For more than 30 years, Esperanza Community Housing Corporation has helped support and build the power that already exists within our communities. Despite the social, economic, and environmental challenges that continue to oppress the region, the community of South Los Angeles remains resilient and exemplifies perseverance in shaping their own neighborhoods. Esperanza relies on the strength and creativity of South LA residents to forge in unity a radical community transformation based on equity and social justice.

Our Mission

Esperanza Community Housing Corporation is a social justice non-profit in South Central Los Angeles that achieves long-term, comprehensive community development. We recognize that Indigenous, Black, and Latino immigrant communities are disproportionately impacted by historical oppression, health disparities, disinvestment, and displacement. Therefore, we develop and preserve affordable housing; elevate health equity and access to care; mobilize for environmental justice; create and protect local economic opportunities; expand engagement in arts and culture; and advocate for policies protecting human rights. Esperanza works collaboratively to strengthen South Los Angeles. In all of our actions, Esperanza builds hope with the community.
