Preservation 50: New York State

The conference, held May 5 – 7, marked the 50th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act and was titled Preservation 50: New York State.

The conference celebrated preservation achievements across the state, while looking forward to the future of historic preservation in New York State.

More than 350 people took part, including grassroots community preservationists; preservation and allied professionals; elected officials and municipal board members; neighborhood and community leaders and activists; and students in preservation or allied fields.

A standing-room-only crowd kicked off the conference with a screening of the documentary film The Neighborhood That Disappeared by Mary Paley at the Excellence in Historic Preservation Award-winning (see page 12) Renaissance Hotel in downtown Albany. The film explored the massive urban renewal project that began in Albany in 1962 to clear land for the Empire State Plaza complex (above).

Picking up on that theme, the Preservation League and NY State Historic Preservation Office organized a session titled A Reappraisal of Urban Renewal: Evaluating the 'Architecture of Good Intentions' and Assessing the Empire State Plaza and its Role in Albany’s Civic Life. As both the Empire State Plaza and National Historic Preservation Act turn 50, preservationists in Albany and New York State are coming to terms with evaluating buildings and sites that the preservation movement was formed to fight against. This session provided a framework for considering the significance and negotiating the preservation challenges of ambitious, well-intentioned, but often still-controversial relics of urban renewal.

Jay DiLorenzo spoke on the Preservation League’s advocacy for the Chautauqua Amphitheatre as part of a session organized by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Sadly, the Chautauqua Institution completely demolished the beloved Chautauqua Amphitheater in September 2016, simply to make way for a replica in its place.

This conference was made possible in part by the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.

Message from the Chair

Many of us who care passionately about historic preservation have worked in this field for a really long time. There’s a reason for that. Preservation is a process and an ongoing obligation – our work is never done.

Many years ago I was asked why we kept working at it in New York State. “Hasn’t every community been surveyed? Hasn’t every important building been saved?” “Certainly not,” I replied. This is no less true now than it was then. New York State is vast and blessed with an extraordinary richness of wonderful historic buildings and cultural landscapes. And even while the long reach of the League’s staff gets into ever more communities each year, there are still places where the notion that preservation is good policy and a wonderful tool for revitalization is a brand new idea. Our evolving understanding of what’s important, what makes communities vibrant and the increasing sophistication of the tools we use to keep them that way also speak to the need for our work.

Every one of the League’s many tools is humming away to meet that need, as this Annual Report will show. This past year has seen new energy in virtually every corner of the League. Our grants and loan programs continue to expand; technical services and training reach into new corners of the state every week; we are making new friends and contacts at the local, State and National levels through our public policy work; we’ve worked hard at refreshing our “brand” and graphic look; and we’ve thrown great parties and events to celebrate exemplary preservation projects and extraordinary individuals across the state. And, importantly, we’re taking care of our very own, very historic building – 44 Central Avenue in Albany.

All of this work is done strategically. How can our small but energetic staff and board have the greatest impact and best move along our shared preservation agenda? We encourage, we incentivize, we educate, we advocate and we celebrate, all with the goal of proving that protecting and reusing our historic resources plays an essential role in community revitalization and sustainable economic development. Building on our past creates a bright future. That’s what we do, and we’ll be doing it with zest for years to come.

Message from the President

What are the three most important words in not-for-profit fundraising? Outcomes, outcomes, outcomes. In this competitive world, it’s what funders and supporters want to see. For many, it’s no longer enough to give money to an organization because you think they do good work, you want to see what your support has accomplished and how it has affected what is important to you.

At the Preservation League, we are always working to measure the outcomes of our programs and demonstrate that our work is having a lasting impact on New York’s historic buildings, neighborhoods, and landscapes.

Earlier this year we released a report looking back on seven years of grantmaking, titled Preserve New York: A Catalyst for Community Preservation. Preserve New York is a signature grant program of the New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA) and the Preservation League of New York State, made possible with the support of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo and the New York State Legislature. The report focused on the years 2005 to 2012, although the program was launched in 1993.

This study illustrates that Preserve New York grants leverage many times their value in cash and donated services, and that the program is an effective multiplier for preservation in New York State. The grants we have made through the program have led directly to the preservation of historic buildings, neighborhoods, and landscapes in nearly every county of New York State.

