At its meeting in Chicago last week, the SSILA Executive Committee appointed Ivy Doak (U of North Texas) to a three-year term as Executive Secretary, a newly created position replacing the previously elected position of Secretary-Treasurer. Victor Golla, who had served in the latter capacity since 1982, was appointed Editor, and will continue to be responsible for the SSILA Bulletin and Newsletter.
For the time being secretarial correspondence may continue to be sent to P.O. Box 555, Arcata, California. Doak will establish a new secretarial address shortly.

* Beavert and Segovia share Hale Prize

The 2007 Ken Hale Prize Committee voted to split this year's Prize between Virginia Beavert, Yakama elder and teacher of Sahaptin at Heritage University, and Laureano Segovia, a native speaker of Wichi, a Matacoan language of the Chaco region of Argentina and Bolivia, who has been documenting his traditional language and culture.

* 2007 SSILA election results

The results of the 2007 SSILA election were announced at the Chicago meeting. Elected Vice President for 2008 and President-elect for 2009-10 was Richard Rhodes (UC Berkeley). Elected to a 3-year term on the Executive Committee (2008-10) was Lucia Golluscio (U Buenos Aires). Elected to a 3-year term on the Nominating Committee (2008-10) was Juliette Blevins (MPI for Evolutionary Anthropology, Leipzig).

* Eloise Jelinek

From Richard Demers (demers@email.arizona.edu) 29 Dec 2007:
It is with great sadness that I inform you of the death of Eloise Jelinek. She died on December 21st. She was an extremely influential figure in our department. As an Americanist she worked on Salish, Yaqui, Navajo, and to a lesser extent on other languages. I will write an obituary for the SSILA Newsletter.

* "The Linguists" premieres at 2008 Sundance Film Festival

From Daniel A. Miller (miller@ironboundfilms.com) 13 Dec 2007:

We are nothing short of elated to announce that our documentary feature "The Linguists" was selected to world premiere in the new Documentary Spotlight category at the 2008 Sundance Film Festival. "The Linguists" is the first documentary supported by the National Science Foundation to ever make it to Sundance.

THE LINGUISTS follows David Harrison and Gregory Anderson, racing to document languages on the verge of extinction in Siberia, India, and Bolivia. Their resolve is tested by the very forces silencing languages: institutionalized racism and violent economic unrest.

We hope you can join us in Utah for one (or maybe all) of the following screenings:

Friday, January 18, 12 Noon - Egyptian Theatre, Park City
Saturday, January 19, 12:45 PM - Broadway Centre Cinemas V, Salt Lake City
Saturday, January 19, 11:30 PM - Prospector Square Theatre, Park City
Wednesday, January 23, 9:00 AM, Holiday Village Cinema I, Park City (PRESS AND INDUSTRY ONLY)
Wednesday, January 23, 8:30 PM - Holiday Village Cinema II, Park City

Tickets are available at http://www.sundance.org/festival/.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us or our publicist Winston Emano at wemano@tcdm-associates.com.

We look forward to hearing you there, in all languages!

* Curator, Anthropology (Linguist), Smithsonian Institution

From Robert Leopold (leopold@si.edu) 4 Jan 2008:

The Department of Anthropology at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History is seeking a curator to develop and lead an endangered language program that will engage in research, documentation and preservation. Community engagement will be a major component of this position. In addition to conducting research, both in the field and drawing upon archival collections, the curator will develop strong interactions with communities faced with language loss while also addressing major research themes within linguistics and anthropology.

This curator will join a large and diverse department, currently with 72 full-time staff members, including 17 curators. The Department is organized into three research divisions: archaeology, physical anthropology and ethnology, along with Collections Management, the National Anthropological Archives, the Human Studies Film Archives, and the Repatriation Office. There are a number of programs within the three research divisions, including the PaleoIndian Program, the Asian Cultural Heritage Program, the Archaeobiology Program and the Arctic Studies Center. Some of the current research in the Department centers on humankind’s earliest beginnings, the domestication of plants and animals, the rise of state-level societies, expressive culture in Africa and Polynesia, North American ethnohistory, circumpolar ethnology and the human dimensions of global climate change. Several staff hold teaching appointments as adjunct faculty with area universities. The Anthropology collections hold over 2.3 million archaeological objects and over 200,000 ethnology objects, more than 9,000 linear feet of archival documents and 8 million running feet of film and video. The Department’s webpage can be viewed at http://www.nmnh.si.edu/anthro/.

