THE LEGEND OF MAYAHUEL

Mayahuel, the beautiful goddess of the maguey plant, was held captive by her evilgrandmother Tzitzimitl, a monstrous star battling the sun. Mayahuel dreamed of escaping. Quetzalcoatl, the "Quetzal-feathered serpent," found her, and they fell in love. They fled to Mesoamerica, but Tzitzimitl discovered their escape and killed Mayahuel. Quetzalcoatl grieved over her grave, and the first maguey plant grew from her remains. That is how the Aztecs believed that the agave plant came to be and was given the properties found today in Tequila: to comfort the soul of those who lost someone dear to their hearts.

MEZCAL & TEQUILA

“TODO TEQUILA ES MEZCAL,
PERO NO TODO MEZCAL
ES TEQUILA.”

Typical phrase used in Mexico meaning all tequila is technically a variation of Mezcal but not all Mezcal is a tequila. Tequila is only made from Blue Webber agave while Mezcal can be made from any type of agave, which there are over 200+ variations of agave.

STEPS FOR TASTING AGAVE SPIRITS

SIGHT

Observe the spirit's color and clarity in the glass. Swirl it gently to see the legs (tears) forming on the glass, indicating its viscosity.

1

SMELL

Bring the glass to your nose and take a gentle sniff. Note the initial aromas. Swirl the glass again and take another sniff to detect more nuanced scents.

2

TOUCH

Take a small sip and let the spirit rest on your tongue. Notice the texture and weight of the liquid in your mouth.

3

TASTE

Allow the spirit to cover your palate. Identify the flavors and the balance between sweetness, acidity, and bitterness. Exhale gently through your nose to enhance the tasting experience.
