INTRODUCTION

Hello there and welcome to the Mangia Bene cookbook by J. Marchini Farms! We are the Marchini sisters that love photography, traveling and cooking with fresh ingredients. Our love of food and cooking ultimately stems from our family's deep farming roots and Italian heritage. In the 1920s, our great-grandfather Florindo Marchini immigrated from Italy and began farming in the rich soils of the Central Valley in California. Floridno’s middle son Joe (our Nono/Grandfather) from a young age loved to work in the gardens and fields. After a long day, Joe enjoyed watching his mother Elisa in the kitchen. Elisa’s meals were traditional Italian and seasonal vegetables from the garden.

Joe’s passion for growing new items never seems to stop and in the 70s he became interested in growing radicchio. By the late 80s Joe and his son, Jeff (our father), mastered growing California radicchio and started J. Marchini Farms, grower shipper of radicchio and Italian specialties. Farming has been a lifestyle that our family has embraced. It involves early morning and late evenings but we always found time to gather around the dinner table as a family and share a meal together typically featuring seasonal items from our fields. We love to try new recipes featuring the variety of commodities we grow however Radicchio is one of our favorites.

From growing up our entire lives in the agriculture industry, we have a deep appreciation for food and all of the recourses it takes to grow it.

There is a phrase in Italian "Chi mangia bene, vive bene" which means "Who eats well, lives well" and to us this couldn't be more true. Food brings so much to our lives; it nourishes our bodies, brings us joy and brings us together. To us cooking, the kitchen and the dinner table all have had a profound impact on us. Many amazing memories were made in the kitchen or at the dinner table with our family-in these times we shared stories, laughed, and learned. So here's to eating well and living well- Salute cin cin!
Radicchio is a leafy Italian chicory that originates from the northern region of Italy and comes in many different shaped and colors. Bitter in flavor, Radicchio is perfect for a pop of color and flavor in a salad and can be roasted or sautéed to enjoy in pastas.