The successful candidate will need to combine skills in field- and collections-based research, outreach and public programming, and experience securing external funding. This position will be offered as a four-year Federal term position, which may be converted to permanent.
The four-year term position is comparable to tenure-track positions.
U.S. citizenship is required.

The official position announcement is available here:

* Ohio Research on Indigenous Languages of the Americas (January 21)
  From Judith Tonhauser (judith@ling.ohio-state.edu) 17 Dec 2007:

  Brian Joseph and Judith Tonhauser (both OSU Linguistics) have organized a day-long workshop on the linguistics of indigenous languages of the Americas, with 11 papers on various languages of North, Meso-, and South America. The event will run from 9:00AM to 5:00PM on Monday January 21 and will feature mostly speakers with Ohio or Ohio State connections, except for one special invited speaker, Lyle Campbell of the University of Utah.

  The program for this event, as well as details about the location, can be viewed at http://www.ling.osu.edu/~bsmith/mlk

  Anybody who finds themselves in the vicinity of OSU is welcome to attend the workshop. Please let either Judith Tonhauser (judith@ling.osu.edu) or Brian Joseph (bjoseph@ling.osu.edu) know if you plan to attend.

* Leipzig Spring School on Linguistic Diversity (March 26-April 4)
  From Martin Haspelmath (haspelmath@eva.mpg.de) 18 Dec 2007:

  The Leipzig linguistics community invites advanced students (Ph.D. or M.A. level) in linguistics and related fields to attend a ten-day Spring School on Linguistic Diversity, 26 March to 4 April. It is co-organized by linguists at the University of Leipzig and at the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology.

  The Spring School offers courses in different areas of linguistics, which look at language from the point of view of linguistic diversity (comparative syntax, areal typology, comparative phonology, language contact, typological psycholinguistics). The courses will be taught by linguists from the various Leipzig-based institutions and visiting scientists currently working in Leipzig. The participation fee is only EUR 35.

Organizers:
Prof. Martin Haspelmath (MPI-EVA)
Prof. Balthasar Bickel (U Leipzig)
Tyko Dirksmeyer (U Leipzig/MPI-EVA)
Fachschaftsrat Linguistik (U Leipzig)

For more information, see
The registration (including affordable accommodation) is now open. The deadline for paying the accommodation fees is 15 February 2008.

262.4 Upcoming Meetings

* 4th CELCNA (Salt Lake City, March 28-30)

From Tamrika Khvtisiashvili (t.khvtisiashvili@utah.edu) 10 Jan 2008:

The 4th Conference on Endangered Languages and Cultures of Native America (CELCNA-4) will be held March 28-30, 2008, at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution, American Philosophical Society, and CAIL (Center for American Indian Languages, University of Utah). The keynote speakers will be MaryAnn Willie (U of Arizona, Navajo Nation) and Michael Krauss (U of Alaska).

Papers or posters are invited on any aspect of American Indian languages, in particular on documentation or revitalization. American Indian participants are especially invited. Papers will be 20 minutes each in length, with an additional 10 minutes for discussion.

The deadline for abstracts is Jan. 18, 2008. The Program Committee will announce results about Feb. 1.

Papers and posters can be presented in English or Spanish; abstracts can be submitted in English or Spanish. There will some be Spanish language sessions, and those working with indigenous languages of Latin America are encouraged to come and participate.

(?Habrán algunas sesiones en español, y por eso se invitan ponencias y posters en español; los abstracts también pueden ser enviados en español. Son muy cordialmente invitados todos los que trabajan con lenguas indígenas de América Latina.)

