The institutional recipients are:
California State University, Long Beach
Elgin Community College
Middle Tennessee State University
Nazareth College
San Mateo County Community College District
State University of New York at Plattsburgh
University of Louisville
University of Maryland, Baltimore County
University of Tennessee Knoxville

AIRC Executive Director Brian Whalen commented, “This program is a wonderful example of how a partnership between a charitable foundation and a membership association can make a positive impact on students’ lives through high quality educational opportunities. I’m very proud of our AIRC members who have been chosen to host deserving students from the United Kingdom to study in the United States.”

As a Trustee of the Cyril Taylor Charitable Foundation, AIFS Chairman William L. Gertz stated, “This is the first time we’ve done a cooperative program with an organization that involves U.S. institutions bringing in international participants. We trust the institutions will do a really good job of finding the students who fit Sir Cyril Taylor’s vision of increasing diversity and inclusion in study abroad. We’re very proud of the work that the foundation has done in its initial few years and we’re very excited about the future this brings to move the needle so that more students from the United Kingdom can study abroad.”

AIRC Director of Membership and Sponsorship Rachael Lamson commented, “AIRC is extremely pleased by the quality and diversity of AIRC member institutions who applied to receive The Sir Cyril Taylor Memorial Scholarship funding. This program will directly benefit our members by assisting institutions and agencies to achieve their international enrollment goals. We look forward to supporting the scholarship recipients while spreading awareness about this transformative opportunity.”
