THE UPSIDE

Stamford writer hits his stride at 82

BY SARKEN SACKOWITZ

William Krass is 82 years old, but that doesn’t bother him. He’s a writer. And he’s just getting started.

Krass is a poet, a playwright, a novelist, a journalist, a teacher, and a professor. He’s written thousands of pieces of writing, but he’s only just started to hit his stride.

“I’ve always been a writer,” Krass said. “I started writing when I was young, but I never really got serious about it until I was in my 80s.”

Krass has written everything from short stories to novels, and he’s even written a few plays. He’s even written a few poems.

“I’ve always been fascinated by language,” Krass said. “I’ve always loved the way words can be used to create images and emotions in people’s minds.”

And now, at 82, Krass is finally getting to use those skills to their fullest potential.

“I’m just starting to hit my stride,” Krass said. “I’m finally getting to write the kind of things that I’ve always wanted to write.”

Impact FFC Announces New Partnership Program

BY SARKEN SACKOWITZ

The Federal Credit Union (FCU) recently announced a new partnership program with Impact FFC, a national nonprofit organization that provides financial education and coaching services to individuals and families.

The partnership will allow Impact FFC to provide its financial coaching services to FCU members, who can then use those services to improve their financial well-being.

“FCU members are some of the most underserved populations in our country,” said Impact FFC CEO Jennifer Brown. “By partnering with them, we’re able to bring our financial coaching services to those who need them most.”

The partnership will also allow Impact FFC to provide financial education and coaching services to FCU members, who can then use those services to improve their financial well-being.

“FCU members are some of the most underserved populations in our country,” said Impact FFC CEO Jennifer Brown. “By partnering with them, we’re able to bring our financial coaching services to those who need them most.”

Impact FFC will provide members with access to its financial coaching services, which include budgeting, saving, and investing. Members will also have access to a financial educator who will work with them one-on-one to develop a personalized financial plan.

The partnership is a win-win for both organizations, Brown said. “For Impact FFC, it’s a great opportunity to reach a new audience and help them improve their financial well-being,” she said. “For FCU, it’s a great way to provide added value to our members and help them achieve their financial goals.”

Bankruptcy trustee seeks mom, family of Westchester funeral home director in fraud case

BY BILL MCWILLIAMS

A U.S. bankruptcy trustee has accused a New York funeral director, Joseph Balaban of fraudulently transferring money to himself.

Balaban, who is in his 60s, is the owner of a funeral home in Westchester County.

The bankruptcy trustee, a law firm in New York, says that Balaban transferred money from a bank account in his name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee, who is appointed by the court, is investigating whether Balaban engaged in fraud.

Balaban, who has not been charged with any crimes, has not responded to the bankruptcy trustee’s allegations.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.

The bankruptcy trustee is seeking to recover money that was transferred from the bank account in Balaban’s name to a personal account in his name.