A special workshop on teaching American Indian languages (and language revitalization) will be held on Thursday, March 27; all interested are warmly invited - no cost (just registration for CELCNA).

??Abstract guidelines: Abstracts, no longer than 500 words (a paragraph or two will do), should include paper title, name of author(s), affiliation. Abstracts should be submitted by e-mail, in Microsoft Word document, RTF, or PDF. Include contact details for January to April 2008. Only one abstract per person (except where a paper has multiple authors).

Abstract submission address: cail.utah@gmail.com

Registration: $25 (students $15) (tribal elders, no cost) [to cover cost of conference rooms, refreshments]

??Accommodations: University Guest House - 100 yards from the meeting venue (Officers' Club) and from CAIL. To book accommodations contact the Guest House directly (mention CELCNA):? University Guest House University of Utah?110 South Fort Douglas Blvd.? Salt Lake City, Utah 84113-5036?. Tel (toll-free): 1-888-416-4075 (or 801-587-1000); fax 801-587-1001; website http://www.guesthouse.utah.edu?. (Please make reservations early; rooms will be held for the conference only until early March.)??

Further information: Tamrika Khvtisiashvili (tamrikak@hotmail.com) or Lyle Campbell (lyle.campbell@linguistics.utah.edu). Or call 801-587-0720 or 801-581-3441 during business hours, or fax 801-585-7351.

* Latin American Linguistic Historiography (ALFAL 2008, Montevideo)

From Cristina Altman (altman@usp.br) 16 Dec 2007:

The Latin American Committee in Linguistic Historiography was established at the XIIIth International Congress of the Associação Latino Americana de Letras e Linguística (ALFAL), held in Costa Rica in 2002, with the main objective of bringing together researchers -- Lusitanists, Hispanists and Americanists -- interested in the critical analysis of the Latin American research traditions, notably the reflection on the formation of the linguistic methods in the treatment of linguistic diversity as well as language universality.

The core of the committee consisted of members of regional groups already integrated, like those of the ANPOLL Linguistic Historiography Workshop (National Association of Graduate Research in Languages and Linguistics), of the Center of Documentation in Linguistic Historiography of the University of São Paulo (CEDOCH-DL/USP), of the Group of Studies in Portuguese Language Historiography from the Pontifical Catholic University of São Paulo, those of the Oslo Project on Missionary Linguistics (OSPROMIL) and those from others European and American institutions who interacted with these groups.

Three main lines of research were pursued by the researchers of the committee who, between 2002 and 2005, developed their projects in a integrated way and presented their partial results in the XIV ALFAL International Congress in Monterrey, México: the treatment of linguistic diversity; missionary linguistics and Portuguese grammaticography.

In 2006, researchers from the University of Amsterdam and from the Centro de Investigaciones y Estudios Superiores em Antropologia Social (CIESAS) in Mexico City, developing the Revitalizing Old Linguistic Documentation project, and researchers from the Center of Documentation in Linguistic Historiography of the University of São Paulo (CEDOCH/USP), working on the Documenta Grammaticae et Historiae project, joined forces, motivated by their common interest in revisiting, restoring and preserving the documentation about the American Indian languages as well as studying the Portuguese and the Spanish spoken in the Americas.

As a result of these efforts, in 2008, during the XV ALFAL International Congress, to be held in Montevideo, Uruguay, besides the established lines of research of the committee, we intend to emphasize the relevance of documentary research concerning American languages. It is our main objective to exchange experiences with researchers who are developing similar projects, or that are able to present results concerning the investigation dedicated to

a) the elaboration of corpora concerning Native American languages, vital or endangered, but also dealing with Latin American varieties of Portuguese and Spanish;

b) the edition, re-edition, and recovery of texts (notably grammars, dictionaries, glossaries) about these languages;

c) critical studies of these texts (keeping in mind ways of grammar construction, descriptive techniques, the treatment of metalanguage, and the like).

Those interested in joining us are invited to make contact with the undersigned by sending the subject of their work and abstract describing the main lines of their research (max. 300 words), and their institutional addresses, no later than February 29, 2008.