HERE ARE A FEW KEY OUTCOMES FROM THE REPORT:

- 118 grants totaling $746,467 were made to 110 applicants in 47 counties.
- $1.7M was leveraged by Preserve New York to complete the studies it funded.
- $746,467 in Preserve New York grants leveraged $11.3M in preservation and rehabilitation funding from private and public sources once the studies were completed.
- Over 35,000 resources were surveyed and of those 12,600 structures were added to the State and National Registers of Historic Places, making many property owners eligible for historic rehabilitation tax credit programs.

These are just some of the findings available from the report, but the message is clear – Preserve New York grants have led to the preservation of the historic buildings, neighborhoods and landscapes that make New York special. Moreover, they have strengthened the capacity of local preservation groups and bolstered grassroots preservation efforts that otherwise would have struggled. Together we have made a difference.

Not many people can say they go to work every day in a 200 year old building, but we can at the Preservation League!

The League's headquarters at 44 Central Avenue in Albany is located at a prominent intersection once known as Robison's Point. When it was built, it was on the western fringe of the city, but is now situated in a very active, urban environment on Central Avenue. Added to the National Register of Historic Places in February 2014, the building is a rare example of early commercial architecture in Albany, and retains a fairly high degree of integrity inside and out.

Constructed ca. 1817 as a commercial and retail site for processing grains into flour and feed, it continued in that capacity until 1941. For most of that time it was operated by John H. Peters and his sons and it still boasts many pieces of equipment from its role as a granary including scoops, grinders, buckets, tools and a giant hoist wheel in the attic measuring eleven and a half feet in diameter.

Still, despite a number of improvements and repairs, the building is showing some wear and tear from almost 200 years of continuous occupation.

In 2016, experienced volunteers conducted a general assessment of the building to determine structural and other issues needing to be addressed. This led the League to engage the engineering firm Ryan Biggs Clark Davis for a structural study.

Chad Reinemann, Senior Engineer for the firm, spent a day in the building inspecting the structure, aided by a resistance drill. This tool measures the resistance offered by a wood framing member as a thin needle drill is passed through it. The output appears as a graph of resistance versus drill depth. This test lets you “see” weaknesses inside the wood or, in our case, a void behind a framing member and the brick masonry of the wall.

Of course, this is just the investigation stage of the study, and data gathered will be used to inform the creation of a repair and restoration plan for the building. Then we have to figure out how to get it done! We’ll keep you informed as we move forward with the stewardship of our two-centuries-old headquarters!
44 Central Avenue, the westernmost of two buildings located at a prominent intersection known at one time as Robison’s Point, is an important example of early nineteenth century commercial architecture in Albany, New York. It is a load-bearing brick building erected to accommodate commercial and storage functions and it was built on a wedge-shaped parcel where two major roads diverged. Few buildings of this type and period are extant in Albany; as such, it remains a rare example of commercial architecture chronicling the city’s growth and westward development in the first quarter of the nineteenth century. The building retains a fairly high degree of physical integrity and retains many exterior features as well as interior components dating to the building’s construction ca. 1817 and subsequent periods of historic use. Interior features illustrate how the building functioned in the storage and sale of grain and feed.
Since its founding in 1974, the Preservation League has built a reputation for action and effectiveness. Our goal has been to preserve historic buildings, districts and landscapes in order to build a better New York, one community at a time.

Through the Preserve New York, Technical Assistance, and Donald Stephen Gratz Preservation Services Fund grant programs, the League has strategically invested in the rehabilitation of historic places, leveraged significant additional resources, and protected properties at the local, state and national levels through landmark designations. In addition to these tangible results, grant recipients often speak of the legitimacy that grant awards offer local preservation efforts. Whether the funds are early investments or support for a project that’s already underway, Preservation League grants are an important catalyst to realizing community preservation goals.

At its 2015 meeting, the Preserve New York (PNY) grant panel selected fourteen applicants in eleven counties to receive support totaling $114,990. Many of these grants will lead to historic district designation or expansion, thus allowing property owners to take advantage of New York State and Federal Rehabilitation Tax Credits. With the announcement of the 2015 awards, the total support provided by Preserve New York since its launch in 1993 is just over $2,000,000 to 320 projects statewide.
The Preserve New York and the Technical Assistance Grant (TAG) programs are a partnership between the New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA) and the Preservation League of New York State. These programs are made possible with the support of Governor Andrew Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.

