* Preliminary program of the Atlanta meeting

Below is the program of the 2002-03 annual winter meeting of SSILA, to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, January 2-5, 2003. A few changes may be made during the next two weeks, but this is essentially the program that will appear in the LSA Meeting Handbook. Please check it carefully and inform us immediately of any errors or problems. If you wish any change to be made in your paper title, your affiliation, or the wording of your abstract, this information must reach us by October 15. Send all messages to <ssila@ssila.org>.

All rooms will be equipped with an overhead projector and screen. Room B will also be equipped with an LCD (computer projector) on Friday and Saturday, but not on Thursday.

Participants are reminded that all paper givers must preregister for the meeting by October 15, using the form that was distributed with the July issue of the SSILA Newsletter, and that is also available at the SSILA website (www.ssila.org). SSILA charges a small extra fee in addition to the general (LSA) registration fee. The total SSILA fee is $80 ($65 for retired members, $35 for students), with no further payment to LSA required. If you have already preregistered through LSA, you must pay the additional SSILA fee ($10, or $5 for retired members and students) directly to SSILA.

Room reservations may be made at the Atlanta Hilton (site of the meeting) at the LSA rates: $69 single, $79 double/twin, $10 for each additional person (+ 14% tax). A reservation form and other information can be found at the LSA website (www.lsadc.org). The Atlanta Hilton reservation desk can be reached by telephone at (877) 667-7210 or by fax at (404) 221-6301.

* Terms for "rock art"?

From Ekkehart Malotki (ekkehart.malotki@nau.edu) 26 Sep 2002:

In addition to my ongoing research on Hopi language and culture I have been investigating for many years rock art imagery (petroglyphs and pictographs) in the American Southwest. In this context I am looking for Native American terms that refer to this phenomenon. For example, in Hopi the concept of "rock art" is captured by the term _tapamveni_, literally "hammered mark" or "pounded sign." I would greatly appreciate it if SSILSA members familiar with indigenous terms for "rock art, petroglyphs, or pictographs" would e-mail me the respective terms in phonemic transcription and literal meaning. While I'm especially interested in language terms from the greater American Southwest, terms from languages outside of this area are also welcome.

* Fonts, fonts, fonts...and Unicode

From Alan H. Hartley (ahartley@d.umn.edu) 26 Sep 2002:

I'm a bit hesitant to broach this, as I'm by no means an expert in the field, but I'm impelled to by the number of discussions I've read recently (on the Siouan and Chinook listservs, SSILSA, et al.) concerning fonts for native languages: "where can I get a font for my particular orthography of language X?", "why won't font Y display special character such-and-such?", etc. There must be hundreds (thousands?) of such fonts available--free or for sale--and they create a lot of duplication and confusion, the latter usually because the potential user lacks the font(s) with which the file was created. I suggest that people with a serious interest in language (and who have the software needed, like the newer browsers and word-processors) learn about Unicode as a standardized way to represent most of the world's languages. Full Unicode fonts are very large, but most modern hard-drives have enough space. A good starting point is the Unicode home-page at:

http://www.unicode.org/

For those with Unicode-capable browsers, check out the various translations of the "What is Unicode?" page at:

Netscape 7, for instance, does a good job (quickly) of rendering the various scripts, using the Arial Unicode MS font. (I'm using Windows 98.)

* Help needed in finding a grammar

From Raffaele.G (raffaelegr@tiscalinet.it) 29 Sep 2002:

I am a member of SSILSA living in Comiso (Ragusa), Sicily, and though I am chiefly devoted to the study of Amerindian languages (as an autodidact), my interests are wider and directed to other languages of the world. I have been looking for a long time for some grammatical materials on Khoisan languages, and I would like to know if there is some member of SSILA who can help me to find a grammar of one of these languages. If someone can supply me with photocopies of Bleek's 1929 "Bushman Grammar" (for which I would of course pay the cost and postage) this would be enough for me, though I would prefer a more recent work. My postal address is below. I thank you very much in advance for your kindness.
