The Ken Hale Prize is presented annually by the Society for the Study of Indigenous Languages of the Americas (SSILA) in recognition of outstanding community language work and a deep commitment to the documentation, maintenance, promotion, and revitalization of indigenous languages in the Americas. The Prize (which carries a small monetary stipend and is not to be confused with the Linguistic Society of America's Kenneth Hale Book Award) will honor those who strive to link the academic and community spheres in the spirit of Ken Hale, and recipients will range from native speakers and community-based linguists to academic specialists, and may include groups or organizations. No academic affiliation is necessary.

Nominations for the award may be made by anyone, and should include a letter of nomination stating the current position and affiliation, if appropriate, of the nominee or nominated group (tribal, organizational, or academic), and a summary of the nominee's background and contributions to specific language communities. The nominator should also submit a brief portfolio of supporting materials, such as the nominee's curriculum vitae, a description of completed or ongoing activities of the nominee, letters from those who are most familiar with the work of the nominee (e.g. language program staff, community people, academic associates), and any other material that would support the nomination. Submission of manuscript-length work is discouraged.

The 2003 Ken Hale Prize will be announced at the next annual meeting of SSILA, in Boston, in January 2004. The other members of this year's selection committee are Sara Trechter and Colette Grinevald.

The deadline for receipt of nominations is September 30, 2003.

The nomination packet should be sent to the chair of the Committee:

Akira Y. Yamamoto
Department of Anthropology
University of Kansas
Fraser Hall 622
1415 Jayhawk Blvd.
Lawrence, KS 66045-7556

Nominations will be kept active for two subsequent years for prize consideration, and nominators are invited to update their nomination packets if so desired. Inquiries can be e-mailed to Akira Yamamoto at <akira@ku.edu>.

* Correction: Lynette Melnar's book

In the January 2003 SSILA Newsletter (p. 2) we announced Lynette Melnar's soon-to-be-published study of Caddo Verb Morphology (a recipient of the Mary R. Haas Award) as the work of an author named "Miller." We apologize for this embarrassing error.

---------------------------
187.1 Correspondence
---------------------------

* CELP chair

From George Aaron Broadwell (<g.broadwell@albany.edu>) 11 Feb 2003:
In the most recent SSILA newsletter I'm listed in the "Regional Networks" section as chair of the LSA's Committee on Endangered Languages and their Preservation. Actually, my term came to an end on January 1. The new chair is Mike Cahill of SIL (Mike_Cahill@sil.org).

--Aaron Broadwell
State University of New York, Albany
g.broadwell@albany.edu

* Collaboration sought for research project on language loss

From jeff bowers (j.bowers@bristol.ac.uk) 10 Feb 2003:

I'm an associate professor (Reader) in the department of psychology at the University of Bristol in the UK. My research is concerned with language -- how we learn to read, speak, and acquire languages more generally. You can find out more about me at my web address at:

http://psychology.psy.bris.ac.uk/JeffBowers.html

I'm writing regarding a project on language loss that might be carried out with speakers of indigenous languages of the Americas. I think this work could have important theoretical implications for language in general, but also could be of interest to native communities in particular. The idea is based on some recent research that has shown that children who are removed from their native language environment at an early age and immersed in a second language for many years (with little or no contact with their first language) completely forget their first language. For instance, Christof Pallier studied adopted children from Korea who were raised in Paris, and who had no contact with Korean from early childhood till adulthood. The oldest child adopted was 8, but most were younger. The striking finding was that in their 20s and 30s they could not remember anything of Korean -- when presented tapes of Korean vs. Japanese they were no better at distinguishing them than monolingual French people (just a tiny bit above chance). This work was recently published in the journal Cerebral Cortex, and if you are interested in reading it, it can be downloaded from:

http://www.ehess.fr/centres/lscp/persons/pallier/

Of course one of the tragedies of the Native communities is that children have been adopted away from their culture and languages. If I could identify adults who were raised for a number of years in a native environment but have moved to an English environment since (for whatever reason), further work could be carried out on this important topic. I'm not sure who to contact about pursuing this research, and thought that some readers of the SSILA Bulletin might be able to direct me to someone.

I would appreciate any thoughts or comments readers might have on this research topic, both in terms of its feasibility, and whether they can think of any individuals or organizations who might be interested in collaborating on such a project.
Thank you for any response.

