne, IN; Mattatuck Museum of Art, Waterbury, CT and Montefiore Hospital, NY. She is represented in galleries in America and Europe.

Marc Mellon is one of America’s foremost representational sculptors and medalists. He is well known for his portrait busts, commemorative statues and bronze figures in motion. He has been creating dance bronzes for over 40 years, currently collaboratively with elite dancers from American Ballet Theatre. His many iconic sports bronzes include the annual NBA MVP Trophy and have honored a Who’s Who in athletes from Mickey Mantle, Chris Evert through Steph Curry and Lebron James. His portraits are of some of the preeminent people of our time, including Pope John Paul II, Tom Wolfe, Elie Wiesel, George H.W. Bush and Barack Obama. Mellon’s museum collections include the Smithsonian Institution’s National Portrait Gallery, the Smithsonian American Museum of Art, the British Museum, and the Vatican. He has works on over 40 university and medical center campuses across America.

Add to this mix two sculptors who have lived and worked under the same roof while raising a family and have still forged two viable careers and you have something very special. Take into account their continued devotion to the Artists’ Fellowship and that they still have a sense of humor and you have something that is truly unique.

The Clinedinst Medal is awarded for the achievement of exceptional artistic merit and commemorates dedication to the fundamental and traditional principles of Art, interest in one’s fellow artists and devotion to the Fellowship. This is a perfect description of this year’s honorees Babette Bloch and Marc Mellon.

The Annual Awards Dinner took place on October 23, 2017 at the National Arts Club in New York City. Gathered together for this popular event, 170 members and friends enjoyed a convivial cocktail hour. As they moved into the Grand Gallery, they were presented with elegantly appointed tables with lovely flower arrangements provided by AF Treasurer Pam Singleton.

President of the Artists’ Fellowship Charlie Yoder welcomed everyone to the Annual Awards Dinner. He pointed out the beautiful Morton Kaish exhibit surrounding them. Morton, a longtime Fellowship Trustee, was present, and the crowd honored him with a spontaneous round of applause. Charlie welcomed the honorees Dr. Judith Brodsky of New York Foundation for the Arts, its Executive Director Michael Royce and Sigmund Abeles and his family. In attendance were past recipients of the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal, Daniel Greene, Richard Haas, Morton Kaish, Everett Raymond Kinstler and Bruno Lucchesi, as well as Kathy Hayes, widow of recipient David Levine. Past Gari Melchers Memorial Medal honorees included Everett Raymond Kinstler and Pam Singleton. Organizations awarded the Melchers Medal were the Art Students League, represented by faculty and friends; the Salmagundi Club, represented by its President Robert Pillsbury and Chairman Tim Newton; The Pastel Society of America, represented by President Jimmy Wright and members. Many guests were members of the previously honored National Arts Club and the National Academy of Design, including its former director Annette Blaugrund. In attendance were five former AF Presidents: Everett Raymond Kinstler, Marc Mellon, Robert Seyffert, Babette Bloch and Wende Caporale-Greene.

Charlie thanked Director Terry Brown for his dedication and administrative acumen in streamlining the Fellowship’s operation. He praised the new office Administrator Tina Summerlin for her quick assimilation into the Fellowship’s routine. The Dinner Committee Chair, Trustee Bonnie Yousuf, did a great job working with the professional and friendly staff of the National Arts Club. Chris Nunnally, General Manager from the Salmagundi Club, generously volunteered his time and expertise to supervise the Silent Auction. Behind the scenes installation and overseeing the Silent Auction were Jonathan Harding, Babette Bloch, Tina Summerlin, Marilyn Freidman and Yutien Chang. The Fellowship was grateful for the sponsorship of Jack Richeson and Nora Lavori. Charlie announced that all the items in the Silent Auction were 100% donated by the Board of Trustees. “Not only do they talk the talk, but they also walk the walk,” he stated, urging those present “to bid early and bid often.” He then asked the Board to stand and be recognized, and they were thanked with loud applause.
The presentations began with the first speaker being Golnar Adili for the New York Foundation for the Arts. A mixed media artist from Iran living in New York, she called NYFA “my artistic family” and spoke of how they supported her with emergency grants and career advice.

