Guidelines for Pre-Approved Grant Relationship Fiscal Sponsorship

Introduction

Fiscal sponsorship has evolved as an effective and efficient mode of starting new nonprofits, seeding social movements and delivering public services. Fiscal sponsorship means a nonprofit organization (the “fiscal sponsor”) agrees to provide administrative services and oversight to, and assume limited legal and financial responsibility for, the activities of groups or individuals engaged in work that furthers the fiscal sponsor’s mission.

Fiscal sponsorship confers significant potential benefits on the leaders of sponsored projects and the issues those projects address, permitting the efficient testing of ideas for addressing social and civic issues in a supportive, collegial atmosphere. They allow new community ventures to more quickly and efficiently get off the ground, without the delay or bureaucratic red-tape associated with incorporating and filing federal and state applications for tax exemptions.

Fiscal sponsors are typically organized as tax-exempt, charitable ventures themselves, and permit project leaders – from the moment the sponsor agrees to accept the project – to legally solicit and benefit from charitable contributions from individuals and grants from private foundations and other funding institutions. Fiscal sponsors place program implementation responsibility in the hands of project leaders, and do not involve themselves in the programmatic decision-making process of the sponsored groups.

Even as they hold in common the purpose of advancing the common good, fiscal sponsors express a range of goals that animate their mission. These goals include:

- Testing and accelerating public interest ideas into effective social and civic action;
- Fostering social innovation and entrepreneurship;
- Advancing the emergence of able, creative community leadership;

- Promoting well-managed solutions and fiscal efficiency in addressing social problems or challenges;
- Transferring the knowledge, skills and habits of excellent organizational operation; and,
- Strengthening the presence, voice and effectiveness of civil society.

Many nonprofits engage in fiscal sponsorship activity on an occasional basis. This practice carries certain inherent risks. Nonprofits should engage in fiscal sponsorship only if their executive leadership and boards of directors are fully aware of the obligations and liabilities they legally assume as fiscal sponsors.

The purpose of these guidelines is to raise awareness and broaden the understanding of fiscal sponsorship and to promulgate standards of best practice for the field in order to improve the practice of fiscal sponsorship and increase its value to society. These are best practices, not just for fiscal sponsorship, but reflect the highest operational standards for any organization operating in the public interest.

This document has evolved over six years of meetings of the steering committee of the National Network of Fiscal Sponsors (NNFS) with extensive input from the field. Its development was led by the work of a subgroup of fiscal sponsors who primarily or exclusively practice this model of fiscal sponsorship, many of whom are arts organizations. The NNFS has produced two sets of guidelines; one for each of the most frequently used forms of fiscal sponsorship as described in Fiscal Sponsorship, 6 Ways To Do It Right, Study Center Press (1993, 2005) by Gregory L. Colvin.

Pre-Approved Grant Relationship Fiscal Sponsorship Distinctions

In a Pre-approved grant relationship Sponsorship Relationship, the fiscally sponsored project does not become a program belonging to the sponsor (as is the case with Comprehensive Sponsorship), but is a separate entity responsible for managing its own tax reporting and liability issues. In addition, the sponsor does not necessarily maintain ownership of any part of the results of the project's work. Ownership rights should be addressed in the fiscal sponsor agreement and could potentially result in some type of joint ownership. The sponsor simply assures itself that the project will use the grant funds received to accomplish the ends described in the grant proposal.
