Destination Forecasts - Suite of 39 individual Destination Forecast reports - 2024 Publishing schedule: 6 June 2024 Sponsored by Visa and with data and insights from Euromonitor International, this suite of reports builds on the current forecasts by delving deeper into the changing dynamics of travel and tourism into and across the Asia Pacific region at the single destination level. Each of these 39 reports covers a specific destination in the Asia Pacific and individually provides: - Annual forecasts of visitor arrival numbers into each destination, by scenario and source region; - Recovery rates for international visitor arrival (IVA) growth back to the 2019 benchmark; - Annual changes in relative visitor share by source region, year, and scenario; - Quarterly changes in scheduled international inbound air seat capacity to 2022; and - Economic, income and expenditure outlook & trends, and domestic tourism. These scenarios, when combined with other relevant metrics, provide hard data on how travel demand preferences could play out in these destinations and how they might recover under various scenario conditions. Scheduled international inbound air seat capacity, for example, shifts relatively quickly according to demand. In other words, understanding the likelihood of when and where capacity increases become a useful barometer of potential demand that can translate into increased arrivals.	5 destination reports included	50% Discount	US $4000
