

Facilitator, Liberty's Promise

- Are you interested in leading groups or working with teenagers and young adults?
- Do you want to help make a difference in the life of a young person?
- Would you like to teach immigrant youth about civics and citizenship?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, then this might be the opportunity for you! Liberty's Promise is seeking energetic contracted facilitators for several programs across the D.C. Metro area, for its upcoming after-school programs of civic engagement this fall. Liberty's Promise supports young immigrants in need while encouraging them to be active and conscientious American citizens. The program serves immigrant youth, ages 15-21, and features over 30 hours of programming that teaches participants about their community, civics, college, and careers. Unlike typical classroom civics courses, immigrant youth gain first-hand knowledge of local government and the benefits of civic participation through field trips to local community resources and meetings with guest speakers.

Our fall program will take place twice a week for ten weeks from October to December, and include one or two Saturday field trips. Facilitators are expected to develop 30-minute activities that target each session's theme/main activity with the support and guidance of Liberty's Promise staff. Facilitators are also required to submit a short activity report at the end of each session and to complete a final evaluation at the end of the semester. Facilitators are paid $2,000 ($1,000 at beginning of program and $1,000 upon receipt of final report).

Qualifications:

- Experience teaching or leading groups;
- Energetic, engaging, and enthusiastic;
- Fluency in Spanish is preferred (for CE-BELL programs);
- Good organizational and communication skills;
