SO OUR PAST HAS A FUTURE
The Preservation League of New York State invests in people and projects that champion the essential role of preservation in community revitalization, sustainable economic growth, and the protection of our historic buildings and landscapes. We lead advocacy, economic development, and education programs all across the state.

LEFT: The Village of Canajoharie received a $7,000 Preserve New York Grant in 2013 to support the cost of a Historic Resources Survey. This Erie Canal community is ripe for revitalization, with the recreational Canalway trail running through it, a largely intact downtown and surrounding residential neighborhoods.
League staff never misses an opportunity to share the story of our work with people from all walks of life. We received this email and photo from someone we met on a visit to New York.

IT HAS BEEN OVER A YEAR SINCE WE MET at the restaurant where I work. You were so very kind to talk to me about historic preservation and gave me a brochure from the Preservation League of New York State. When we met, my husband and I were in the process of buying an old row home in Ridgewood, NY. It was because of our conversation and the brochure that I did further research into our property and discovered we were eligible for the Historic Tax Credit program. Not only do we qualify, we were able to get the fees waived due to our income bracket.

After completing the first and second parts of the application we are approved and on our way to fixing our home up the way it was meant to be. This program is making it possible for us to do many great things to our new home to ensure the strength of the structure and the comfort of its inhabitants for many years to come. We’re pretty sure it will be quite beautiful as well. We are so excited and grateful for this program and what it means for our family and eventually our friends who will rent the upstairs unit from us.

I wanted you to know that the Preservation League has made a huge impact in our lives and we are so grateful for our chance meeting. We never would have found this program on our own.

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRMAN

This past summer I had the good fortune to visit Great Camp Sagamore in the Adirondacks. This former retreat of the Vanderbilts is now a National Historic Landmark and is fully restored and open to the public. My visit gave me the opportunity to reflect on the changing nature of the Preservation League’s work over the last 40 years.

In 1975 the League was one year old. Syracuse University, then the owner of Camp Sagamore, was about to sell it to New York State. Because of the State’s “forever wild” clause in its constitution, this extraordinary complex of historic buildings was destined to be demolished. The League, ever scrappy and determined, jumped in and over the next several years managed to save the complex, get it into good hands and ensure its future forever. That involved creating one of the first preservation easements in the state and getting an amendment to the State’s constitution passed by 63% of the electorate. This was a remarkable accomplishment and put the League on the map as a force to be reckoned with.

It was also, however, an enormous amount of time and energy spent on just one property, albeit one of national significance. We certainly still take on fights to save important individual buildings. Buffalo’s Central Terminal, the TWA terminal at JFK and the A. Conger Goodyear House on Long Island come to mind. But we now know that we also need to be more strategic with our staff and resources.

We focus on making change by thinking more broadly about how we do business. You’ll see us now use our full tool box to address broader issues that have an impact on many different buildings, not just one. We work to make sure that all of our programs and services move our wider agendas forward.

Our recent work revitalizing historic industrial buildings, described in this Annual Report, is an excellent example of this strategy. As is our ongoing work in ensuring the future of the Federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit which has a direct impact on tens of thousands of historic properties across the State. Or think of our current efforts to minimize the damage caused by above ground high tension electrical transmission lines on historic communities and landscapes in Central New York and the Hudson River Valley.

We have a history of being flexible and creative with our work to meet evolving trends, and we will continue that work ethic for the next 40 years.

Anne H. Van Ingen
Earlier this year a study by Smart Growth America found that in order to attract and retain the best talent, more companies in the United States were moving back to urban areas that provide the interesting and unique places where young professionals want to live and work. These are most often the historic cores of our cities that are home to the restaurants, cafés, cultural institutions, entertainment, nightlife, and easy access to public transportation that are most desired by talented young professionals.

In fact, many employers said they looked to relocate to renovated warehouses or other unique and inspired architecture that dovetailed with their employees’ desire for similar neighborhood qualities.

Fortunately for us, New York State has a wealth of historic buildings, many of them eligible for rehabilitation tax credits, that are just waiting to be reused.

