On June 15, from noon-1:00pm (ET), NASHIA will offer the webinar, "Collaboration Across Systems: Partners for Paralysis and Spinal Cord Injury." Read further for more information in this week's Washington Weekly.

HHS Withdraws Controversial Sunset Rule
Last week, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) formally announced the final withdrawal of the regulatory SUNSET that was finalized a day before the Biden Administration took office which required nearly all regulations within HHS to be subject to an automatic expiration 10 years after issuance, unless the Department conducted a formal review and approval of the regulation. The former Administration issued the rule that required HHS to look at every rule to determine whether it was still applicable. Any rule not reviewed within five years would be pulled completely. The Biden Administration put a hold on the rule soon after taking office and initially proposed withdrawal in October 2021, and then delayed both the effective date of the initial rule and the withdrawal while pending litigation unfolded. The final withdrawal rule can be found here.

EEOC Issues Report on Hiring and Retaining Federal Employees with Disabilities
The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) has issued a report, that shows that the federal government is making strides in offering opportunities for persons with disabilities in the federal workforce, but that further progress is needed on retention and representation in leadership positions. The study examined federal workers with disabilities' demographics, their hiring, advancement, and separation from employment at federal agencies, discrimination complaints based on disability, and ways that federal agencies are improving accessibility for persons with disabilities.

The EEOC, in a recent report, found that agencies are meeting some narrower hiring targets, but falling short of hiring employees with a broad set of disabilities. Targeted disabilities include developmental disabilities such as cerebral palsy or autism spectrum disorder, traumatic brain injuries, deafness or serious difficulty hearing, blindness or serious difficulty, missing extremities, mobility impairments, paralysis, epilepsy, intellectual or psychiatric disabilities, dwarfism, and significant disfigurement.

HRSA Announces Funding for Rural Communities to Address Drug Misuse and Overdose
On Wednesday, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), through the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA), announced nearly $15 million in funding for rural communities to address psychostimulant misuse and related overdose deaths. Psychostimulants include methamphetamine and other illegal drugs, such as cocaine and ecstasy, as well as prescription stimulants for conditions such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder or depression.

With this week’s nearly $15 million investment, HHS has provided a total of more than $400 million for the Rural Communities Opioid Response Program (RCORP) initiative, a multi-year initiative aimed at reducing the morbidity and mortality of substance use, including opioid use, in high-risk rural communities. Through the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), HHS also recently announced $55 million in funding for its Tribal Opioid Response (TOR) grant program that addresses the overdose crisis in tribal communities.

Journal Features Article on Effectiveness of Telehealth for Individuals with TBI
The June edition of the Journal of Telemedicine and Telecare features an article on studies that focus on telehealth interventions that combine traditional treatment with rehabilitation to increase symptom management self-efficacy among TBI patients during recovery. In total, 17 studies applying telehealth interventions among TBI survivors were included in the analysis. Future telehealth programs can focus on developing the contents of telehealth modules based on evidence from this study. Read the article here.

CHS Issues Brief on State Strategies for Reaching Family Caregivers
The Center for Health Strategies has issued a brief on “Making the Invisible Visible: State Strategies for Identifying and Reaching Family Caregivers.” This brief outlines practical strategies to identify and reach family caregivers pursued by cross-sector State teams participating in Helping States Support Families Caring for an Aging America., a Center for Health Care Strategies (CHCS) initiative made possible by The John A. Hartford Foundation and the Michigan Health Endowment Fund. For the participating teams — comprised of Medicaid, Departments of Aging and Health and Human Services, Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs), universities, health plans, and community-based organizations — helping family caregivers access supports and services is a high priority. Individuals who are unaware that the care they provide is considered “caregiving” are highly unlikely to self-identify as a family caregiver. Instead of placing the onus on family caregivers to seek support, States can consider developing processes that allow for more organic opportunities for identification that meets families where they are.

Upcoming Webinars and Conferences

DETAC Hosts Webinar to Celebrate Olmstead on June 14
The Disability Employment TA Center (DETAC), along with the National Disability Rights Network (NDRN), and speakers from two state Protection and Advocacy entities, will celebrate the anniversary of the Olmstead Decision via a webinar on June 14. The NDRN will share national trends for phasing out sheltered work in addition to highlighting the Employment First outcomes across the country. State expert speakers will showcase innovative and effective strategies at the State level to transition from a segregated work model to increasing competitive, integrated employment opportunities for individuals with disabilities. The webinar, "Olmstead: Working4Inclusion," will be held on Tuesday, June 14 from 3:00 – 4:30pm (ET). Register here.

On June 22, 1999, the United States Supreme Court held in Olmstead v. L.C. that unjustified segregation of persons with disabilities constitutes discrimination in violation of title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The Court held that public entities must provide community-based services to persons with disabilities when (1) such services are appropriate; (2) the affected persons do not oppose community-based treatment; and (3) community-based services can be reasonably accommodated, taking into account the resources available to the public entity and the needs of others who are receiving disability services from the entity.

NASHIA to Hold Webinar on Paralysis and Spinal Cord Injury
On June 15, from noon-1:00pm (ET), NASHIA will offer the webinar, “Collaboration Across Systems: Partners for Paralysis and Spinal Cord Injury,” featuring speakers with the National Paralysis Resource Center, administered by the Christopher & Dana Reeve Foundation, and the National Spinal Cord Injury Statistical Center funded by the ACL’s National Institute on Disability, Independent Living, and Rehabilitation Research (NIDILRR). While there is not cost for the webinar, individuals interested in continuing education credits (1 hr. for Social Work and Certified Rehabilitation Counselors) may obtain them for $10 for members, $15 non-members. Register here.

NCAPPS Offers Webinar on Person-Centered Decision-Making and Guardianship
The National Center on Advancing Person-Centered Practices and Systems (NCAPPS) is offering the webinar, “Pathways to Person-Centered Decision-Making and Alternatives to Guardianship,” on Tuesday, June 21, from 3:00-4:30pm (ET). This webinar will explore how systems are expanding alternatives to guardianship, such as supported decision-making where people choose supporters to help them make important decisions in their lives. Current efforts across the country and internationally to implement supported decision-making and other alternatives provide an historic opportunity to help people take control of their lives. In this webinar, national experts, State representatives, advocates, and people with lived experience of disability from Colorado, Georgia, and Wisconsin, will outline strategies for systems and a new NCAPPS resource to expand supported decision making so that more people can benefit from these alternatives to guardianship. Register for the webinar.
