Get on Board for More Housing Choice Around Fairfield Metro Station

Equitable transit-oriented communities are mixed-use neighborhoods with an array of housing options (including affordable homes), near train stations or CTfastrak stations.

Who Benefits from Equitable Transit-Oriented Communities?

WORKERS & EMPLOYERS:
- Reduce commute times and transportation costs by using transit instead of cars
- Have more reliable schedules
- Get more customers through foot traffic from new residents

HOME-SEEKERS:
- Have more choices of where to live
- Can live closer to work, shops, and restaurants
- Walk and exercise more, improving overall health

TOWNS AS A WHOLE:
- Expand the grand list and increase tax revenues
- Keep essential workers close by
- Reduce per-unit infrastructure expenses because units are near existing infrastructure

The Current Zoning Around Fairfield Metro Station Cheats Fairfield!

Fairfield doesn't allow for much 4+ family housing around Fairfield Metro train station, cheating residents out of the benefits of housing near transit.

Instead, the town permits predominantly single-family housing – robbing the town of tax revenue, climate benefits, and smart housing options.

An onerous permitting process also deters new housing. In 2020, Massachusetts legalized housing around transit statewide. Shouldn't Fairfield and Connecticut catch up?

Convinced change is needed? Use our Advocates' Playbook!

Let's show elected officials that the time for equitable transit-oriented communities has come. Check out our Playbook, online at www.desegregatect.org/be-the-change!

It's up to you to ensure that your town benefits from this opportunity: a common-sense housing solution that helps everyone.

Find out more at: www.desegregatect.org/toc