This is particularly true of our historic but vacant industrial buildings. They reflect a proud history when equipment was built, carpets were woven, stoves were assembled, and manufactured goods were sold or shipped. Now they are helping to fuel our renaissance.

Through our Industrial Heritage Reuse Project, the League is jumpstarting revitalization of these places by providing expert assessments and studies that guide their reuse. We are working directly with building owners and municipal officials to give them the information they need to make the right choices to be successful.

Our vacant buildings should be seen as assets, not liabilities. They are local resources that can help us build the places that attract the young professionals we need in our communities. With your support, we can work together to see that they do.

Jay DiLorenzo
What do you do with 691,000 square feet of underperforming space in upstate New York? You find new uses for it.

In July, 2014, the Preservation League launched a demonstration project designed to breathe new life into upstate New York’s vacant and underutilized industrial buildings.

The League worked with Troy Architectural Program (TAP) to create development and rehabilitation plans for selected buildings, to illustrate the potential of the sites and to celebrate their host communities’ history. The project was supported by the J.M. Kaplan Fund with additional assistance from the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor.

The Industrial Heritage Reuse Project provided building owners with: a schematic reuse plan; code evaluation; cost estimate; list of funding assistance; and outline of approvals required.

The report included a discussion of proposed use, possible alternatives, budget, code issues, approval processes, scope of services, and time constraints.

Project findings were made available to building owners and the general public through a final report and a regional symposium in December, 2014, underwritten in part by National Grid. This was the first project of its kind in New York State to promote historic industrial building redevelopment through condition survey and code analysis.

New York State has a remarkable variety of buildings that currently stand as symbols of the decline of upstate industry. The League is delighted that the Industrial Heritage Reuse Project is helping to return these buildings to productive use, provide a model for other communities across the state, and encourage municipalities to embrace and promote their industrial heritage.

The Industrial Heritage Reuse Project “helped identify potential building code conflicts inherent in adaptive reuse of factory buildings from this era, and helped us overcome these potential conflicts early on … TAP helped develop a performance-based code analysis that was accepted by the City of Troy. In essence, TAP helped align the desire to preserve an important, historic building with the city’s code parameters, allowing for future development and occupancy of the building.”

– The Community Builders
Since its founding in 1974, the Preservation League has built a reputation for action and effectiveness. Our goal has been to preserve historic buildings, districts and landscapes in order to build a better New York, one community at a time.

Through the Preserve New York, Technical Assistance, and Donald Stephen Gratz Preservation Services Fund grant programs, the League has strategically invested in the rehabilitation of historic places, leveraged significant additional resources, and protected properties at the local, state and national levels through landmark designations. In addition to these tangible results, grant recipients often speak of the legitimacy that grant awards offer local preservation efforts. Whether the funds are early investments or support for a project that’s already underway, Preservation League grants are an important catalyst to realizing community preservation goals.

The protection of New York’s historic places is a proven form of community and economic development. Studies have shown that historic preservation generates more jobs, more tourism, more affordable housing and more downtown investment than new construction. The Preservation League continues to work with state and local policy makers to protect the historic character of New York’s historic buildings, districts and landscapes, and to advance incentives for preservation.

STATE AND FEDERAL ADVOCACY
The Preservation League has been working hard to:
- Protect and enhance the federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit program in the face of calls for elimination by Congressional tax reform advocates;
- Secure sufficient federal funding for the operations of the New York State Historic Preservation Office;
- Secure state funding to meet the staffing, programmatic, and capital needs of the Office of Parks, Recreation, and Historic Preservation (OPRHP), which oversees New York State Parks and Historic Sites; and
- Support full funding of the NYS Environmental Protection Fund (EPF), the source of funding for the OPRHP’s Historic Preservation Grants Fund and other important environmental programs.

PROTECTING NEW YORK’S HISTORIC LANDSCAPES
POWERLINES - On Earth Day, 4/22/15, the League and other members of the Hudson Valley Smart Energy Coalition (HVSEC) filed public comments with the NYS Public Service Commission (PSC) on proposals for A/C transmission lines. The League has been deeply involved in the permitting review of New York’s largest electric transmission siting proposal in more than a decade. Along with the HVSEC, the League is concerned about these proposals’ aesthetic and economic impacts on historic communities, landscapes and working farmland.

PALISADES – In April, 2014, the Preservation League was one of eleven groups that jointly filed a “friend of the court” brief in New Jersey Appellate Court against LG Electronics’ plans to erect a 143-foot tower less than 60 yards from Palisades Interstate Park. In June, 2015, consensus was reached on a new design that will create a world-class, sustainably-designed building to the benefit of LG, the town of Englewood Cliffs and the state of New Jersey, while protecting the iconic vistas and integrity of the Palisades Park, a National Natural and Historic Landmark.

HYDROFRACKING – When it comes to the proposed industrialization of New York State’s rural landscape, the League takes a strong stand for the protection of New York’s historic and cultural assets. In 2012, the League listed the resources in the Marcellus and Utica Shale regions on our Seven to Save list of endangered places due to the threat of high-volume hydrofracking. For more than two years, the League has worked with local activists, delivered public testimony, and provided extensive comments in response to the NYS Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) draft environmental impact study of the practice. In June, the DEC determined that New York State is no place for high-volume hydrofracking and all future uses of the practice will be banned.

TAX CREDIT UPDATES
The League’s policy work has been successful in shaping a state preservation incentive program that is delivering exactly as intended for both owners of historic homes and commercial properties.

2014
Gov. Cuomo extends NYS Rehabilitation Tax Credits through 2019 and makes commercial credit refundable starting in 2015.

- Spurred more than $2.7 billion in rehab in past decade

An 1816 meetinghouse that once echoed with debates over freedom and equality for women, Seneca Indians, and African Americans. A reminder of Dutchess County’s agricultural history. The headquarters of an organization with a long history of community outreach and philanthropy. The enduring - yet endangered - architecture of the Shakers. These are just a few of the preservation efforts that have been supported by loans from the League’s Endangered Properties Intervention Program.

The Endangered Properties Intervention Program, or EPIP, helps individuals, not-for-profit organizations, companies and municipalities return endangered historic properties to active use. Established in 2007, EPIP makes it possible for the preservation community to take direct action when an important historic resource is threatened with disinvestment, neglect or demolition.

EPIP provides loan funds to those working to acquire, stabilize and restore historic properties. To date, the program has focused on making loans, but EPIP also allows the League to accept donations of property and contract to buy or sell a property.

EPIP FAST FACTS

Maximum loan is $200,000.

In some circumstances, the loan can be structured as a revolving line of credit to permit more work to be accomplished.

Interest rate varies by project, but is typically around 4%.

Loan fee of $250 is due at closing. Borrower pays legal costs for closing.

Loans typically pay interest only during the term of the loan.

The term of the loan is up to 3 years.

Collateral varies by project but prior loans have been secured by assignments of grants or other identified funding sources (tax credits, fundraising pledges etc.): mortgages on real estate; cash; business assets and/or personal guarantees.

Property must be historically significant and located in New York State.

Work proposed must conform to the Secretary of the Interior’s Standards for Historic Preservation.

The EPIP program is both focused and flexible. Despite its focus – the preservation of historic structures – the program remains flexible and each loan is structured according to the needs of the applicant.

A crumbling factory that is now a focal point of neighborhood revitalization. A private residence that suffered years of neglect before being restored by descendants of its original owner. A community meeting space that has been restored with an eye toward sustainability in a changing coastal environment. These are just a few of the Award-winning projects honored by the Preservation League in recent years.

Preservation and reuse of historic buildings is fundamental to the economic revitalization of New York’s cities, towns, and villages. The restoration of neighborhoods, Main Streets, and underutilized buildings continues to create jobs, provide housing, promote tourism, stimulate private investment, and conserve energy, resources, and open space.

The League’s annual Awards program highlights projects that are examples of best practices in historic preservation. The League especially encourages nominations that may serve as case studies for incorporating energy efficiency, adaptive reuse, or New York’s Rehabilitation Tax Credit program.

The Preservation League awards program is supported by a generous grant from the Arthur F. and Alice E. Adams Foundation.