--Dr. Jeffrey Bowers
University of Bristol, UK
(j.bowers@bristol.ac.uk)

* Collaborator sought for ethnobotanical research in Suriname

From Bruce Hoffman (bhoffmanii@worldnet.att.net) 18 Feb 2003:

I am a Ph.D. student in botany at the University of Hawaii, with a focus on ethnobotany. For my dissertation research, I will be working in southern Suriname in South America. I have more than ten years of field experience in the Guianas working for the Smithsonian Natural History Museum and various NGOs.

I plan to do research in a Saramaka Maroon (escaped slaves) community and a Trio Amerindian community. I am interested in how they each shape their environment, how they classify ecological zones and view forest succession, key cultural plants, practices/management within zones, and cultural relationship to biodiversity and conservation (measured in interviews, participant observation, and forest plots around "fallow" of different ages). I am also interested in TEK/TRM variation intra-culturally, in subgroups and individuals.

I am looking for a collaborator(s) who might be interested in such a project, and who has the skills and interest in the linguistic, anthropological, and social science aspects that I am weak in -- perhaps another Ph.D. student looking for a good field site and project for the coming summer. We would do separate, but coordinated research.

I do not have funding for anyone else (yet), although once the person was on-site expenses would be minimal. I am planning to start my research in May and stay for as long as possible (at least 6 months), but a collaborator could begin later.

--Bruce Hoffman
(bhoffmanii@worldnet.att.net)

---------------------------------------------------------------------
187.2  SOAS Inaugurates the Rausing Endangered Languages Project
---------------------------------------------------------------------

From Nicholas Ostler (nostler@chibcha.demon.co.uk) 18 Feb 2003:

The School of Oriental and African Studies in London will host a two-day event next week inaugurating the Hans Rausing Endangered Languages Project and mapping out future directions for the study of endangered languages.
There will be a formal Program Launch and Public Lecture on Friday afternoon, Feb. 28, in the SOAS Main Lecture Theatre, beginning at 2:30 pm. Professor David Crystal will deliver the keynote address, "Endangered Languages: What should we do now?" This will be followed by a discussion/question and answer session, and a reception.

On Saturday, March 1, there will be a Workshop on Endangered Languages and Language Documentation (9:30 am to 5:00 pm, Room G3 SOAS). The speakers will include:

- Tony Woodbury (U Texas, Austin), "Defining Documentary Linguistics"
- Peter Wittenburg (MPI for Psycholinguistics, Nijmegen), "The DOBES model of language documentation"
- Dan Everett (U Manchester), "Documenting languages: an Amazonian perspective"
- Colette Grinevald (U Lyon), "Speakers and documentation"
- William Foley (U Sydney), "Texts and Genre in Fieldwork in Literate and Preliterate Communities"
- Eva A. Csato (U Uppsala, Sweden), "Multimedia support for the revitalization of the endangered Karaim language"
- Nick Ostler (Foundation for Endangered Languages), "Desperate straits for languages: how to survive"
- E. Annamalai (Mysore), "Limits of documentation"
- Johanna Nichols (UC Berkeley), "Documenting Lexicons (Chechen and Ingush)"

(This program is subject to change)

There will also be a display of Endangered Languages archive materials on the ground floor of the SOAS main library during the week of these events.

All are welcome. However, space is limited, so if you plan to attend please e-mail Zara Pybus at <zp2@soas.ac.uk> or telephone 0207 898 4578.

--------------------------------------------------------------------------
187.3 Live TV Program on Canadian Aboriginal Languages Tomorrow
--------------------------------------------------------------------------

From Naomi Clarke (nclarke@aptn.ca) 19 Feb 2003:

A live call-in program posing the question "Do Aboriginal Languages Deserve Official Status" will be broadcast across Canada Friday night (February 21) on the Aboriginal Peoples TV Network (APTN) at 8 PM Eastern time, 5 PM Pacific.

The program (APTN's weekly open-line "Contact" program) will consider whether Aboriginal languages receive the respect and support they deserve.

With about sixty Aboriginal languages spoken in Canada today, many at risk of dying out forever, native groups want laws to protect and promote their revival. But Canada's Official Languages Act only recognizes French and English. Every year, Canada spends at least $450 million on French services and education (though another estimate says it's as much as $1.7 billion). Should Aboriginal languages not get the same treatment? Does the government have an obligation to bring back what it once tried to destroy through residential schools? Or are the costs just too high?