Public Policy

The Preservation League’s public policy program continues to focus on relationship-building with key State legislators and their staff, targeted outreach to New York’s Congressional delegation, and strengthening partnerships with the State Historic Preservation Office and preservation colleague groups throughout the state.

STATE ADVOCACY
League staff had the opportunity to make two presentations to the Assembly Committee on Tourism, Parks, Arts and Sports Development.

Budget Testimony
League staff addressed the impact of the proposed 2015-16 State Budget on the arts, parks and historic preservation at a public hearing in Manhattan in November 2015. Staff shared information about the League’s two re-grant programs, Preserve New York (PNY) and Technical Assistance Grants (TAG), which are funded through the New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA) with the support of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.

Overview of Historic Preservation Efforts
The League made an in-depth presentation about historic preservation to the Assembly Committee on Tourism, Parks, Arts and Sports Development in Albany.

Staff answered legislators’ questions about the League’s grant programs, and provided specific information on historic preservation projects in each legislator’s district that had received NYSCA-funded grant support from the League.

Fighting NYC Upzoning
In the final days of the legislative session, the rush to the finish line can lead to some bad bills slipping through the cracks. In June, a measure to permit the City of New York to remove a State cap on residential development in the City and allow mega-towers in neighborhoods nearly became law, but for a quick response from the League and our Preservation Colleagues.

We expect this issue to return again next year, and will continue to work to ensure that New York’s historic neighborhoods are protected from unchecked growth.

FEDERAL ADVOCACY
League staff continues to work closely with the National Trust for Historic Preservation (NTHP) and the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) to engage members of New York’s Congressional delegation in our efforts.

Federal Funding for Historic Preservation
In November 2015, as part of the NTHP’s annual conference in Washington D.C., League staff led a team of advocates from around the state to visit 12 members of New York’s Congressional delegation to promote the national programs that are so important to preservation in New York.

High on the list of issues was the protection and enhancement of the federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program, a program that has leveraged over $3 billion in development in New York State since 2001.

Staff also requested support for the reauthorization of the Historic Preservation Fund (HPF), a major source of funding for the New York State Historic Preservation Office, and continuation of the current protections afforded historic resources under section 4(f) of the Federal Transportation Act.

Historic Tax Credit Improvement Act
The League also worked with the NTHP and the National Trust Community Investment Corporation (NTCIC) on a joint letter to New York’s Congressional delegation requesting bi-partisan support of the Historic Tax Credit Improvement Act (HTCIA).

This proposed legislation would improve the existing federal historic tax credit program by increasing access to the credit by smaller municipalities, rural communities and community development organizations with an eye toward bolstering the tax credit’s economic impact.

The League views successful advocacy as both a collaborative and collective process. We look forward to continuing to work with our local, state and national partners and elected officials to promote the benefits of historic preservation throughout the state.
Excellence in Historic Preservation Awards

A hotel that illustrates the benefits of New York’s historic rehabilitation tax credits to lawmakers in the nearby State Capitol.

A hand-hewn concert hall, celebrating 100 years of bringing chamber music to the woods. A sculpture and landscape dedicated to the memory of a man who sought to “hasten the coming of a new and better day.” These are just a few of the Award-winning projects honored by the Preservation League on May 11, 2016. Full descriptions of each of the Awards may be found on our website.

Preservation and reuse of historic buildings is fundamental to the economic revitalization of New York’s cities, towns, and villages. The restoration of neighborhoods, Main Streets, and underutilized buildings continues to create jobs, provide housing, promote tourism, stimulate private investment, and conserve energy, resources, and open space.

The League’s annual Awards program highlights projects that provide new examples of best practices in historic preservation. The League especially encourages nominations that may serve as case studies for incorporating energy efficiency, adaptive reuse, or New York’s Rehabilitation Tax Credit program.

The Preservation League awards program is supported by a generous grant from the Arthur F. and Alice E. Adams Foundation.