Raising the visibility of local preservation challenges

S sometimes, even our communities’ most important buildings face uncertain futures. And unfortunately, once a building is lost, no amount of regret will bring it back.

Since 1999, the League has drawn statewide attention to New York’s most important and at-risk historic places through our Seven to Save list. Working with local stakeholders, the League has helped to avert demolition, develop plans for reuse, secure landmark designation, and foster greater public awareness of the value of New York’s unique and irreplaceable historic resources.

Maxwell Place Fire Station/Fire Station #4
Elmira, Chemung County

This handsome brick building served as a neighborhood fire station from 1897 to 1986. Designed in the Flemish Renaissance Revival style by the prominent regional firm Pierce and Bickford Architects, it was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1988.

The Preservation League has helped position the Maxwell Place Fire Station as an investment opportunity and identify funding sources for a reuse that serves the needs of the 4th District and the city.

Old Stone Barracks
Plattsburgh, Clinton County

The Old Stone Barracks, built in 1838, is the oldest remaining building at the former Plattsburgh Air Force Base. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, it represents the importance of the military presence in New York’s North Country between 1812 and 1995.

The building has massive stone walls, heavy timber framing, and a two story porch with a full-length colonnade on the north façade.

The Preservation League was there in November 2014 when Friends of the Old Stone Barracks announced that the Valcour Brewing Company had purchased the building. The Friends of the Old Stone Barracks will develop an interpretive trail adjacent to the building.

Cultural Resources of Columbia County
Ghent, Columbia County

In 2012, NYS Electric and Gas (NYSEG) proposed an 11.1 mile, 115 kv high voltage power line through the town of Ghent, in north-central Columbia County. The proposed power line would have crossed agricultural land, run through family farms and land under conservation easement, along the Omi International Arts Center’s sculpture fields, and through a community rich with historic homes.

The League has been working with Protect Ghent, a not-for-profit organization founded by concerned citizens and the Hudson Valley Smart Energy Coalition to support less invasive and lower-voltage transmission alternatives.

Genesee Valley Park’s
Olmsted Pedestrian Bridges
Rochester, Monroe County

Three handsome concrete pedestrian bridges in Rochester’s Genesee Valley Park were built in 1916 and 1919 and designed by the influential Olmsted Brothers firm. They link regional and statewide trails including the Erie Canalway and are functional and historic assets. Limited funding, deferred maintenance, and uncertainty about rehabilitation responsibilities have put these bridges at risk.

The League has been working with the Landmark Society of Western New York to highlight the need for bridge rehabilitation rather than replacement and seek strategies for achieving short-and long-term stewardship goals to ensure their continued use for the next 100 years.

Old Albany Post Road
Philipstown, Putnam County

The Old Albany Post Road, a thoroughfare during the Revolutionary War, has landscape features remaining from that era and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The Old Road Society was founded to protect the surviving dirt road component of the Old Albany Post Road, along with the other remaining historic dirt roads in and around Philipstown.

Following extensive flooding in spring of 2007, a section of the dirt road was reengineered and paved, and the modern section is now eroding other sections of the road due to poor drainage.

The Preservation League is working with the Old Road Society to support the maintenance and preservation of the historic Old Albany Post Road.

Bethel Christian Avenue Historic District
Setauket, Suffolk County

Locally designated by the Town of Brookhaven, this is a historic Native American and African American community threatened by outside development pressure. The community began with the Bethel AME Church, Cemetery and congregation, who built on unusually large lots and whose shared community gardens provided year-round food for families. The neighborhood retains its rural character, but faces increasing development pressure.

The Higher Ground Inter-Cultural and Heritage Association has been working to recognize, celebrate, and protect the historic African-American communities that remain on Long Island. A 2015 Preserve New York Grant from the League will support the cost of a cultural resource survey of the community.

Federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit
Statewide

One of the most powerful tools in the preservation tool box, the federal Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit is at risk of elimination as part of an effort to cut federal spending. New York State needs this economic development and job creation incentive. Losing it would threaten more than $1.2 billion in historic property redevelopment projects pending statewide.

