Sojourner Launches #UntilSheCan Campaign Giving Domestic Violence Survivors a Voice

Milwaukee’s provider of domestic violence prevention and intervention services calls on community to spread awareness #UntilSheCan amid pandemic

MILWAUKEE – May 20, 2020- Sojourner, Wisconsin’s largest provider of domestic violence prevention and intervention services, announces its #UntilSheCan domestic violence awareness campaign to garner support for survivors and spark critical conversations about family violence.

According to the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence, nearly 20 people per minute are physically abused by an intimate partner. While the recent stay-at-home order may safeguard against COVID-19, it can be deadly for someone living with an abusive partner. Milwaukee alone has reported an alarming 28% increase in cases since the pandemic and continues to rise.

“Survivors need hope and support now more than ever,” said Sojourner President and CEO Carmen Pitre. “The #UntilSheCan campaign is that beacon of hope. It encourages people to lend their voice to help those who are being hurt. We hope to drive aid and awareness within our community and even nationwide.”

The #UntilSheCan campaign includes a powerful video series, sharing stories of domestic violence survivors, read by survivors themselves or influential figures within the local Milwaukee community on their behalf. Often, survivors of domestic violence cannot share their experiences publicly for reasons of safety and healing.

“#UntilSheCan speak her own truth,” said Pitre. “The community can share her story as a rally cry for action.”

Participating in #UntilSheCan is easy and has a high impact. Participants can donate to Sojourner and/or share survivors’ videos on social media. There is also an #UntilSheCan social media challenge where participants write #UntilSheCan on their own faces in purple (the domestic violence awareness color) to show support for survivors, then challenge at least three friends to do the same. As many survivors cannot yet share their identity, the challenge calls on the nation to be advocates for domestic violence and express solidarity.
The #UntilSheCan campaign also raises awareness of resources available to help domestic violence survivors, such as safety planning, emergency shelter, help filing restraining orders, support services and a 24-hour hotline.