Executive Director Michael Royce thanked the Fellowship for its years of aid and for being a role model for other artist service organizations. His hope was that NYFA would become a source fulfilling all the needs of all artists. Introducing Dr. Judith Brodsky, he spoke of her artistic career, of the print center she had founded at Rutgers and of her constant pushing against the status quo and the positive impact she has had in being as inclusive of all artists as possible. She accepted the Gari Melchers Memorial Medal on behalf of the New York Foundation for the Arts and described the two foundations’ missions as rarities in the art world today. She said that most art aid goes to groups like orchestras or museums while NYFA and AF support individual artists. Noting that NYFA was approaching its 50th anniversary, she said the Fellowship would remain an inspiration.

Director Terry Brown presented an address emphasizing the Fellowship’s efficiency, speed in taking action, ability to adjust to different situations and its mindfulness of its past history that informed its present mission, citing as an example the Century Association’s recent exhibition about the Fellowship’s history, researched and assembled with the Fellowship’s Historian Jonathan Harding.

Wende Caporale-Greene, ex-officio Fellowship President, introduced the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal honoree: artist, etcher and sculptor Sigmund Abeles. Meeting Sig at an exhibit, she was astounded by the depth and diversity of his work, calling him “a humanist with a social consciousness.” She listed the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the Metropolitan, the British Museum, the Whitney and Brookgreen Gardens who own his artwork. She told of his memberships in the National Academy of Design, the Pastel Society of America Hall of Fame and the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

On accepting the medal, Sig, a longtime member of the Fellowship, praised its years of relief and assistance. Calling the Fellowship “pure, honest and effective,” he remarked, “Such all good things are becoming more and more a rarity.” He called his “lady friend” Nora Lavori his “muse” and thanked her, his children, and various relatives and friends who were in attendance. He stated that “Drawing was the core of his art” and “a lifelong exercise in honesty. He spoke of his birth in 1934 in Sheepshead Bay, his conservative Jewish family and the separation of his parents, which led to his and his mother’s move to Myrtle Beach, SC. There his lifelong love of horses began with a job exercising and “hot walking” race horses. His earliest art influences were Life Magazine and the nearby Brookgreen Gardens, where his sculpture is now in its collection. Determined to be an artist despite the fears of his mother, he entered the University of South Carolina majoring in pre-med with a minor in art. But he was soon at the Art Students League and then at Showhegan and then into an MFA cont’d on p.16
Ralph Acosta has been happily accepted, once again, to the International Marine Art Exhibition at the Maritime Gallery at Mystic Seaport. He also participated in the plein air program on the grounds of Mystic Seaport in June, and is excited about his new website, acosta-r.com. Kathy Anderson is thrilled to be elected a master signature member of Oil Painters of America, and traveled to Steamboat Springs, CO to receive her certificate. Artist/writer Betsy Ashton’s solo exhibition of her painted portraits and stories of today’s immigrants opened May 17, 2018 as part of the Long Island City Arts Open Festival. Portraits of Immigrants: Unseen Faces, Untold Stories was exhibited through June 14th and is set to travel to other venues around the country. Episcopal Journal and Fine Art Connoisseur have both featured Ashton’s project in spring issues. Judith Barcroft recently acted in Rosemary and Time at the Paradise Factory Theater in New York. She is currently showing her spiritual art at the Church of Heavenly Rest, and is commissioned to do a piece based on Bible verses for Spark and Echo. Kathleen Bartoletti participated in the National Society of Painters in Casein and Acrylic Annual Exhibition at the Salmagundi Club in New York in June 2018. In July and August, she will have a solo exhibition of paintings on the Art Wall at the Closter Public Library in Closter, NJ. Two venues are showing the collaborative work of Hugo Bastidas and Elizabeth Demaray titled, Endangered Species Recipe Book, at Wheaton Center for the Arts, Glassboro, NJ, and Zagras Art Space, Berlin, Germany. Hugo also will have work at CITYarts Mural Project, In the Footsteps of Alexander Hamilton, Hamilton Playground, Harlem, NY; in September, NoWallAtALL show at the Gallery 55 Space, Perth Amboy, NJ; in June, Water Show, The Century Association, NY. In July, he attended a residency and installed charcoal drawings titled, What Appears to Be, at Maison Verte in Marnay sur Seine, France. Annette Blaugrund, Ph.D., celebrates her most recent publication, The Way Back: the Paintings of George A. Weymouth, NY, published by Rizzoli/Skira and the Brandywine River Museum of Art. This accompanied an exhibition shown at the Museum from January through June 2018. She also gave two lectures about the artist at the Brandywine River Museum of Art in Chadds Ford, PA, and a lecture about the history of the American frame industry at the New Britain Museum of American Art. Babette Bloch’s Magna Magnolias sculpture was featured in Fine Art Connoisseur’s spring issue. She is currently previewing works from her newest series Regeneration/Reflection at venues across the country, working towards a major exhibition for 2020. Martha Bloom is teaching a new class, Collage and Assemblage, at the new New York School of the Arts, NY, to add to her experimental Printmaking course there. Bloom’s Assemblage collage transfer was in the Art Students League Start UP auction—an extravaganza celebrating ASL’s 125th year held on May 11, 2018. It was included in a special exhibition of instructor and permanent collection work. Edith Rae Brown, Artist Member of The National Arts Club, exhibited her encaustic painting Reawaken What is Lost, 30” H x 40” W, in the 119th Annual Exhibiting Artist Members Exhibition, March 2018. Terry Brown continues to teach the History of American Illustration. He is now at the Lyme Academy College of Fine Arts/University of New Haven. He presented a lecture at the Norman Rockwell Museum on “The Pulp Magazines of the ’30s” in March 2018.

