

REAL EYES REALIZE “Introduction Invocation”

Tool Description – Tell Me More ...

At the beginning of each podcast interview, the REAL Eyes Realize team and our guest speaker(s) take a moment of pause and grounding as we kick-off the session with this introduction invocation.

We share it with our listeners as a way to see inside our beginning ... the spark of rooting ourselves and our guests before we unfold the stories of how love and service are being realized in our world from their work.

REAL Eyes Realize the Beauty of an Introduction Invocation

Thank you for this blessed day. We're so grateful to be alive and seeking the truth that reveals itself in the eyes of these beholders today, coming together to express love and service ... compassion in action. We feel everyone has something special to share in this world and we are grateful for (insert name) to be with us today to share their story and the sparks that inspired their actions in creating ripple effects actualizing love in this world. Let us all be inspired by their story and light in us a lantern for a cause that matters deeply to us, and to our world.

Today, we value progress over perfection and know we are guided and protected on this journey of service and love with our human family. For the sake of our precious short lives, may we be leaders who care. May we be leaders who act mindfully for the greater good of generations to come. May we listen intently without the need to fill space with sound, and seek to understand rather than postulate how to interject.

Dear masters and teachers, guides and guardians, please guide us to learn the lessons of living from our hearts and allowing the ripple effect of goodness, inspiration, hope, and courage to flow from our words into the positive actions supporting our families, communities, and this beautiful world we've been gifted to occupy. We hear your call to express beauty in this world.

Thank you.