Under Control

Published September 22, 2024

Regarding the Sept. 15 attempted shooting of Donald Trump, I would like to offer the former President the same thoughts and prayers he would likely offer me if my grandchildren were murdered in a school shooting -- the difference being Trump is actually in a position to do something about gun violence, and I'm not. He could maybe urge Congress to pass legislation, call for stricter gun control, or in general just stop opposing Democrats' multiple efforts to do those things. A note to Republican lawmakers looking at the next gun control proposal to cross their desk: Remember, the life you save may be your own.
