ACTING PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

We hope all of you will come out and enjoy another evening at our GALA Fund Raising Dinner and Silent Auction, on October 17, 2013, at the Veterans of Lansingburgh Hall on First Avenue north of 121st Street. This year we ask that you pay for reservations at the time you make them and the closing date for us to receive your reservation is October 8th. Details and reservation form are included in this newsletter.

We are grateful to Jim Norton, Kay DeRosa and other Burgher Kids who work with the online bulletin board, “We Were Burghers Once and Young”. They held a clam steam at the Veterans of Lansingburgh Pavilion on August 10th, and donated much of the proceeds to the Lansingburgh Historical Society. It brought $663 to the Society. It was a beautiful late summer day. Everyone who attended had a wonderful time reacquainting with others who live or have lived in the Burgh. Kathleen Tivnan, who held many hats in the historical society over the years, was Guest of Honor and enjoyed seeing many of her former students. “We Were Burghers Once” publishes a variety of historical accounts and photographs, contemporary Burgh news, graphic and other trivia of interests for people who have a Lansingburgh connection. There is something for everyone. Come check it out! We thank them for their generosity.

Your historical society is again asking for volunteers willing to serve the society in various capacities. We have vacancies to fill on the Board of Trustees. We often need help with things in and around Melville House, the grounds and the park. We could use someone to write for and take over compiling, editing and distributing the newsletter. The cemetery project needs helpers. People with word processing and other computer skills are especially needed. We still hope to find people who can give us legal and accounting advice. Contact any trustee or send us an email.

Truth Stranger Than Fiction: The Tragedy and Triumph of Lany Wager Rose (Part 2)

WARREN F. BRODERICK

It seems that her father, William Wager, had filed a civil suit against the perpetrators to recover the $11 he had paid them. Once his money had been repaid by the doctors they were granted bail of $250 each by Judge Ira Harris of Albany, apparently unaware that they had been remanded without bail for the criminal trial as being flight risks. The so-called “Indian doctors” fled, never to return. In the interim Justice Ransom had received a number of communications from other parts of the state concerning their dastardly activities. A gentleman in Bainbridge, Chenango County, claimed they absconded with his teenage daughter, May/Avery professing she wished to become his bride. Complaints from other victims locally who received their unique treatments for female medical issues abounded, but the doctors were nowhere to be found. No one has yet determined if the doctors were really from Arkansas or if they even used their real names. The veracity of any of their claims is highly unlikely.

The local press condemned the actions of Judge Harris and their attorney, Samuel Stover, and branded the doctors as fiends incarnate. But in a few weeks news about this notorious case had disappeared from their newspapers. William J. Lamb, Editor of the Lansingburgh Democrat, determined to memorialize the crimes by publishing a small 15-page pamphlet entitled Truth Stranger than Fiction . . . The pamphlet sold for 12 ½ cents and the Lansingburgh Historical Society owns a copy. The only other known copies are held by the New York Historical Society and the American Antiquarian Society.

Editor Lamb published the “horrid details” with “considerable reluctance” in order that “their perusal will place the public upon their guard against all traveling [sic] pretenders and prevent their successful practicing of such horrid impositions in the future.” He added that the case “was without parallel in the criminal history of this country.” Research conducted to date has revealed any additional information on the Indian doctors and their activity. Of course no one knows what other names they used in their felonious masquerade.

On their way to jail following the initial committal May/Avery remarked that they had accomplished their intended purpose, and that “the girl was a d—m fool to tell, for who would marry her now?” But Lany Wager would survive and prove the perpetrators so very wrong.

Most have assumed that Lany Wager did not live much longer and remained a “spinster” because of her health problems and the stigma held by many rape victims in America in this era. She remained at home until the late 1850s when she moved to Troy to board with her cousin, Francis Wager, and his family on North Fourth Street. By 1868 she had returned to Pittstown and was now the wife of Mynard (or Minard) Rose. They resided on Brundage Road in the same house as the family of a cousin, Charles F. Wager, in 1870. Mynard Rose, born in 1807, appears to not have been previously married before meeting Lany. Lany’s younger sister, Nancy, born in 1842, had previously married Mynard Rose, Jr., a son of Edward Rose, a nephew of Lany’s husband.

Mynard Rose Sr. and Lany had a daughter, Minnie, born in 1868. Minnie Rose married Merritt Haviland (1863-1951) and died on February 24, 1900; Merritt afterwards remarried Harriet Roberts. Merritt and Minnie Haviland had a son, Walter, born February 25, 1895, and a two daughters, Colista May, born in 1893 and Emma, born in 1896. Colista May married Frank H. Reed and Emma married Frederick Wier. It is not known with absolute certainty if any descendants survive today but I have spoken with a possible great-great-granddaughter.

Lany Wager Rose died March 16, 1901 in Pittstown. She and her husband, Mynard, who had predeceased her in 1874, are interred in the Methodist Episcopal Cemetery in Tomhannock. The Pittstown Town Clerk, Jessie A. Pruyn, recorded her occupation as a “lady” possibly suggestive of her laudatory character, since she certainly was not a wealthy woman. One wonders, 50 years after suffering an unspeakable crime, if local residents remembered her ordeal and how she triumphed over it. Her father, William Wager, died in 1877, and his estate reveals that in 1863 he had set aside a legacy of $300 for Lany “if not paid before his decease.” Had he finally regretted paying the “Indian doctors” the $11 to unwittingly allow her to be subjected to a sexual assault under the pretenses of giving her medical treatment?
