

What's on this week: 21-27 April

CULTURE

🕒 14:42

Must-see spring art, nocturnal music beats and top-tapping events for the international dance day.. Don't miss our round-up of activities in the capital and around the country

If you're interested in photography or nature and environmental issues then there is a real treat in store. Hangar Photo Art Centre in Brussels has three separate but concurrent exhibitions, showing work from an array of renowned contemporary photographers, all with an environmental theme. Melting Islands (pictured) presents the work of four documentary photographers, illustrating the fragility of islands and the very real environmental degradation from global warming and over-extraction of resources. Echoes of Tomorrow invites you to reflect on the bond that humans have with nature, while Replica Falsifica is a collection of unusual landscape and still-life images from Paul D'Haese. Echoes of Tomorrow, until 10 June; Melting Islands, until 9 July; Replica Falsifica, until 10 July, Place du Châtelain 18 (Ixelles)