Seven to Save

Since 1999, the Preservation League has focused statewide attention on New York’s most important and at-risk historic places through its Seven to Save list of endangered places.

Working with local stakeholders, the League has been able to avert demolition, develop plans for reuse, secure landmark designation, and foster greater public awareness of the value of New York’s unique and irreplaceable historic resources.

Press conferences, tours, grants and new legislation are among the strategies the Preservation League uses to secure the future of historic places at risk. The League also collaborates with advocates, elected officials and other stakeholders to craft preservation strategies and put these plans to work. (Photos by Bruce Harvey)

Rapp Road Historic District
Albany, Albany County
An important example of the story of the Great Migration of 5 million southern blacks in the early 20th century lies tucked among shopping malls, highways and a landfill. Today, Albany’s Rapp Road Historic District is threatened by deterioration and encroaching development. The League is working with the Rapp Road Historical Association to foster awareness of the significance of the community and save existing buildings from further deterioration.

Gould Memorial Library
Bronx, Bronx County
Built in 1900, the Gould Memorial Library is the masterwork of architect Stanford White. The building reflects a time when scholarly spaces were designed with careful attention to the relationship between structure and function. The League is working with Bronx Community College to identify grants and other funding sources for rehabilitation.

Wildroot
Buffalo, Erie County
The Wildroot Company was founded in 1911, and soon became one of the largest hair care product manufacturers in the world. In the 1940s, the company established its headquarters on Bailey Avenue on the east side of Buffalo. Although the Wildroot building has been vacant and abandoned for many years, the grassroots group Buffalo’s Young Preservationists has been advocating for its preservation as an industrial site with great potential for reuse. The League is working with Buffalo’s Young Preservationists and Preservation Buffalo Niagara to bring attention to this abandoned site.

Adirondack Scenic Railroad
Several Municipalities, Essex and Franklin Counties
For more than a century, this active rail line has contributed to the prosperity of the western and central Adirondacks. Passenger and freight service dwindled over the years (with a brief rebirth during the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid). In 1992, a group of railroad enthusiasts worked, with the support of New York State, to develop the Adirondack Scenic Railroad. The New York Central Railroad, Adirondack Division Historic District was listed on the State and National Registers of Historic Places in 1993. A coalition of local and regional preservation advocates, rail enthusiasts and municipal leaders formed the Trails and Rails Action Coalition (TRAC) to present alternatives for this important and historic rail corridor. The League is working with Buffalo’s Young Preservationists and Preservation Buffalo Niagara to bring attention to this abandoned site.

Dutch Reformed Church
Newburgh, Orange County
The Dutch Reformed Church was built in 1835 to the design of Alexander Jackson Davis, and is listed on the State and National Registers of Historic Places. The structure is also a National Historic Landmark. In 2002, the League partially funded the first phase of a historic structure report by Mesick Cohen Wilson Baker through the Preserve New York grant program. In 2006, the World Monuments Fund placed the church on its “Watch List.” The League is working with the City of Newburgh to identify next steps for the building’s rehabilitation.

Stockade Historic District
Schenectady, Schenectady County
The Schenectady Stockade Historic District, listed on the local, State and National Registers of Historic Places, is situated near the Mohawk River. The Preservation League has chosen the Stockade Historic District as the representative for a number of significant historic communities throughout New York State that have suffered severe flooding. The League is working with the City of Schenectady, Stockade Association, and Schenectady Heritage Foundation to develop best practices for flood mitigation in historic neighborhoods.

Dennis-Newton House
Ithaca, Tompkins County
The Dennis-Newton House was built circa 1868 for Norman Dennis, an early African-American resident of Ithaca who was born in New York and worked as a laborer and mason. His daughter, Lula, inherited the property in 1893 and transferred it to her husband, Edward Newton, in 1898. The Neitons hosted a study group and literary society at 421 North Albany Street. The nation’s first black fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha, grew out of these gatherings. The League is working with Historic Ithaca and the City of Ithaca to ensure that the property owner addresses code violations and maintains the property.
The League offers a wide range of services to individuals and organizations across the state. We identify sources of grant support, offer advice on effective advocacy, help with listing properties on the State and National Registers of Historic Places, and provide expert guidance on community revitalization strategies.

