Apply to be a GEMS mentee or mentor for 2022-2023!

Ruby Track

Mentees: undergraduate students or recent graduates interested in going to graduate school in the future but not applying to graduate school during the current cycle.

Support offered by mentors:
- General advice on graduate school application process and timeline.
- Guidance in career planning and professional development (for example, building a resume or CV, presenting at conferences, contacting prospective faculty advisors).

Sapphire Track

Mentees: undergraduate students, recent graduates, returning students, or current graduate students applying to graduate school during the current cycle (2022-2023).

Support offered by mentors:
- Guidance throughout the graduate school application process.
- Help setting and meeting personal deadlines for deliverables.
- General feedback and editing of application materials.
- Advice on interviewing, visiting, and selecting a graduate program.

All participants in GEMS:
- Gain access to the GEMS Discord community, including channels for connecting with other mentees and mentors, learning about fellowship opportunities, and attending scheduled “Ask Me Anything” sessions.
- Benefit from the GEMS resource collection on the program website, including example application materials and mentoring tools.

Learn more at: www.gems-program.org

GEMS does not currently include tracks for international students who have never been enrolled in a US degree-granting institution or current graduate students applying to post-doctoral positions.