The image shows a family, presumably in a rural setting, with children and an adult interacting. The setting suggests a community environment, possibly a school or a community center. The image captures a moment of interaction or conversation, with the children and the adult engaged in a discussion or activity.

The text below the image reads:

"It’s almost like she didn’t matter. Like she’s one of the forgotten people." - A student

This quote indicates a sense of isolation or neglect, highlighting a poignant social issue. The context suggests a discussion about the rights or the role of marginalized individuals in society.

Another piece of text reads:

"Is it the dream that puts people over the edge?" - A teacher

This quote raises questions about the impact of dreams or aspirations on individuals, possibly touching on the pressures or expectations placed on people, especially in challenging environments.

The visual and textual elements together create a narrative of social commentary, emphasizing the experiences and perceptions of young people in a particular setting.
Skilled in enduring trials:

The photo shows a person wearing a mask with stars on it. The caption reads:

"My dad was a hard worker. Even if it was hot, he needed to finish his eight hours."

---

Straddling a future in loneliness:

The text reads:

"Loneliness is a pandemic of unknown proportion. Our society is built on connections, yet we are alone in ways we never imagined."

---

A project for a digital atlas of California's future climate:

The text reads:

"In the future, we will need a digital atlas to understand how climate change will impact our state. We're building a tool to help us plan accordingly."

---

About the story:

The text reads:

"This story is part of our series on climate change and its impacts in California. We're bringing together diverse voices to tell the story of our shared future."

---

The text continues with more information about the project and its goals.