In addition to our signature grants (see Signature Grant Programs on pages 8-10), we provide specialized programs on emerging preservation issues such as solar energy, flood mitigation, industrial building reuse, and energy efficiency.

These are just a few examples of our technical services activities across the state. Please visit our website and contact us to find out how the League might be able to help with your preservation efforts!

Reporting On Our Work

Technical Services staff compiled a report to chart the impact of the Preserve New York grant program from 2005-2012. Staff developed a questionnaire to distribute to groups that had received Preserve New York support for Historic Structure Reports, Cultural Landscape Reports, and Cultural Resource Surveys. The survey assessed preservation activities that occurred after these reports were completed. The report gathered feedback on Preserve New York directly from recipients and quantified the implementation work for the 118 grants awarded during the seven year study period.

“The Preserve New York grant program had a very positive impact on the West Side Neighborhood Association in terms of increased visibility. The impact on the community was even greater. The project raised awareness of the important role the neighborhood played in the development of Binghamton and promoted appreciation of the architectural significance and diversity of homes in the Abel Bennett Tract. Homeowners feel a greater pride in our community, and are encouraged to invest in maintaining the architectural integrity of the tract.”

Robert von Hasseln, City of Amsterdam

“The Preserve New York grant program made possible by the Preserve New York Grant, has led to a greater understanding of a valuable Village asset. Over the past few years, the Woodland has become a much-loved destination. Recently, Village Historian Jean Beattie May gave a lecture on the Gilded Age, which focused on the family of Thomas P. Fowler, the original owner and creator of this historic landscape. A grass roots group, Sustainable Warwick, has made the Woodlands one of their main focuses. Besides helping with a volunteer cleanup after the ravages of Hurricane Sandy, they have made a concerted effort to help the public recognize the Woodlands as a venue and outdoor classroom. This past summer they created a pollinator garden and partnered with our Elementary School to do nature walks. This year’s Arbor Day ceremony was held in the formal garden, and a willow was planted on the site of an original willow tree that was a focal point of the garden at the turn of the century.”

Established in 2007, the Endangered Properties Intervention Program, EPIP, makes it possible for the preservation community to take direct action when an important historic resource is threatened with disinvestment, neglect or demolition.

EPIP provides loan funds to those working to acquire, stabilize and restore historic properties. To date, the program has focused on making loans, but EPIP also allows the League to accept donations of property and contract to buy or sell a property.

As of June, 2016, preservation loans totaling $1.525 million are leveraging more than $3 million in additional public and private investments.

In 2014, Historic Hudson received a $75,000 EPIP loan. This loan ensured sufficient cash flow to maintain the construction schedule for the Phase II Stabilization of the Dr. Oliver Bronson House while awaiting reimbursements from the State of New York on a $300,000 Environmental Protection Fund (EPF) grant.

The Preservation League of New York State made an $8,600 grant to Dnipro Ukrainian Cultural Center in Buffalo, a part of the Ukrainian American Freedom Foundation, not-for-profit organization whose mission includes Preserving Ukrainian language, culture and history.

Located at 562 Genesee Street, the Dnipro Ukrainian Cultural Center is a fixture in Buffalo's Downtown East neighborhood. It is a vibrant part of the rich cultural, ethnic and architectural landscape of Western New York. Dnipro is both a repository of Ukrainian culture for the region and part of the thriving Buffalo arts scene as a venue for the Torn Space Theater and Squeaky Wheel. It is a site for many large-scale events for a wide range of organizations including Sister Cities and more.

The sprawling three story, 44,000 square foot structure was purchased by the Ukrainian-American community from the City of Buffalo in 1955. Constructed in 1914 as a German fraternal organization, it changed ownership several times, fell into disrepair and was eventually abandoned before being purchased in 1955 for the Ukrainian Cultural Center.

Dnipro is named after the largest river in Ukraine, the Dnieper, which flows past the capital of Kiev south to Odessa and empties into the Black Sea. Most of the founding members were Ukrainian immigrants displaced by World War II. They sought to establish a community center to express their cultural identity, share their heritage and celebrate important events. The founders worked in local factories by day and repaired and restored the building on evenings and weekends. The building houses classrooms, a credit union bank branch, library, a lounge with a vaulted ceiling, and upstairs theater.

