This has been a very busy summer for parks, citywide, and especially in University Heights.

On August 3, the City Council adopted, by an 8-1 vote (CD3 Councilmember Whittburn voted in favor), the new Parks Master Plan, the first update in 65 years. With one million more residents and significant changes to our communities and housing density, this much-needed update provides funding and resources to older, more densely-populated areas.

The UH Parks, Recreation, and Open Space Advisory Group (UHPROSAG) supports that goal, especially because our neighborhood is severely under-parked and has advocated for many years for increased investments, with a long list of deferred capital improvement projects for our two parks (Old Trolley Barn Park and the Birney School Joint Use Field) and open space (UH Point, along Golden Gate), as well as a long-needed dog park.

Previously, San Diego collected fees from developers for each new housing unit built, and those fees stayed within the community. University Heights is divided into two community planning groups: East of Park Boulevard is in North Park, and West of Park Boulevard is in Uptown. In the previous system, each housing unit built would have generated $18,767 in fees for Park & Recreation in Uptown, $3,468 in North Park.

City officials claimed that the old system resulted in inequities in the parks system, which is clear. In the last 10 years, wealthier communities North of I-8 received 88% of all developer park fees, while communities South of I-8 received less, and have grown increasingly parks deficient.

Under the new Parks Master Plan, monies collected for parks will now go into a city-wide fund that will be allocated by City Council with priority given to under-parkcd areas as well as “communities of concern” as defined by the city’s climate equity index scores.

The new parks plan also changes the city’s climate equity index scores. “Communities of concern” as defined by City Council with priority given into a city-wide fund that will be allocated by City Council with priority given to under-parkcd areas as well as “communities of concern” as defined by the city’s climate equity index scores. Hello, Neighbors! I trust you all are enjoying a beautiful summer in and around the neighborhood.

Over the summer months, UHCA volunteers have taken a small but well-deserved break. As volunteers at UHCA come back to operations, the viability of holding in-person meetings has been reviewed, including reaching out to Birney Elementary School to check on the availability of their auditorium.

Unfortunately, with the rise in COVID Delta cases and the increased requirements to keep people safe indoors, we are unable to return to in-person meetings for the foreseeable future. Watch the newspaper and website/social media for changes as the situation improves. In the meantime, don't forget to join us on September 2nd via Zoom.

As summer starts to wind down and we begin to look at fall & winter, we hope to gain some momentum in our work. We haven't fully recovered from the challenges over the last year and are working with a small group of volunteers just to keep the paper going and beautification activities happening for you all.

We are seeking volunteers who would like to lead areas in Events, Technology, and Newspaper Distribution. Volunteering for your community is a great way to get involved, connect with your neighbors, and participate in neighborhood topics.

Kindest Gratitude to all active UHCA volunteers for the hard work you do!

Happy September!

LGBTQ+ Historical Context Survey

As part of a comprehensive effort to preserve the history of the Hillcrest neighborhood and celebrate its unique cultural identity, the City of San Diego is asking the public to help identify significant buildings, sites and structures that memorialize contributions made by members of the LGBTQ+ community.

Building upon the 2016 Citywide LGBTQ Historic Context Statement, the Hillcrest LGBTQ+ Historic Context Statement identifies historical themes, such as “Social Life” and “LGBTQ+ Business and Commerce,” and the buildings, structures and sites that reflect those themes. Planners are asking the public to review the document, comment on the themes and assist with the identification of people, events and places that may have been missed. Members of the public are encouraged to share their recommendations through an online survey which you can find at bit.ly/HillcrestLGBTQSurvey or by submitting written comments to the City of San Diego P.O. Box 10086, San Diego, CA 92112.

The survey will be open until Sept. 7, 2021, and the Context Statement is on track to be completed later this year. The City Council is expected to hear the Hillcrest Focused Plan Amendment in 2022.

Monthly development

One Mississippi. Rising six stories above El Cajon Boulevard at Mississippi just west of the Lafayette Hotel, this development will feature 61 multi-family LIHTC (low-income housing tax credit) units plus ground-level retail. Developed by Trestle Build, who specializes in affordable urbanism, this development will feature below-market rate apartments created as “offsets” from, and in partnership with, other developments in the area. The project is well underway with an estimated completion/opening in 2022.