Without Federal and State Historic Tax Credits, the numbers don’t add up on many rehabilitation projects. The League has made the protection and expansion of this essential economic and community redevelopment tool a statewide priority for our public policy program advocacy.
After two years of planning, writing, and coordinating, the Preservation League and Genesee/Finger Lakes Regional Planning Council completed Upper Floor Reuse: A Guidebook for Revitalizing Downtown Buildings in early 2015. This project was inspired by the League’s popular workshops, Enhancing Main Street: Making Upper Floors Work Again, offered across New York State since 2004.

The project was developed for the New York State Department of State with funds provided under Title 11 of the Environmental Protection Fund. The book is available for download from the League’s website at www.preservenys.org/upper-floors.html.

CHAUTAUQUA
The Preservation League has been engaged since 2012 in an effort to promote the rehabilitation of the historic Amphitheater at the Chautauqua Institution. The Amphitheater, better known as the Amp, is threatened by a plan to demolish the existing structure and replace it with an updated facility reminiscent of the historic building.

Dating to 1893, and a contributing building within the Chautauqua National Historic Landmark District, the Amp has hosted many distinguished speakers and performers.

In a letter to the editor of the Buffalo News, published on November 26, 2014, the League wrote that the “demolition of the roof and ceiling would irrevocably damage the building’s historic integrity,” and that “as a contributing building within a National Historic Landmark District, any work on the building should be guided by the Secretary of the Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation.”

In January, 2015, the League joined the National Trust for Historic Preservation naming the historic Amphitheater at the Chautauqua Institution a National Treasure. From April to August 2015, we served on the Chautauqua Amphitheater Design Panel, where, along with our colleagues from the New York State Office of Parks, Recreation, and Historic Preservation, Preservation Buffalo Niagara, and others, we advanced new design strategies for the building that would protect its rich history.

MODEL LAW
In 2014, The New York State Historic Preservation Office and New York State Department of State, in partnership with the Preservation League of New York State, released an updated model local preservation law to help municipalities preserve historic resources in their communities. The model law is available on the agency’s website at www.nysparks.com. The League worked with the State Historic Preservation Office in the late 1980s to develop the state’s first model local historic preservation law.

In more than 250 communities across New York State, a local historic preservation law serves as the backbone of historic resource protection. The revised and expanded Model Preservation Law will allow municipalities to update their existing laws, and encourage new communities to evaluate and implement historic resource protection.

The League has also developed a “Supplemental Guide to the Model Law” - a how-to guide for communities looking to adopt preservation ordinances. The Supplemental Guide is on the League’s website at www.preservenys.org.

WORKSHOPS
In 2013 and 2014, the Preservation League held over a dozen tax credit workshops throughout the state, from Buffalo to Newburgh. Working in collaboration with the NYS Historic Preservation Office and local partners, these workshops reached over 750 historic property owners, municipal officials and staff, architects, and developers.

The League also organized and presented a session on upper floor reuse at the 2013 and 2014 Genesee/Finger Lakes Regional Planning Council’s annual conferences.

PRESERVATION COLLEAGUES
The inaugural collaborative NYS Preservation Conference “Fill in the Blank: Defining Preservation,” was held in Rochester in April, 2014. The Preservation League partnered with the Landmark Society of Western New York and Preservation Buffalo Niagara to broaden the reach of what had previously been a regional event.

The program began with a Preservation Colleagues meeting at the historic Christ Episcopal Church on East Avenue in Rochester. The meeting featured best practices and innovations in work-force training, community education, and organizational visibility. The session “Next Act for Opera Houses” featured success stories and ongoing efforts at opera house revitalization in Earlville, Fredonia, and Medina. Bent’s Opera House in Medina was on the League’s 2012-13 Seven to Save list of endangered places.

The Preservation Colleagues met at Peebles Island State Park in Cohoes (Albany County) in March, 2015 for presentations and a roundtable discussion with the NYS Historic Preservation Office.

In January, 2015, the League participated in an announcement in Buffalo by the National Trust for Historic Preservation naming the historic Amphitheater at the Chautauqua Institution a National Treasure. League President Jay DiLorenzo with Stephanie Meeks, President, National Trust for Historic Preservation; Peter Flynn, Co-Chair, Preservation Buffalo Niagara; and Brian Berg, a Chautauquan representing Save the Amp.