The Ukrainian Cultural Center sought funding for a conditions assessment and code analysis of the building. This is the first step for the center to work toward a master plan for the building and expanding uses to the larger Buffalo community. The $8,600 grant allowed them to retain HHL Architects to complete a condition assessment of the exterior and interior, a mechanical systems analysis, an ADA code assessment, and provide information on underutilized sections of the building.

The Ukrainian Cultural Center provided a $500 retainer for HHL Architects.

“The League is New York’s only statewide organization providing comprehensive – and predominantly pro-bono – services to New Yorkers seeking to identify, preserve, protect, reuse, and promote historic resources as community assets,” said Jay DiLorenzo, President of the Preservation League. “The mission of the Dnipro Ukrainian Cultural Center, with its focus on the arts, history and heritage as a fulcrum for community revitalization, is a perfect match for a grant from our Donald Stephen Gratz Preservation Services Fund. We’re so pleased to be able to help them realize their goals.”

The Donald Stephen Gratz Preservation Services Fund was established in 2010 and is funded through a permanently endowed charitable contribution from Thomas J. Schwarz. The primary goals of the Donald Stephen Gratz Preservation Services Fund are to fund professional services for important preservation projects that: illustrate the benefits of the New York State Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program, leverage other public and private investments, and enable the League to react quickly to preservation opportunities with financial resources. Previous recipients include CiviCure in Hoosick Falls, Friends of Fort Plain in Montgomery County, Adirondack Architectural Heritage in Keeseville, Clinton and Essex Counties, and GARNER Arts Center in Rockland County.

As a metal fabricator in Long Island City, Donald Stephen Gratz worked with modern architects, industrial designers, sculptors and furniture designers from Mies Van der Rohe to I.M. Pei to Barnett Newman and Bill Katavalos. But he always had a soft spot for historic preservation and enthusiastically supported the work of his wife, Roberta Brandes Gratz, a longtime Preservation League Trustee. He loved attending League events.

Thomas J. Schwarz, who endowed the fund, is a member of the Preservation League’s Trustees Council. He serves as President of Purchase College, SUNY, and is a board member and alumnus of Hamilton College with great affection for upstate New York.
In March, the League celebrated its 2016-2017 Seven to Save List of Endangered Places at the Judd Foundation at 101 Spring Street in Soho. We were pleased to hold our event at the Judd, a building in a neighborhood that has seen its share of serious threats over the years – and survived. The historic 1870 cast iron building has been restored, and it is even more appreciated today for its architecture, its history, and its beauty – those same qualities that attracted Donald Judd back in 1968. We took that as an excellent omen for our own list of Seven to Save.

After a presentation by League President Jay DiLorenzo, guests enjoyed exclusive access to the restored live/work space of the Donald Judd Home and Studio.

The evening was sponsored by:

Empire Legacy Circle

How to give to the Preservation League’s Empire Legacy Circle and create a lasting legacy of your own.

The Preservation League of New York State has established the Empire Legacy Circle to recognize those supporters who have included the League in their estate plans. If your estate plans include a bequest to the Preservation League, a designation of the Preservation League to receive your IRA, or a charitable remainder trust or charitable lead trust that benefits the Preservation League, we invite you to consider joining this singular group.

Bequests and other types of planned gifts are a cornerstone of the Preservation League’s conservation efforts and education programs across New York State and are essential to the present and the future of the League. They help ensure our ability to respond to future challenges while enabling us to expand our vision for historic preservation in New York State. Planning a gift to the Preservation League through your estate is a powerful declaration of your support.

For more information on ways to include the Preservation League in your estate plans please contact Britt Densmore, Director of Development at bdensmore@preservenys.org or (518) 462-5658 x19.

Montgomery County secured a $10,000 Preserve New York grant to support the cost of a reconnaissance level survey of rural resources. This project will serve as the first phase of the creation of a standardized, broad-based survey of Montgomery County, including its westernmost towns including St. Johnsville, Palatine, Mohawk, Minden and Root. The rural resources are significant within the larger geographic and cultural setting because they are located among historic land divisions and transportation corridors, namely the Erie Canal. The project will help the county develop a preservation plan to highlight its rich history.
