Acknowledgements

I am indebted to those who have consulted on this Catechism and provided feedback as they have used it with their own kids or at their churches, including Paul Kaiser, Joseph Jaco and the men of New Covenant Baptist Church NorCal, Larry Dolendi, and my number-one encourager, my wife Aliza. I pray this resource will continue to bless believers and their children for many years to come.

A Word to the Kiddos

Welcome, Catakids! Now, I know what you're thinking: "Just what exactly is a Catakid? Well, a long loooooong time ago--way back even before your mommy or daddy were even alive! I know, it's hard to believe such a long-ago time even existed, but trust me, it did--a super long time ago, a person who was a new follower of Jesus was called a "Catechumen" (ka-te-kyu-men).

Catechumens were taught by their pastors and church leaders all about what it means to be a Christian, what the Bible teaches, and how to follow Jesus. Today we don't really use the word "Catechumen" all that much. Some friends of mine came up with the name "Catakids" instead, and I really liked it!

So that is why I said, "Welcome, Catakids!" A Catakid is a little boy or girl who is going on an adventure, through the Bible and into God's world, in order to discover how awesome God is, how much he loves us and how we may live for him--and with him--forever!

Now, a Word to the Parents

Parents, here's what you need to know about the New Covenant Catechism for Little Ones (AKA Catakids!).

GOALS

- To create a religious primer to help parents teach their young children the essential and primary doctrines of biblical Christianity, in the hope that the Lord will use it as a means to bring our children to repentance and faith in Christ Jesus, and equip them to walk in the Spirit and love the Lord their God with their whole selves.
- To lay out a comprehensive overview of the Christian worldview that is in accord with what Scripture teaches.
- As much as possible, to correct some of the errors that exist in children's catechisms.
- To do it all in 100 questions.

RATIONALE

I have been catechizing my children since the spring of 2014, starting with my son Jakob, when he was two. I searched high and low for an age appropriate, theologically sound catechism, and found some that were very good. However, the ones I found were problematic in at least one of three ways:

1. They were mostly from a Covenant Theological (CT) background, and I ran into problems when they got to some of the CT distinctives (such as the Christian's relationship to the Ten Commandments, the supposed extra-biblical covenants, etc.).
2. They were theologically in agreement with my beliefs, but they were aimed at adults and not age appropriate for young children.
3. They were antiquated in their language.

With Catakids/The New Covenant Catechism for Little Ones, I want to draw on what's excellent in the old catechisms while making adjustments to fit what I believe to be the more biblical interpretive strategy of New Covenant Theology.

THEOLOGICAL DISTINCTIVES

The author believes the Bible to be the inerrant, infallible and sufficient word of God. I do not consider myself confessional, but I intended this document to be in agreement with the 1644/1646

As the title indicates, Catakids/New Covenant Catechism for Little Ones is in line with New Covenant Theology, which some have called a midpoint between Covenantalism on one side and Dispensationalism on the other. Additionally, the hermeneutic reflected here is Redemptive-Historical, interpreting the whole Bible as pointing to Jesus and His redemptive work. Further, I am working from a viewpoint that is Baptist (believing only professing believers should be baptized), Presuppositionalist (with respect to apologetics), Calvinistic (regarding soteriology), Young-Earth (as a view of creation), Amillennialist (eschatologically), and somewhere between Continuationist and Cessationist (in terms of Spiritual gifts).

If none of the above paragraph makes much sense to you, don't worry about it. It is all just to say that my own theology will undoubtedly be reflected in this catechism. However, it is not necessary to hold to these positions to use and find agreement with this catechism.

The reader will find my theology best expressed in the “Five Solas” of the Reformation:

- Sola Gratia - We are saved by grace alone...
- Sola Fide - Through faith alone...
- Solus Christus - In Christ alone...
- Sola Scriptura - According to the Scripture alone...
- Soli Deo Gloria - To the glory of God alone!

HOW TO USE THIS RESOURCE

Try to ask the questions, and give the answers, in a sing-songy, rhythmic way, in order to aid in memorization. The goal is rote memorization, not total comprehension. However, the head of the family should talk through the answers with the children after the answer is memorized. Feel free to work through one question each week or tackle up to five questions per week— one each week day, and then review and discuss on Saturday. You can track your child(ren)’s progress using the Progress Tracker in the back.