To take part, call 1-877-647-2786 ext 321, or e-mail <contact@aptn.ca>.

187.4 E-mail Discussion Lists for Tlingit, Haida & Tsimshian

From Lachler Jordan (jordan.lachler@sealaska.com) 14 Feb 2003:

Since I know we all don't already have enough e-mail to deal with in our lives, I've started three new e-mail discussion lists, one for each of the languages served by the Sealaska Heritage Institute. The lists are intended as a forum for native speakers, teachers and students of Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian to share ideas and concerns, network with each other and learn from one another.

Along with the usual discussion that takes place on such lists, I'm hoping to also include a Word of the Day feature on each list, to help all of us beginning beginners.

To sign up for one or more of the lists, send a message to:

listserv@unm.edu

Leave the subject field blank. In the body of the message, with no other text, write:

subscribe TLINGIT_LANGUAGE-L firstname lastname

and/or

subscribe HAIDA_LANGUAGE-L firstname lastname

and/or

subscribe TSIMSHIAN_LANGUAGE-L firstname lastname

(Be sure to replace "firstname" and "lastname" with your own actual name).

Gunalchiesh, Haw'aa and 'Doyck-shin!

--Jordan Lachler
Curriculum Development Specialist
Sealaska Heritage Institute, Juneau, Alaska
(jordan.lachler@sealaska.com)

187.5 Websites of Interest
* Smithsonian's online catalog redesigned

From Robert Leopold (Leopold@NMNH.SI.EDU) 10 Feb 2003:

The Smithsonian's newly redesigned archives and libraries online catalog (SIRIS) offers researchers many new search options. You can now browse digital images by format or repository, providing easy access to thousands of images now available via the online catalog. Another new search tool is the combined search screen, where you can link searches (such as creator, subject and title) that formerly required separate searches.

The combined search is useful for narrowing the number of search results. The new search history screen allows you to return to earlier searches. And if you're uncertain about which term to use, there is always the browse option, which provides an alphabetical list of creators (last name, first name) or subjects to guide your search. Along the way, just click the Add to My List button to send the results of your search to your e-mail account.

SIRIS (the Smithsonian Research Information System) can be accessed at:

http://www.siris.si.edu/

187.6 Upcoming Meetings

* Int'l Colloquium for Vernacular Studies (Puebla, Mexico, Oct. 9-12)

From Nicholas Ostler (nostler@chibcha.demon.co.uk) 17 Feb 2003:

The 2003 International Colloquium for Vernacular, Hispanic, Historical, American and Folklore Studies will take place in Puebla, Mexico from 9 to 12 October 2003.

Panels on indigenous literatures of the Americas are currently being organized, and contributions from all perspectives are welcome to explore topics such as: particular writers, texts or genres; emerging and re-emerging literatures in both oral and written media; literatures within their social, political and cultural contexts, including revitalization movements; issues of access and control, including literacy and translation; and the encounter of the indigenous and non-indigenous worlds in indigenous texts.

The Vernacular Colloquium began as a cultural section of the Congress of the Americas, which itself was established after the 1994 economic crisis made it difficult for Latin American academics to attend meetings in the United States. The 2001 Congress of the Americas attracted more than 900 papers. For more information visit:

http://www.ipsonet.org/vernacular/index.html

Abstracts in English or Spanish, of 500-word maximum length, will be accepted until Tuesday, April 1, 2003. Please include a short bio including current academic affiliation. All abstracts and/or questions must be e-mailed to the Area Chair, R. McKenna Brown, at:

mbrown@saturn.vcu.edu

--R. McKenna Brown
International Studies Program
Virginia Commonwealth University
Richmond, Virginia 23284-3080

* Congreso de Idiomas Indígenas de Latinoamérica (Austin, Oct. 23-25)

From Nora C. England (nengland@mail.utexas.edu) 11 Feb 2003:

El primer CONGRESO DE IDIOMAS INDÍGENAS DE LATINOAMÉRICA se llevará a cabo el 23-25 de octubre del 2003 en la Universidad de Texas en Austin. Se invitan resúmenes/abstractos sobre investigaciones de cualquier tema acerca de idiomas indígenas. No se aceptarán ponencias ya publicadas. Los temas pueden incluir, pero no se limitan a:

- Gramática
- Antropología lingüística
- Sociolingüística
- Planificación lingüística
- Políticas lingüísticas
- Teoría lingüística
- Lingüística histórica
- Mantenimiento o pérdida lingüística
- Discurso
- Literatura indígena
- Colaboración comunidad/lingüista

Se prefiere castellano para las presentaciones; inglés y portugués también son aceptables.

