CDI would like to thank our corporate patrons for their generous support.

Thank you to Allan Woods Flowers for its generous donation of tonight’s floral arrangements.
Dear Friends,

On behalf of Collegiate Directions, Inc. staff and Board of Directors, it is a pleasure to welcome you to CDI’s 13th Annual Benefit. As we reconvene in person for the first time in more than three years, we have so much to celebrate and so many reasons to be thankful that CDI has been able to continue our work in earnest in the face of challenging circumstances. We now serve over 6,700 students across all our programs which is 6.5 times more than in 2019.

As CDI counselors and staff continue helping our Scholars earn their college degrees and enter the workforce, we are still grappling with the full impact of the residual effects of the pandemic and the problems it revealed. The distance learning experiment underscored technological and logistical disparities which negatively impacted low-income students, widened achievement gaps, and resulted in learning losses that have set many students back academically by nearly two years.

The isolation students endured has contributed to increased levels of anxiety and intensified the need for more support around soft skills and executive functioning necessary to succeed in the workplace. And before students embark on their professional paths, changes to the FAFSA and legal rulings related to affirmative action have made the process of simply getting into college even more challenging.

Despite these circumstances, CDI Scholars have continued graduating at rates five times higher and with less debt than their first-generation-to-college peers.

And as we have done since 2005, CDI remains as committed as ever to closing the achievement and opportunity gap for first-generation-to-college students from households with limited means. Our Scholars, School Support and Wellness programs, and our Career Mentoring Initiative help Scholars maximize their potential and ensure they are equipped with the academic, financial, social and emotional tools necessary to successfully graduate from college and prepare for the world of work.

At CDI, it has never been enough to help students get accepted to college and drop them off at the university steps. We want our Scholars to be prepared for the academic rigor of college, be admitted to the college of their choice, prosper academically, graduate on time, and enter the workforce with the skills necessary to become productive, thriving members of their communities.

Our ability to serve our Scholars and to produce life changing, best-in-class results is a direct result of your generosity and support. You help advance our mission to level the playing field and give deserving, talented, qualified students the opportunity to reach beyond circumstance to achieve what is possible.

We thank you again for your ongoing support.

Warmest regards,

Amma Felix, President and CEO

A former CDI Scholar (2009), Annie Jihyo Park graduated from Boston College (2013) and joined Teach For America for the Baltimore City Public Schools where she taught ESL for elementary students. As an immigrant raised by a single mother, Annie saw herself in her students and was determined to enrich their lives. She founded a musical instrument access and lessons outreach program that was adopted into the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra’s OrchKids program. After earning her M.S. in Educational Studies at Johns Hopkins University, she received an Ed.M. in Policy and Management at Harvard University.

In early 2019, Annie’s mother, Sarah, called Annie for help when she decided to open a small ice cream shop in her Bethesda neighborhood. What began as a temporary endeavor turned into a full-time commitment as Annie recognized the immense potential for growth. Under Annie’s leadership, Sarah’s Handmade Ice Cream rapidly expanded, with two locations in Bethesda and a third shop scheduled to open in late 2023.

The brand is celebrated for its 40 daily- and site-made flavors crafted from all-natural, high-quality ingredients. However, what sets Sarah’s Handmade apart is its strong emphasis on mentorship for all employees and a steadfast commitment to community giving. The brand has not only become popular, but has also earned accolades for its dedication to making a positive impact on the community.
