HOST COMMITTEE SHOUTOUT

Special shoutout to Taylor Thomas, EJ Fellow and Community Host from East Yard Communities for Environmental Justice for helping bridge connections with the local community in Long Beach, CA.

Thank you to Jessa Calderon and Angela Mooney D'Arcy, Community Hosts from Sacred Places Institute for Indigenous Peoples for grounding us and sharing the efforts they are leading to defend the land and its people.

Gratitude to Laura Som, Community Host from The MAYE Center for welcoming us at The Growing Experience, a community farm that cultivates the community's relationship to land and food.

• Sometimes you have to understand that the community right now may not be ready for what you're building
 BUT you're BUILDING it for the ANCESTORS and for FUTURE Generations."

-Tongva elder

TOXIC TOUR BY TAYLOR THOMAS

From refineries steps away from homes to the industrial railroad across a playground and new development threatening to displace current residents, Taylor Thomas, EJ Fellow and Community Host, East Yard Communities for Environmental Justice, led a toxic tour to showcase how their vigilant community disrupts polluting industries and leads activities to better the community's health and quality of life.

EJ Fellows Melissa Miles, NJ Environmental Justice Alliance and Alice Sung, Emerald Cities Collaborative during the Toxic Tour in Long Beach, CA.

THE URBAN FOREST

EJ Fellows Moñeka De Oro, Micronesia Climate Change Alliance; Dwain Tyndal, Alternatives for Community and Environment and Valerie Amor, Emerald Cities Collaborative indulge in The Urban Forest, stationed alongside affordable housing units, during the Toxic Tour in Long Beach, CA. Fellows connected with the herbs, flowers, and fruit harvests in the area, surrounded by the smell of calamansi.

MAYE CENTER'S CURRENT FIGHT

The MAYE Center, a stop on the Toxic Tour, is located across the street from affordable housing units near overburdening toxic facilities. It provides green space and healing services. Currently, the center is fighting against demolition threats.

Here's How You Can Help:

Send in letters of support to protect The Growing Experience as a community farm and ecology center to

MORE ON MAYE CENTER'S HARVESTS

Dr. Qasimah Boston, EJ Fellow, Tallahassee Food Network, found a sense of commonality with the agricultural practice at the MAYE Center, where urban farming connects people with Mother Earth and culture.

PHASE 3 RETREAT 6 PURPOSE & PROGRESS

WHAT'S OUR POP? (PURPOSE, OUTCOME, PROCESS)

Purpose:

- Co-learn and experiment with methods to make design ideas tangible

By the end of the retreat, Fellows will have:

- Developed new skills in bias to action and failing fast
- Created new iterations of their ideas based on rapid prototypes and peer feedback
- Drafted a Blueprint for prototyping with their communities

Process:

- Core Group assessment of Collective Leadership + Purpose
- Somatic Spiritual Land, Water Practice
- Practice with prototyping tools
