- About
- Features
  - Buying Guides
  - Reviews
  - How-Tos
  - Interviews
  - Previews
  - Columns
- Building
- Transportation
- Energy
- Living

The company designs one-of-a-kind itineraries that blend luxury, immersion and adventure with unique access to transformative experiences in exotic locations. They claim to be "bridging the gap between luxury experiential travel and humanitarian and conservation initiatives" and boy, does it look like fun.

Image via Epic Road

Epic Road was founded by longtime friends and global travelers Mark Lakin and Marc Chafiian. They believe that in addition to providing much-needed respite from the demands of daily life, a vacation can be a touchpoint for awareness and transformation. Instead of just hounding people to support conservation causes, Epic Road takes them to the source, so that they can see, feel, smell, and touch the places at risk from human development, poaching, and pollution.

Image via Epic Road

Adventures include: immersions with nomadic tribes, interactions with rare and endangered wildlife, and exposure to humanitarian and conservation initiatives including malaria prevention, geo-tagging leatherback turtles, collaring and tracking rhinos and lions, and distributing solar lights to families without access to electricity—all while dining and sleeping in luxurious accommodations that accentuate the natural beauty of Mother Nature's handiwork.

The company's expertise is primarily focused on safaris in Africa and the Arctic with plans to expand into Asia. Whether you're planning a family trip, romantic escape or honeymoon, Epic Road is definitely worth a look.

You might like:

Home Solar Panel Kits Come To Costco « (this site)

Case in Point:
Pitched roofs or math
— what matters for solar?
(The Washington Post)

Tesla Motors Model X Smokes $40 Million In A Day (this site)

Smart Car & Camper Combined To Create Super Efficient RV (this site)

Recommended by