Outdoor Dining. The City of San Diego approved “Temporary Outdoor Business Operations” in July 2020 and extended the program in May 2022. Public surveys have shown that San Diegans are spending significantly more time outdoors, and permanent outdoor dining leads the list of changes residents want to see in public spaces.

Restaurants in UH that have built outdoor experiences (“parklets” or “streetaries”) have proven to be wildly popular, including Madison, Parkhouse Eatery, Rare Society, Rusticucina, Pop Pie, and Muzita Abyssinian Bistro. These are in addition to the existing “social curbs” sidewalk seating or private patios at Bahn Thai, Kairoa, Tiyapa, El Zarape, Plumeria, Mystic Mocha, Twiggs, Lestats, Meraki, De Nada Kitchen & Market, Grains, and Tap Room.

Beginning in August, City Code Enforcement has been reaching out to restaurants to ensure their outdoor operations are in compliance with fire and safety codes, while a more permanent and comprehensive “Spaces as Places” program is defined by the City Planning Department and approved by the City Council in the fall.

Updates on developments previously reported on around the neighborhood:

Winslow – Park ® El Cajon Boulevard. Construction continues with excavation mostly complete and concrete poured. This 379-residential-unit, mixed-use retail complex is scheduled for completion in late 2022. (See UHCA News, April 2021 for details).

Tucci – Park ® Meade. Since our last update, the building has been “unwrapped,” and we can now see the final shape taking place! According to the developer, the 5-residential unit, office, and restaurant mixed-use development is scheduled for a late 2021 completion. (See UHCA News, May 2021 for details).

Diversionary Theater – Park Boulevard. Major construction has continued throughout the summer across the entire complex. The new cabaret, offices, stage, and support facilities will be ready for Diversionary’s 2021-2022 season, their 36th. “Homecoming” will open on September 23rd. (See UHCA News, April 2021 for details).

1939 Adams Avenue – Across from Trolley Barn Park. This long-awaited project has been in the works for over a decade, and new owner & developer Thomas Sutrinso has been pushing forward with this two-residential unit + retail and cafe concept mixed use development, with a late 2021/early 2022 scheduled completion. (See UHCA News, June 2021 for details).

Head over to the Open Space Park at the north end of Delaware Avenue for a tale of two cacti. Enter through the gap in the fence and you’ll see a cactus patch. The plants in the front are covered in spines—this is Coastal Prickly-Pear (Opuntia littoralis). In the back are a couple with long, narrow pads with few or no spines—this is the Indian Fig (aka Mission) Prickly-Pear (O. ficus-indica). Both species bear edible fruits (homas and nopales), and therein lies the tale.

The ancestor of the Mission Prickly-Pear originated in central Mexico, where the Aztecs and others valued those delicious nopales. Removing the spines before cooking is a hassle (https://www.huffpost.com/entry/how-to-clean-nopales), so they picked cactus pads with fewer spines to grow, not eat. Propagating these is remarkably easy: just break off the pad, bury the lower third, and wait a decade. Repeat for a few centuries, and voila! No spines!

While examining the Mission Prickly-Pear, you may also see some ugly white stuff growing on its pads, which are tiny parasitic scale insects called cochineal. The Aztecs used dried cochineal to make a great crimson dye. Pinch a bit and see for yourself—just watch out for those “glochides” (spines)!

The other cactus, Coastal Prickly-Pear, grows only in southern California from the coast to the mountains (i.e., Laguna, San Bernardino, San Gabriel). Typically, it flowers from May to June, but blooms started late this drought year, so you may still be able to see some showy yellow flowers, their pollen covered stamens crawling with bees (native and honey). Besides hosting pollinators, this species provides a home for the rare San Diego Cactus Wren. It seems those spines come in handy for protection.

Now walk down the little dirt point to the lowest Eucalyptus. Look to your left. You can see patches of Coastal Prickly Pears growing among native shrubs. This is what habitat for the Cactus Wren looks like, if there were a couple acres just like this (sans Jade plants) to support a nesting pair. Cactus and bird used to occur all along the coast, but growing cities wiped the birds out.

If you’d like to learn more about Prickly Pears and Cactus Wrens, please join us at the 10 a.m. on Saturday, September 25.

“Cactus Wren” by John Lewis

The story of the rare San Diego Cactus Wren centers on Kimia, a young woman from war-torn Iran. As past and present collide, she must choose between running away again or completing her unfinished destiny. In the novel, please go to rumiwithaview.com to find out more, join the mailing list, and to preorder announcements in the works too.