Conferencistas Especiales:

- Fidencio Briceño, Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia de Yucatán, México
- Paulette Levy, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México
- Denny Moore, Museu Goeldi, Brasil

Invitados de proyectos colaborativos entre comunidades y lingüistas que contribuyen al mantenimiento del idioma.

Ponencias son de 20 minutos con 10 minutos para preguntas y comentarios. Se seleccionarán con base en una evaluación anónima del resumen/abstracto, el cual no debe exceder 300 palabras. Se prefieren resúmenes enviados electrónicamente.

La fecha límite para recibir los resúmenes es el 1 de mayo de 2003. Favor de mandar el resumen a: co.iglesias@mail.utexas.edu. Sujeto: Resumen, CILLA I. Favor de incluir la siguiente información (en este orden):

1. Título
2. Nombre y apellidos del autor
3. Afiliación institucional del autor
4. Dirección, teléfono y correo electrónico donde se puede mandar la notificación
5. Un resumen/abstracto de 300 palabras (incluido en el mensaje y también como attachment Word. Nombre del attachment: Apellido.Inicialdenombre.CILLA.doc)
6. Equipo necesario para la presentación

Se manda notificación de aceptación o no el 31 de mayo.

Inscripción
-----------
Estudiantes US$20; no estudiantes US$40; hay becas de inscripción para estudiosos indígenas

Información
-----------
CILLA/LLILAS
University of Texas at Austin
1 University Station D0800
Austin, TX 78712-0331, USA
correo electrónico: co.iglesias@mail.utexas.edu o nengland@mail.utexas.edu
http://www.utexas.edu/cola/llilas/centers/cilla/index.html

The first CONFERENCE ON INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF LATIN AMERICA will be held October 23-25, 2003, at the University of Texas at Austin. We invite the submission of abstracts on research about any aspect of Latin American indigenous languages. Already published papers will not be accepted. Topics may include, but are not limited to:

Grammar                                         Linguistic anthropology
Sociolinguistics                                 Language planning
Language politics                                Linguistic theory
Historical linguistics                            Language vitality
Discourse                                        Indigenous literatures
Community/linguist cooperation

Spanish is encouraged for presentations; English and Portuguese are also acceptable.

Keynote Speakers:

Fidencio Briceño, Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia de Yucatán, México
Paulette Levy, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, México
Denny Moore, Museu Goeldi, Brazil

There will also be a special Invited panel on community/linguistic projects designed to contribute to language maintenance.

Speakers will be allowed 20 minutes for presentation and 10 minutes for discussion. Papers will be selected based on the evaluation of an anonymous written abstract, which may not exceed 300 words. Electronic submissions are encouraged.
Submissions
-----------
Deadline for receipt of abstracts is May 1, 2003. Please send abstracts to:

    co.iglesias@mail.utexas.edu
    Subject: CILLA I abstract

Please include in the following order:

1. Title of the paper
2. Author's name
3. Author's affiliation
4. Address, phone number, and e-mail address at which the author wishes to be notified
5. A 300 word abstract. (Please send this as a Word attachment as well as in the body of the message. Title the file: Lastname.Firstinitial.CILLA.doc).
6. Equipment needs for the presentation

Notification of acceptance or rejection will be sent by May 31, 2003.

Registration
------------
$20 students; $40 non-students; registration scholarships for indigenous scholars

Contacts
--------
CILLA/LLILAS
University of Texas at Austin
1 University Station D0800
Austin, TX 78712-0331
e-mail: co.iglesias@mail.utexas.edu or nengland@mail.utexas.edu
http://www.utexas.edu/cola/llilas/centers/cilla/index.html

187.7 E-mail Address Updates

The following additions or changes have been made to the SSILA mailing list since the last Bulletin:

Barragán Trejo, Daniel ........ dbarre@cencar.udg.mx
Culy, Chris.................. culy@attbi.com
Curnow, Timothy Jowan........ tjcurnow@ozemail.com.au
Kalt, Susan................... sue.kalt@umb.edu
Lachler, Jordan ............... jordan.lachler@sealaska.com
Sanchez, Liliana............... lsanchez@spanport.rutgers.edu
Wilson, Peter J. ............. peterwilson@rogers.com