CONTEXT

Following the agreement reached by Member States on the Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence Directive (CS3D) in March 2024, and awaiting the final vote of the European Parliament expected in April, large companies will be required to implement Due Diligence processes by addressing both actual and potential adverse impacts on human rights and the environment from 2027.

Moreover, following the adoption of the Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) and the European Sustainability Reporting Standards (ESRS), companies are now required to report about their sustainability performance and impacts in a more holistic way, including information on their business model, policies, actions, metrics and targets, as well as how stakeholders are engaged.

ABOUT THE EVENTS

Embark on a transformative journey with CSR Europe’s Due Diligence in Action and Reporting on Social Performance 2024 Atelier series that will bring together companies, expert organisations, and policymakers, to discuss current challenges, approaches, and practices for more impactful policies, actions, and meaningful engagement with affected stakeholder groups.
On 23 and 24 April, we invite our Corporate Members in Brussels to join the How to Identify Sustainability Risks & Adverse Impacts Atelier and Measuring & Reporting Social Impact Atelier. Since both ateliers will cover two sides of the same coin, one focusing more on the identification and assessment of risks and the other focusing on how to measure and report on social issues, both are inherently connected to impact identification. Therefore, we strongly recommend our members to attend both sessions. This will enable them to have a holistic approach to the topics and exchange on the main challenges and processes required for their implementation.

Who Should Attend:
- Sustainability Managers
- Reporting Officers
- Public Affairs Officers
- HR Managers

Due to the limited capacity of the venue, only 35 participants can attend each event. Registration alone does not ensure attendance; kindly await the receipt of a confirmation email before booking your travel arrangements. To ensure broad participation among our members and equitable representation, we kindly request that only one individual per company join the event.