The Preservation League also co-sponsored the 2015 NYS Preservation Conference, along with the Landmark Society of Western New York, Preservation Buffalo Niagara, and the NYS Historic Preservation Office. The 2015 conference was held in Geneva in April and the League presented on the Industrial Heritage Reuse Project.

Preservation Colleagues from across New York State met at Peebles Island State Park in Cohoes in March, 2015.
We are all subject to the influences of the past whether through our daily lives, our friends or family, our neighborhood. The League’s programs are designed to promote that connection. The organization has been a catalyst for preservation for more than 40 years and it has spurred important changes in New York’s preservation community at the local, state and federal levels. With the generous support of our Trustees and Trustees Council, Excelsior Society and Professional Giving Circle and all of our membership, the League’s fundraising efforts are able to complement these connections and support our extraordinary programs and wonderful staff.

The League’s Pillar of New York Awards, Excelsior Society tours, Stradivari concerts and Excellence in Historic Preservation Awards are all intended to bring a spotlight to the individuals and organizations as well as the regions and communities of unrivaled cultural significance found all across New York State.

In the past two years our Excelsior Society has hosted three tours highlighting regions of the state with extraordinarily diverse architecture and spectacular natural landscapes including the Hudson River Valley, the Northern Catskills and most recently the East End of Long Island. In partnership with the Stradivari Society the League hosts concerts in New York City landmarks. The United Nations and Rainbow Room have hosted recent Pillar of New Awards galas and historic Grasmere Farm in Rhinebeck was the perfect location for our spring fundraising celebration.

Some may consider historic preservation as a single issue. But at the League, we like to think of preservation as an organizing principal around which we can address larger issues of our state. People who might not agree on much else may agree on saving an historic library or a Quaker meetinghouse. In the process, they may discover that they have much more in common. Saving historic buildings helps us discover wonderful things about ourselves and our ability to shape the community around us. In that sense preservation can be seen as a symbol of our ability to work together to shape a liveable future.

History and great architecture – both old and new – is all around us. Come explore New York State with the Preservation League. We are here to advocate, educate, open eyes, celebrate – and recognize all of you who make our work possible.

PILLAR OF NEW YORK AWARDS | RHINEBECK MAY 2015

Historic Grasmere Farm could not have been a more perfect setting at which to celebrate our Rhinebeck Pillar of New York celebration. It was wonderful that so many people from the Hudson Valley and beyond could share in the festivities honoring Wint Aldrich, Anne and Thomas Older, and Tania Werbizky – a remarkable opportunity to recognize four extraordinary people from our “preservation family.” Thank you to our chairs Matthew Bender, Joan Davidson, George Howell, Dudley and Carole Johnson, Richard and Carol Miller, David Older and Chantal Gut. Anne Van Ingen, Diana Waite and Lucy Waletzky. The event raised $130,000 for League programs. We are grateful to our hosts Jonathan and Mariana Mensch for allowing us the use of the property.

PILLAR OF NEW YORK AWARDS GALA
NOVEMBER 2014
The Rainbow Room – shimmering like the set of a Broadway musical and so quintessentially New York – was the perfect setting to honor our Pillars of New York last fall. The gala evening celebrated the art and artistry and the philanthropy and leadership of our honorees: Jeff Greene and EverGreene Architectural Arts; Marjorie and Gurnee Hart; Anne and Thomas Hubbard and Thomas Jayne and Jayne Design Studio.
Thanks to our honorees, the more than 250 guests who shared the evening with us, and our incredible gala chairs Karen Bechtel, Lionel and Dotty Goldfrank, Philip Morris, David and Jeannette Redden, Jeanne and Alex Sloane, Richard Southwick and Arete Warren. The event raised over $400,000 to support League programs. It was a perfect evening – all wrapped in the views of the city!