Michael Budden’s recent awards include: American Artists Professional League Celebrating the Spirit of America, Members Only Online Exhibition, Theme/Meaning Award and Philadelphia Sketch Club, Best Landscape Award in the 155th Annual Exhibition of Small Paintings. His art was included in the 2018 Spring Auctions and Members Exhibition at the Salmagundi Club. Michele Byrne received two awards for her plein air work in the spring: “Best Use of Light” at the Wayne Plein Air in Philadelphia and “The Spirit of Atlanta” Award at the Olmsted Plein Air Invitational. She curated a group exhibition, Influence & Inspiration, at the Blue Hill Art & Cultural Center, Pearl River, NY. Gary Lawrence Sussman’s 22-ton marble and bronze monument honoring Pete Seeger was unveiled in May 2018 at the Puffin Foundation, Teaneck, NJ, where it is installed at the entrance to the Teaneck Creek Conservancy. The sculpture is called The Pete Seeger Monument and consists of a portrait of Seeger and carved high and low reliefs of marching protestors. The entire project, from inception to installation, took about 2.5 years and all work from beginning to end was done by the sculptor. An exhibition and a documentary film about the project, If I Had a Hammer: A Monument to Pete, by Kit Lukas will be on view at the Puffin Foundation. Kay WalkingStick’s traveling retrospective was on view at the Montclair Museum in NJ from February 3–June 17, 2018. It was nicely reviewed in both the Star Ledger and Bergen Evening Record newspapers. The Newark Museum bought a piece from 1971; she was gratified to know that her older art work still makes an impact on viewers. Jessica Weber recently exhibited one of her Magic Boxes at the Amateur Artists exhibition at The Century Association, where she is a member. In her capacity as principal of Jessica Weber Design, Inc., she and her firm recently rebranded the Authors Guild and the Artists Guild Foundation logos. On February 16, 2018, Sharon Way-Howard was invited to give a lecture/demo on the history of watercolor along with a watercolor demo at the Reboli Center for Art & History in Stony Brook, NY. In conjunction with this, five of Sharon’s watercolors were chosen for the concurrent Watercolors show, which ran until the end of April 2018. Elaine Wechsler continues as an art consultant and private dealer, now concentrating on artists’ estates. She works with clients in all phases of handling art estates. Dr. Richard Whitney was named a Finalist in the Art Renewal Center 2017 International Salon Competition for his portrait, Laurie and Kilty. The state of NH recently presented him with the Lotte Jacobi Living Treasure Award, the 15th given since 1980. He was also awarded a Lifetime Achievement Award from Who’s Who in America and will be listed in the 2018 edition of Who’s Who in the World. Jessica Daryl Winer curated Collective Memory, a group show of artist friends (including AF board members Babette Bloch and Marc Mellon) at the Equity Gallery in New York, May 23–July 7, 2018. Her new paintings about music were exhibited at the Harmon-Meek Gallery in Naples, FL, January 2018. Nine works by Deborah Winiarski will be included in a seven-person exhibition at the Pelham Art Center from September 14th through October, 2018. The show, entitled Waxing Poetic, will feature various work by artists working in the medium of encaustic. Painter Dmitri Wright’s recent exhibits include Opaline, a group show at the Sorelle Gallery in New Canaan, and a 50-year retrospective on his career An Artist for All Seasons in 2017 at the Mattatuck Museum, Waterbury, CT. Jimmy Wright’s paintings were on view in Terribly Vulnerable and Terribly
Hard, curated by Ashton Cooper at Cooper Cole Gallery, Toronto this last spring. His works on paper were included in the 2018 National Arts Club Drawing Invitational. Corbett vs. Dempsey, Chicago, presented his painted stoneware sculpture, Mrs. French, in Small Sculpture, a group exhibition. The Whitney Museum acquired three works by the late 1980’s artist, Arch Connelly for its permanent collection. These were chosen by the Museum curators from Jimmy’s private collection. His archive of Connelly’s correspondence and ephemera was acquired by the Whitney’s Research Resources to secure the legacy of the artist lost to AIDS in 1992.