The book’s release date coincides with the 41st anniversary of the Iran-Iraq War, and the launch is scheduled on Sep 22, 7 p.m. at Mysterious Galaxy. On September 24th, Powell’s, the largest bookstore in the world, is hosting a Zoom conversation with me and Ashleigh Renard, the author of Swing. There are several exciting announcements in the works too. To find out more, join the mailing list, and to preorder the novel, please go to rumiwithaview.com
STATE FARM

All It Takes Is One Good Neighbor

My name is Dorian Brewer and I am a State Farm agent. Recently, I was selected to represent State Farm in the One Good Neighbor campaign, and I thought it might be a good idea to share that interview with my University Heights neighbors as a way to “get to know me a little better.”

A little about where I came from…

I grew up on a grain farm in North Dakota the youngest of six siblings. I was a really active lad who enjoyed sports, exploring, building tree forts, reading and running anywhere I went. All throughout my childhood and adolescence I was a good student but somehow felt different than the people around me including my family. I made decisions to please others and to “fit in.” It took many years to finally figure out who I was as a person, to accept myself and to be happy.

Because of my experiences it’s been very important for me to be a role model. My platform as an agent is the LGBTQ community. Most of my team identify with the LGBTQ community. I make it a point to support local LGBTQ businesses and help promote them through my social media. I helped start my own charity three years ago to help the members of the LGBTQ community living a sober life for myself.

What makes you feel empowered as a LGBTQ person?

My passion is to be actively involved and build connections to rebuild their lives and the LGBTQ community. Most of my team identify with the LGBTQ community and I see allies as a bridge to understanding. Knowledge is power and knowledge can lead to understanding and acceptance. What does acceptance mean to you?

What does acceptance mean to you?

What does being a good neighbor mean to you? For me, a good neighbor is someone who is there for you and watches out for you. They help you move, take you to the airport at 5 a.m., watching your kids and care about your well-being. It’s a friendly smile and a morning hello.

What does one person do to help make a bigger impact?

Be an example by being a role model! Live your life the way you’d like others to live. You cannot control people but you can inspire them. Take action and get involved. Volunteer at your local LGBTQ support centers. See all the great work they do and talk about it with friends, family and neighbors.

Volunteer your time or donate money to local LGBTQ non-profits. Exercise your right to vote.

Tell us about an accepting adult who made an impact on your life as a young person.

My sister Burdella, or as she likes to be called Della, has always been someone I have looked up to and counted on to guide me through life. We lost our mom when I was only two years old and my sister was 15. She became the mother figure for me. A great example of a strong, independent woman who always tries to find the positive in every situation. My sister has worked hard for everything she has and has shown me that you can do whatever you want to do as long as you put your mind to it and keep moving forward. I don’t know where I would be or what direction my life would have taken without her influence and acceptance of who I am as an individual.

What adversities have you experienced as an LGBTQ person?

Fortunately I haven’t experienced many adversities thanks to the LGBTQ pioneers who came before me and forged a path to better rights and showing the Pride of our community. I’ve experienced some hate speech, even with my agency before I opened my doors but for the most part I lived in my own fear of what others would think of me if they knew I was gay. Would they think I’m not professional? Would they think I’m not a good person? I realized after getting older that I can’t control what people think and I need to live my life for myself.

Why is allyship important to the LGBTQ community?

We need our allies! I see allies as a bridge to understanding. You may not have an LGBTQ family member or friend but maybe your friend or co-worker does and they can share their experience. We all know how real it becomes when we know someone or are directly affected by someone else’s experience. Knowledge is power and knowledge can lead to understanding and acceptance.

What should you do if you don’t have someone to talk to? If you don’t feel you can talk to family or friends then contact a school counselor, join a support group or contact an LGBTQ organization for help and guidance.

Making a difference makes me feel empowered. When we are all connected as a community and supporting each other we can do anything. As they say, power in numbers.

There have been so many positive changes in my lifetime. National media exposure, gay characters on television, equal rights in the workplace in many States and the right to marry who we choose.

What can one person do to help make a bigger impact?

Be an example by being a role model! Live your life the way you’d like others to live. You cannot control people but you can inspire them. Take action and get involved. Volunteer at your local LGBTQ support centers. See all the great work they do and talk about it with friends, family and neighbors.

