The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Language Program was established in 1996 to fulfil the work the Tribes had invested in the languages since the early 1970's. The founding teachers had been working to turn the tide of language loss and as result created a pathway which the current teaching staff is now are working to continue. The languages were close to extinction, however, due to strategic planning and placement of teachers in Early Childhood Education, the local district and community colleges are working fiercely to revitalize the language in the community. The Warm Springs Language Programs is provided at Early Childhood Education Programs; Warm Springs K-8 grades; Madras High School and Central Oregon Community College. Culture training is provided with communities/entities to include Cultural Presentations and Tribal History/Shared History. In addition, Warm Springs offers a summer youth program focused on learning Indigenous stewardship. The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs also engage in a Government-to-Government relationship between Oregon State and the Tribes; University of Oregon Sapsikwala Advisory Council; Oregon State American Indian/Alaskan Native State Plan advisory committee, Oregon State Early learning hub for 9 Tribes; Madras School District 509J Indian Advisory Council.