The Board of Trustees of the Art Institute of Chicago officially accepted Jimmy’s gift of Chip, a nationally exhibited Connelly sculpture, for the Museum’s permanent collection of contemporary art. In 2018, Charles Yoder had two solo exhibitions. WoodWork, a survey of his woodland scenes, old and new, opened at Ille Arts in Amagansett, NY and ran June 23-July 16. Size Matters, an exhibit of large scale landscapes, will open at The Atelier at Flowerfield in St. James, NY on September 15 and will close on November 8. Joyce Zeller was honored by the Catharine Lorillard Wolfe Art Club at their Annual Open Juried Exhibition in January, 2018.

The Board of Trustees thanks Terry Brown for his years of service and dedication to the Artists’ Fellowship, and for his hard work during his tenure as our Director. His longtime understanding of the workings of the Fellowship, combined with his exceptional organizational skills, were invaluable assets that resulted in a more cohesive and functional operation. We wish him the best in all his future endeavors.

The July/August issue of Fine Art Connoisseur Magazine has an excellent article about Artists’ Fellowship. Initiated by Director Terry Brown with Peter Trippi, its Editor-in-Chief, the in-depth essay covering our history to the present day was written by our Historian, Jonathan Harding. Many thanks to them all for making this happen.

program at Columbia University. Graduation was swiftly followed by being drafted and service in Germany. His return to the States was followed by a succession of teaching jobs while pursuing his art. His etching Self Portrait with Cats, exhibited in a Whitney Annual, went to the collection of MOMA. He spent an NEA-funded sabbatical making anti-Vietnam prints. Taking a job teaching at the University of New Hampshire allowed him to fulfill two life-long wishes: gardening and horses.

Remembering that favorite teachers and friends Edwin Dickinson, Isabel Bishop, Jack Levine and Sidney Simon had been awarded this medal meant a lot to him. Being included was “stunning and unreal.” He thanked Nora for their twenty years together and hoped for “more years to live, love and keep on drawing.” The audience rose as one with a standing ovation.

Charlie’s closing remarks were not only about the miracle of the Artists’ Fellowship’s continued existence but that it thrived as well. The endowment was now up to $5,500,000, and $250,000 had been given to 50 artists in the past year. He reminded everyone that the Fellowship is a small charity with a large impact. Thanking everyone for the hard work and support, he ended the evening by saying, “Go in true Fellowship.”