I don’t know where I would be or what direction my life would have taken without her influence and acceptance of who I am as an individual.

What was the one who showed me what it was like to be loved and give love in return. What it meant to carry yourself as a well mannered individual who works hard and cares for others. She has unknowingly guided me simply by being an example of what it means to be a good person who is compassionate, kind, caring, loving and willing to listen to others and try and find the best in everyone.

She loved me when I didn’t love myself, took me in when I had nowhere to go, was a shining light when I was lost in the dark and inspired me to pick myself up and live life like I mean it.

What does acceptance mean to you?

Acceptance means being at peace with myself and content. Acceptance is loving myself. Acceptance is being a friend and loving someone even if we disagree. Acceptance creates a better world.

Our SDPD Community Relations Officer, David Surwilo, tells us there has been a disturbing surge of violent crimes in our city. San Diego has seen a 129% increase in gang-related shootings since January 1. Luckily, University Heights has not been touched by this. Our location helps keep us relatively safe, and our Neighborhood Watches and UHCA Zone Watch programs keep us connected and proactive.

I intended to have Neighborhood Watch gatherings and UHCA’s Cookies with The Cops meetings by now, but these plans have been interrupted by the virus. My street was scheduled to gather three times this summer, but each time thwarted. So, I’m conducting our Neighborhood Watch via phone and email correspondence. I encourage you to do the same.

UHCA’s Zone Watch Coordinator for Zone 4, Christopher Hutchinson, has retired from that position. Thank you, Christopher, for your years of dedicated service. If there is someone in Zone 4 who would like to take on that task, please let me know: Nan McGraw (619) 260-0668.

Additionally, if someone in Zone 6 would like to be Zone Coordinator, I would appreciate it. There is always more activity in Zone 6—the density and proximity to freeway access and busy streets such as Park and El Cajon Boulevards contribute to the zone’s vulnerability. Recent crime stats for Zone 6 are included here.

Thank you to our Zone Watch Coordinators: Tamara Zyhylij (Zone 5), Pam Isaacs (Zone 2), Mary Lange (Zone 3), Nan McGraw (Zones 1 and 6). You keep us informed about crime within those Zones. Your dedication is very much appreciated.

I know helicopter noise is an issue. I will attempt to find answers for next month’s issue.

Thanks for keeping UH safe. Please see Zone 6 Crime Stats and additional public safety news to the right.

Homeless Issues and Concerns:
The Community Relations Officer for the Neighborhood Policing Division who handles all homeless-related matters for the city is Officer John Luellen. Please contact Officer Luellen for assistance with questions regarding homeless, encampments, and support for homeless individuals needing assistance: JLuellen@pd.sandiego.gov.

Get It Done:
If you need assistance with transient- or homeless-related issues, please use San Diego’s "Get it Done" app. The app can be downloaded at the app store on your phone and is free of charge. You may also use the San Diego city’s public website to report issues via the Get it Done link. The city is requesting citizens use these two methods for all issues so that you, the reporting party, and the city can track the initial report and the timeliness of the problem being rectified: www.sandiego.gov/get-it-done.

Links and email addresses are not meant to replace the use of SDPD dispatch if you need a police response to your location.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY IS READY TO RESPOND TO WILDFIRES, ENCOURAGES RESIDENTS TO PREPARE

San Diego County Residents Should Sign Up for Alert San Diego to Receive Updates on Wildfires.

The County has invested more than $575 Million since 2003 to Expand its Wildfire Response Capacity.

San Diego County is prepared and ready to respond to wildfires. Board of Supervisors Chair, Nathan Fletcher, along with Supervisor Joel Anderson, CAL FIRE/San Diego County Fire Protection District, the San Diego Sheriff's Department, San Diego Fire-Rescue and other regional partners, laid out their plans for responding quickly to wildfires, highlighting recent investments in wildfire prevention and urging residents to proactively protect their homes.

“We are ready to respond to wildfires,” said Chair Fletcher, who also serves as President of the San Diego County Fire Protection District. “Our County, together with our partners across the region, have the training, equipment and experience in fire prevention, protection and suppression; the duties they perform under very difficult circumstances are heroic.”

Chair Fletcher is also Chair of the Unified Disaster Council and says investments in fire prevention and response are paramount to the County’s core responsibilities to its citizens.

“Over the years, our region has invested heavily in resources to support wildfire preparedness, but the increased fire danger from drought and climate change require us to do more,” Chair Fletcher continued. “Going forward, I will continue to work with my colleagues and regional leaders to explore more options to increase protections for our region.”

Since 2003, the County has put $575 million into its response capacity. This past week the Board of Supervisors invested more than $2.5 million in roadside vegetation management. Other recent investments include:

- In the most recent budget, increased staffing and funding to convert three remote fire stations in the San Diego County Fire Protection District from 2 firefighters to 3 firefighters, ensuring all County of San Diego fire teams meet the staffing threshold.
- Wildfire Analyst (Research Data Specialist ID) position staffed in San Diego (new for 2022), assists with fire risk forecasting for wildfire fires in San Diego County.
- One California National Guard crew and one California Conservation Corps crew staffed up for wildfire response.
- Continued County investment in fire risk reduction, public education, Residential Knock Box program.
- 10 defensible space inspectors in San Diego County, inspecting residential clearance and educating the public on defensible space requirements.
- New this year: Firefighter hand crews staffed by firefighters from CAL FIRE, the California National Guard, and the California Conservation Corps, all stationed in San Diego County. Firefighter hand crews cut lines around fires, creating a perimeter that keeps a fire from spreading.

During the fire season in San Diego County there are 13 aircraft available from five different agencies, and for extended wildfires there is a Memorandum of Understanding with the U.S. Department of Defense that makes 30 military aircraft available, too. For the ground attack there are 18 Engines from the U.S. Forest Service; 27 Engines from CAL FIRE / San Diego County Fire Protection District; 3 Water Tenderers from U.S. Forest Service; 4 CAL FIRE Bulldozers, and 12 hand crews. When surge capacity is needed, San Diego County Fire has an additional 23 Fire Engines and 10 water tenders.

Fire preparedness and response in San Diego County is about more than funding and equipment. It also requires regional collaboration among many entities, and leading the charge are the brave first responders from CAL FIRE / San Diego County Fire Protection District.

“San Diego County has the potential for devastating wildfires any time of year. Our firefighters train and prepare every day to protect our local communities, but we need help from everyone to be successful,” said Tony Mechem, Chief, CAL FIRE/San Diego County Fire Protection District. “Preparing your property for wildfire and making an emergency plan before a fire occurs is a crucial step for everyone living in the County.”

In 2020, California experienced six of the largest and most destructive wildfires in state history, with over four million acres burned. The Valley Fire that burned southeast of Alpine in 2020 destroyed 30 homes and forced over 1,400 residents from their homes. This year, firefighters in California have already responded to more than 4,600 wildfires, which have burned more than 73,500 acres on state and federal lands. Due to continued dry conditions and temperatures well above normal for this time of year, the 2021 wildfire season could be as catastrophic and devastating as last year.

To defend against wildfire risk, renters and homeowners in San Diego County should:

- Know their neighborhood’s wildfire risk.
- Clear 100 feet of defensible space around your home.
- Use fire resistant landscaping.
- Create a family evacuation plan and be prepared to evacuate within 15 minutes.
- Register for Alert San Diego to get updates to your phone.
- Follow emergency information social media channels, including @ReadySanDiego and @CALFIRESanDiego, and
- Monitor emergency information websites, including SDCountyEmergency.com SDCountyFire.org SanDiegoReady.org.

CITY OF SAN DIEGO GET IT DONE TIMEFRAMES

SDPD Community Relations Officer David Surwilo recently shared this handy overview from the city’s Get It Done website www.sandiego.gov/get-it-done, where residents can report issues to the city. The table lists common issues and estimated resolution timesframes. The length of time it takes to resolve an issue may vary.

Timeframes below are estimates, subject to change.

Welcome Back, Bees!

For the first time, Birney students, teachers, and staff got to enjoy the full summer off after moving to the traditional academic calendar just last year. Teachers will be hearing about more than their share of summertime adventures!

Parents and students alike are anxiously marking their calendars for Friday, August 27, lovingly known as the “reveal” party, when they find out which teachers and classmates they will have for the 2022-23 school year. Teachers will perform initial assessments with incoming TK and kindergarteners the week before school starts, and parents should look out for an email from Ms. Amanda regarding scheduling.

After starting off last year online, everyone, except maybe our newest bees, can hear about more than their share of nervousness, and change that comes with this new school year. School starts up on August 30, in person, 5 days a week. Birney will continue to follow the COVID-19 protocols that have been outlined by the county. For an email from Ms. Amanda regarding your child’s class, please contact us at: info@beesofalicebirney.org. Friends of Alice Birney Elementary is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) Tax ID# 27-0261241.
Get Cared!

The University Heights Library has been open for less than one month, but we have already had visitors pick up holds, check out materials, use the computers and internet, get reference help, and hang out and read stories in our kids’ area. We are glad to have our library once again be a great resource for our community and are ready to celebrate with an Open House on September 18. You don’t want to miss it! And because September is Library Card Sign-Up month, we encourage everyone to sign up and get a library card at the event.

We will also be hosting a “Get Cared!” event for adults where, in addition to having fun and socializing with other UH Library supporters, you can sign up for a library card.

Please check out our new website (www.friendsofulibrary.org) for details about these fun events. You can also subscribe to our newsletter for all the latest info and to find information about joining or renewing your membership in the Friends of University Heights Library. You can also contact us at our new email address (friends@uhlibrary.org).

Thanks for your support of the UH Library.

Pets of the Month Gracie and Slick

Gracie and Slick are my two kittens I adopted from the Humane Society. Gracie is 13 and was adopted from the Gaines St. Humane Society, and Slick (the black one) was adopted this past August, 2020, from the Oceanside Humane Society.

Gracie had a previous partner, George, who sadly passed away from kidney failure during our Covid year. Gracie was so distraught to lose her best friend that we had to get another cat ASAP. At the time, there were no male kittens available, so we made the trek to Oceanside to get Slick, sight unseen. We just told them we wanted a male kitten. We didn’t care what he looked like. After a day or two of -settling in, Gracie let Slick know that she was the top cat in the household. They are now best friends and enjoy communal naps, treats, and bird watching from the porch on Campus Ave. They are indoor kittens but love to hang out on windowsills and on the porch.

Hello, University Heights!

The District 3 staff has taken over this month’s column, as we wanted to share with you some of the things our office can help you with, and to give you some tips on accessing City of San Diego services.

Since opening our office last December upon the swearing in of Council President Pro Stephen Whitburn, our entire team has worked hard every single day to answer the dozens of inquiries that come through our office each week. These have ranged from issues related to homelessness, parks, street maintenance, and trees, and so much more. We do our best to work with our constituents to get their needs addressed by the appropriate City department. Much of the time, we are successful in resolving whatever concern was brought to our attention, or at least get an answer or update on the status of a particular issue.

We are lucky to have a very hardworking team of City staff who we reach out to and work well with to get things done for our residents. Much of the time, we are able to connect our constituents to the right person who can get things resolved. We do our best to escalate issues to the appropriate department and at least get an answer or update on the status of your report.

Whenever contacting our office to get assistance with an issue, when appropriate, please first make a report to the GID app and wait the amount of time the app says is needed to resolve that particular issue. If you do not get a response in the stated amount of time, or the response is not what you were expecting, please do reach out to our office and include the GID report number. Having the report number helps us pinpoint the exact issue with City staff who can determine what, if any, action has already been taken.

Staff of City Council District 3
Council Member, Stephen Whitburn

Talking of “getting things done,” we can’t emphasize enough the importance of using the City’s Get It Done (GID) app (or online version) to report the dozens of different issues it can address. Some of the most common uses for GID include reporting potholes, graffiti, and trash collection issues. Beyond these things, the app can also be used to report street light and traffic signal issues; street and sidewalk issues; such as damaged curbs and guardrails, faded striping, and tree maintenance; a variety of stormwater issues including flooded streets, illegal discharge, run down drainage ditches, parking, bicycle, and shared mobility device issues; encampments; illegal dumping; and much more.

The app is an easy way to get your issues reported in a timely manner and routed to the appropriate City department. While we have seen many successes with the GID app, we realize that not all issues may be solved to your satisfaction. In that case, you can certainly contact our office, and we will do our best to escalate the issue to the appropriate department and at least get an answer or update on the status of your report.

