MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Though we are only halfway through 2020, this year will be one for the history books. It is difficult to believe that in the first few weeks of the new year, the APF community was happily gathered in Houston for our annual retreat. Though we hope those days will return soon, we have been hard at work expanding our organizational outreach and programming, all while orienting our initiatives to fit our now largely virtual world.

The Houston retreat energized us, launching us into the rapid expansion we are currently undergoing. Many of our new programs, like the Get Out The Vote initiative, were born out of the collaborative conversations we had as a community. I want to maintain that collective growth mindset as we move forward.

Our best asset is the incredibly diverse, talented, and engaged people on the APF Board of Directors, Leadership Council, and within our larger community. The continued expansion of our community remains one of my main priorities. I am happy to report that since January, we have added two new members of the Board, two new co-chairs of the Leadership Council, and forty-five new Leadership Council members.

I am exceptionally proud of how we responded to the COVID-19 pandemic. When our events were canceled, we transitioned to regular webinars. When our Fellows could no longer travel to Pakistan, we secured excellent virtual fellowships for them to thrive in the safety in their homes. And when the pandemic reached its peak in April, APF administered its first ever monetary grants, turning the generosity of our community into real impact for frontline non-profit organizations across the United States.

As APF's President, I take pride in our fiscal discipline. We run a tight ship. Still, continuing to expand at this pace, and to maintain our gains, requires a stable fundraising base. I am working hard to continue diversifying our sources of revenue. We know these are difficult times to merely maintain our own financial situations. We are exceptionally grateful for every dollar, and we hope that you know we are doing our best to make your generosity count. Though we hope to back within six feet of one another soon, APF is well-positioned to continue its strong forward momentum even in these challenging circumstances.

SHAMILA N. CHAUDHARY
President

STRATEGIC INITIATIVES

APF is engaged in several strategic initiatives that are in various stages of development.

Exploration Phase

Virtual Fellowships Program:

We have been approached by several organizations in Pakistan that want to host Pakistani American students and young professionals as virtual fellows. We are currently exploring possibilities with The Jinnah Institute (policy) and UpTrade (agriculture startup); will seek additional partners as we develop the program.

Our goal is to design an APF managed online portal that can be used by organizations in Pakistan to submit requests for fellows.

Development Phase

NextGen Leaders:

A network of Pakistani American leaders under the age of 40 who will lead APF chapters across the United States focused on mentorship, networking, and programming related to the APF mission. The Programming Committee and APF President are working out the terms and criteria of the chapters and activities.

Implementation Phase

EngageDC Fellowship:
