

WESTERN IDAHO COMMUNITY HEALTH COLLABORATIVE

The Western Idaho Community Health Collaborative (WICHC) is Transforming Health

WICHC is a multi-sector community-based partnership that brings together health care, public health, and social service agencies to address community health through public and private investments.

Working collaboratively, these diverse organizations focus on a shared and joint responsibility to improve the health of their communities and realize cost savings.

Multi-sector partnerships, like WICHC, have led to incredible results in communities with strong collaborations.

We're Modernizing our Health System

We are building a more expansive, connected, and prevention-oriented health system. Our current system is siloed with uncoordinated investments that lead to duplication and come up short in changing complex health outcomes. Investment in this multi-sector, regional collaborative can lead to returns in corrections, education, literacy, transportation, and Medicaid.

Backed by Data

Extensive multi-sector partnerships like WICHC have been tested in 33 states and have realized millions of dollars in cost savings, including 20% reduction in deaths, 45% reduction in drug overdoses, decreased rates of suicide, and others.

Next Steps for Impact

WICHC will make the best use of public and private resources by driving dollars toward the most impactful solutions for our communities.

- $105,400 in support will help this multi-sector partnership implement a strategic plan throughout a ten-county region of Idaho in FY 21.

Contact Us

Alexis Pickering, MHS
Health Strategist
Central District Health &
Southwest District Health

208-327-8619
apickering@cdh.idaho.gov