

Brescia University College Students' Council (BUCSC) Student Fee Definition in Conjunction with 2022-23 Budget Prepared by BUCSC Executive Team

To fund the operations of the Brescia University College Student's Council (BUCSC), each Brescia University College (BUC) student pays a fee to the Council to support student grants, events, support and operational expenses. There is some variance in the fees paid between full-time and part-time students. From year to year, it is typical for some increase in student fees in relation to increases in tuition, and the cost of operation for the BUCSC. In the 2021-22 year, the BUCSC and BUC opted for a freeze on these fees to limit the financial stress of students during a global pandemic. These expenses are broken into components to create the student fee charged. The breakout of student fees are listed below with components.

Sexual Violence and Campus Safety

This portion of student fees will be used towards initiatives concerning sexual violence the overall safety of students on Brescia's campus. Initiatives may include informational workshops, awareness campaigns, and partnerships with community and/or campus wide organizations.

Campus Improvements

This portion of student fees will be used to renovate the BUCSC office to ensure that it is accessible to incoming students. Drawers and cupboards will be reorganized to maximize storage space. Outdated office supplies and materials will be replaced so that there is increased efficiency in the office workplace. More space in the office will create more opportunities for students to approach the BUCSC.

Another portion of the fees will be put forth in installing a water fountain.

As well, there will be small snack boxes across campus for students who are in between classes and don't have time for meals. Snack boxes can include small non-perishable snacks such as snack bars/granola bars. These boxes will especially aid students facing food insecurity at home in providing them with a healthy bite to eat when preparing for classes.

Career Services

This portion of student fees will be allocated towards developing initiatives that help students find careers as well as learn more about the different careers available to them post graduation. All academic representatives are asked to run an event related to career development; these fees help in the planning and execution of these events to give students resources and information needed in their career development.
