

Careers Collective | Newsletter no. 5

May 2022

In this newsletter, you will find:

- Careers Conversations Course for post 16+ students and early career starters
- 'How Conversations Build Careers' webinar - watch the webinar on-demand
- Register for a FREE webinar 'How do we prepare students for recruitment in a post-Covid world?'
- Leadership CPD programmes
- Read our blog for Governors for Schools

We have begun this year's programme of complimentary webinars, with content tailored for career starters, schools and colleges, employers and training providers, and parents. These webinars offer you an opportunity to engage with the key trends affecting the world of work and training and hear from the experts.

Our last webinar was thematically linked to our Careers Conversation Course. It is designed for students at school or college in their final years and also young people in the career starter phase of their career journey in the workplace, perhaps on an apprenticeship or graduate programme. The course is a blend of live and pre-recorded elements and, as such can be tailored to meet participants' needs as well as provide opportunities for independent learning.

The course comprises five workshops which cover

- How To Make A Positive Impression on any employer
- Harness The Power Of Relationships To Get That Job
- Network Your Way Into The World Of Work
- How To Speak Business
- How To Make An Elevator Pitch

Also included: pre and post-lesson resources, video content and podcasts to consolidate and extend learning.

If you would like more information about our Careers Conversations programme please contact us at: chat@careerscollective.org

We are a CEC Approved Provider: Our course contributes to the achievement of Benchmarks: 1, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 and covers the Skillsbuilder framework strands: listening, speaking, creativity, staying positive and aiming high.

Webinars, live and on demand

How to identify a quality apprenticeship?

22nd June, 15.30- 16.15hrs

We are delighted to host this webinar as we have three outstanding panellists:

- Charlotte Fisher Morecroft- IBM, Early Professionals Manager
- Gavin Deane, CEO of EducationWise, apprentice training provider
- Emily Austin, CEO, The Association of Apprentices

**CLICK TO REGISTER**

How do we prepare students for recruitment in a post-Covid world?

This webinar was live May, but we recorded it so that you can watch it on demand by clicking the button below

**CLICK TO WATCH**

How conversations build careers

This webinar was live in April, but we recorded it so that you can watch it on demand by clicking the button below

**CLICK TO WATCH**

CPD for Education Staff

We are currently delivering a bespoke series of CPD programmes for senior leaders within The Careers and Enterprise Company.

Created specifically for the CEC, our programme uses, as always, a blend of coaching and teaching and focuses on building capacity and resilience and developing leadership and managerial skill sets. Workshops are between 90 minutes and three hours long. They come with accompanying workbooks and a dedicated web page with further resources and information to support delegates and provide them with comprehensive information they can continue to reference.

We can build workshops that fit your staff's needs and concerns too. Please email chat@careerscollective.org for more information.

Blog

"How can governing boards benefit from having self-employed people as governors?"

We have been very pleased to be involved with and support the not for profit organisation Governors for Schools with their campaign 'all pupils, every ambition'.

We wrote a blog for them in which we provide reasons why self-employed people are a huge asset for school governing bodies.

CLICK TO READ