The Vermont Street Bridge is an iconic landmark in University Heights. Hundreds of people cross it every day resulting in the rapid accumulation of dirt, trash, debris, and droppings from trees in the canyon. Additionally, thanks to Rod’s leadership and personal participation, the Vermont Street Bridge was recently power-washed with the help of several team members. Rod has been essential in making sure this arduous task is accomplished several times a year.

Rod has also provided articles about the team's work for the newspaper each month. Maintaining this team and executing meaningful beautification projects is important to Rod, but is not an easy task, especially since half his time is spent at his vacation home in Big Bear Lake. Despite his limited availability, Rod is very willing to contribute his time and energy to keeping University Heights a beautiful neighborhood.

I’m so glad he returned to lead the B Team,” says Marylieh Chudun. Kristie Edgmond adds that Rod is “a great motivator and always willing to do more than his fair share, encouraging others to help out. He does a lot on his own without seeking the credit or the praise—a wonder mental asset in our community.” And according to Jennifer Bishop, “Rod is the best kind of leader because he isn’t afraid to get his hands dirty alongside everyone else and demonstrates how completely committed to our community. As a member of the beautification committee, I’ve always felt heard, supported and encouraged. I appreciate his service and dedication to making University Heights a beautiful community in which to live.”

Rod has been the Beautification team’s chair for almost 4 years, recently coming out of his “retirement” when no one else was able to take over the leadership. Rather than have the team fade away, he has resurrected the initiative, transformed the team, appreciated the input of all the members to encourage their ongoing participation. Additionally, he met with the new UHCA president to fill her in on all of the many activities the team has handled routinely over the years.

Recently, Rod also designed a UH map to highlight areas where graffiti is a real problem. This map was shared at a recent team meeting resulting in volunteers committing to removing graffiti in specific areas on a regular basis. I refer to this, Rod was basically the only graffiti warrior. The map has enabled others to commit to volunteering in this ongoing effort.

Rod also has recently resurrected the initiative to plant trees in parkways throughout UH. As head of a sub-committee from the team, he has energized this effort again after a year hiatus caused primarily by COVID. The hope is to have many new trees planted in UH parkways prior to the end of 2021.

strictly clean by the Trash Angels. Volunteers pick up trash and remove graffiti on a routine basis. Despite these efforts, a major cleanup of the bridge is necessary every few months. Most recently, a seven-person team removed graffiti, polished the decorative panels, and power washed the entire bridge and its railings. Thank you to these dedicated volunteers who are keeping our bridge clean and attractive for all who use it.

Red Fox Restaurant Re-Opening this Month

After months of delays with construction, permits, inspections…and COVID, the University Heights institution, The Red Fox, is finally re-opening this month.

Owner Jim Demos tells us to keep an eye on Facebook and Instagram for the details, but he’s shooting for soon after Labor Day.

It’s been a long haul, but we fully expect that it will be worth the wait. The restaurant’s vibe is the same, and there will be outside patio dining, too. The new location at the northeast corner of Mississippi and El Cajon Boulevard is diagonally across from the former location.

For folks who don’t know the incredible history of this venerable UH institution, The Red Fox Room was an old inn in Surrey, England, dating from around 1560. The three original rooms, slightly different in design, have been combined to form a spacious “tap room.” The bar, back bar, and the trim around the doors with the interesting small carved figures come from Charles of London. The Tudor paneling and the fireplace with its finely carved mantel bear the date of 1642. The three arched panels tell the biblical story of Rebecca and Isaac as found in Genesis, Chapters 24 and 27.

The room was dismantled in 1926 and shipped to the United States for the silent film cinema actress, Marion Davies, who was at the height of her career popularity. Beach homes were a must for the movie colony of those halcyon days, so when Miss Davies decided the song of the surf was a requirement for relaxation from studio demands, these rooms were dismantled, shipped across the Atlantic Ocean in sections, and then completely rebuilt as her “Ocean House.” During the 1950’s, this property was sold and Miss Davies’ “Ocean House” was converted into a hotel.

Some time later, the Red Fox Room was again dismantled and placed in Storage. It is from this source that the Red Fox found a long-term home in the Lafayette Hotel from 1959-2018.

Don’t worry, though! Everything was brought across the street to the new location, from the historical wood paneling, to the stained glass, fireplace, and other classic décor.

So stay tuned to Red Fox social media. That juicy steak and the piano bar await, all in a very historical and familiar setting!
