The American Geographical Society’s 2021 Symposium

Geography 2050:
Towards a More Equitable Future

An Open Virtual Conference: November 15-19, 2021

Geography 2050 is a multi-year strategic dialogue about the vital trends that will reshape the geography of our planet over the coming decades. First launched in 2014, the American Geographical Society, AGS, will convene this eighth installment of the Geography 2050 Symposium, bringing together innovators, thinkers, and practitioners to share their knowledge using geographic analysis and geospatial tools in creating a more equitable world. Our audience, including geography teachers and students from across the United States, will have access to the symposium sessions and related educational materials during the week of the symposium and beyond.

Sponsors and partners of the AGS Symposium take an active role in helping us shape the dialogue around critical issues of inequity. Your support not only gives us the resources to plan and host this symposium, but also illustrates your organization’s leadership and initiative promoting equity.

All sponsors and partners of the AGS symposium will receive:
• Your linked logo on the Geography 2050 website,
• Your linked logo on the AGS website for one year,
• A marketing kit for sponsors to share with their own employees and clients,
• Your organization mentioned on AGS social media in advance of and during the Symposium,
• Your organization mentioned and logo displayed every day of the Symposium,
• Your organization recognized by Chair in Opening and Closing Remarks, and
• The opportunity to participate in development of the program.

Sponsor: $2,000
Premium Sponsor: $5,000
• The opportunity to present a 30-second commercial for playback during the event.

Silver Partner: $10,000
• The opportunity to present a 5-10 minute video highlighting your company’s commitment to equity.

Gold Partner: $25,000
• Recognition as one of up to five patrons supporting a full day of programming.