The League’s Excelsior Society hosted an intimate evening for supporters and friends with the Rising Stars of the Stradivari Society in the historic rooms of the Ukrainian Society in New York City. Violin virtuosos Tim Fain, Randall Goosby and Augustin Hadelich played music ranging from Bach to Previn to Sarasate with Grammy-nominated accompanist Robert Koenig. The other stars in the concert room were the c. 1723 Stradivari, and 1717 Gobetti violins on long-term loan to musicians Hadelich and Fain from Karen and Clement Arrison, as well as 18-year-old Goosby’s c. 1600 Maggini provided through the generous efforts of the Stradivari Society of Chicago. The event was presented in collaboration with the Arrisons and the Stradivari Society and sponsored by William Bernhard and Catherine Cahill, the Gilbert and Ildiko Butler Family Foundation, Daniel Romualdez Architects, Elizabeth and Stanley D. Scott, Richard Gilder and Lois Chiles and Brandon Fradd. The concert raised funds to support the programs of the Preservation League.

EXCELSIOR SOCIETY TOUR OF THE EAST END OF LONG ISLAND – JUNE 2015

Late June proved to be the ideal time to explore the distinctive summer retreats and natural beauty of the East End of Long Island. There are over four centuries of architecture to explore – from Puritan colonists to whaling captains to abstract expressionists to captains of industry – and our intrepid Excelsior Society members wanted to see it all! Over three days the group took in art and architecture from Montauk to Georgica Pond ranging from the earliest examples of McKim Mead & White’s shingle style houses; Richard Meier’s iconic Saltzman House and Robert Venturi’s iconoclastic de Havenon house to the 1750’s farmhouse in Springs with the only Le Corbusier murals in North America painted on its living room walls; classic Greek-Revival designs by Minard Lefever and finally, Grey Gardens, the East Hampton house made famous by the Maysles brothers’ 1976 documentary film.

1. We are indebted to Trustees Counsel member Janet Ross and tour leader and Trustees Council member Caroline Zaleski, to architect and historian Samuel White, to Georgia and Michael de Havenon and to all of our gracious, entertaining hosts. Whether artist Julian Schnabel’s irreverent humor or collector Donald Blinken’s dry wit, we can safely say that our days with them exceeded all expectations.

The Preservation League of New York State ended June 30, 2015 with Total Assets of $5.2M. These assets include three endowment funds maintained by the League totaling $2.43M:

- General Endowment Fund
- Lionel Goldfrank III Fund for Public Policy. Annual transfer per Investment Policy is used to support the League’s Public Policy Program.
- Donald Steven Gratz Preservation Services Fund. Annual transfer per Investment Policy is used to provide grants to jump start preservation projects.

The League’s Board of Trustees approved $115K in spending from the Endowment for the twelve-month period ending June 30, 2016, per approved investment policy.

League Total Assets also include $1.81M for the Endangered Properties Intervention Program (“EPIP”), currently structured as a revolving loan program. EPIP provides loans to those seeking to acquire, stabilize, and restore New York’s most endangered historic properties. For the twelve month period ending June 30, 2015, the Preservation League had $1.1M in operating revenues and $1.176M in expenses. Investment income, primarily led by gains in the endowment accounts totaled $89,950.

Tania Werbizky and Daniel Mackay

Tania Werbizky, a member of the League’s staff for over 25 years, retired in December 2014. She served most recently as Regional Director of Technical and Grant Programs. She helped countless New Yorkers save the meaningful places in their communities by providing one-on-one outreach and consultation, thoughtful preservation strategies and boundless enthusiasm for New York’s historic places. She helped to establish some of the League’s most successful programs including Preserve New York; Preservation Colleagues; Rural New York Grant Program and Upper Floors Workshops. In every case Tania has represented the League as a true professional and we wish her the best of luck in this next chapter of her life.

Daniel Mackay, Director of Public Policy for 15 years, left the League in June, 2015 to become Executive Director of the Connecticut Trust for Historic Preservation. During his tenure he led the effort to secure the creation of a New York State Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program for income-producing and owner-occupied historic properties. This program has leveraged many millions of dollars of investment in New York State’s struggling communities. He also helped to guide the League’s strategy in addressing complex issues like the siting of industrial-scale wind farms and more recently power lines in New York’s historic landscapes. Daniel has been a great asset to the organization and we wish him well with his new position.
