BIOGRAPHY

Josie is a journalist, columnist, broadcaster and communications consultant with a passion for gender equality and responsible business. She started her career as a journalist for Reuters in Germany and Switzerland before she joined The Wall Street Journal as a European correspondent in London. Between January 2017 and January 2019 she served as the youngest ever business editor of The Independent. Today she writes for Forbes.com and a host of other publications including Fortune, The Guardian, Huffington Post, The Telegraph, New Statesman and Quartz. She is a frequent guest on the BBC, is an experienced moderator, has co-costed a national breakfast radio show, and has guest lectured at the University of Cambridge. In July 2020, Josie was named a Knight Bagehot Fellow by the University of Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism. She lives in New York City with her husband and daughter. Her first book, on the subject of responsible business and the future of work, is due out in 2021.
